Anti-Disparagement Bill Announced At State Grange Meeting

Agriculture Fights Back On False Claims About Food, Production

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In an attempt to combat the unfounded claims made against food by activists, State Representative Sheila Miller (R-Berks) announced here Monday that she has introduced a Pennsylvania anti-disparagement bill into the State General Assembly. Miller used the support of the State Grange to introduce the legislation to the farm community at a working press luncheon during Grange Week legislative day activities.

The bill will provide a means for farmers, aquaculturalists, producers, marketers or sellers of perishable farm products (including animal, fruit and vegetable products) to recover civil damages for the disparagement of their products.

"We introduced this legislation because unfounded claims are being made by non-scientific groups that lead to economic harm to farmers and other producers," Miller said. "Farmers constantly need to defend allegations that their products are in some way harmful to consumers."

Attending the press meeting along with Grange officials and a few farm reporters were Dr. Stan Curtis and Dr. Erskine Cash from Penn State. Miller credited Curtis and Cash with the initiation of the idea for the need of this legislation.

"Laws around the country have

Reading Terminal Market Needs Farmers' Produce

PHILADELPHIA — Regional produce farmers who are thinking about direct-marketing fresh fruit and vegetables, take heed — your product is in high demand.

The Reading Terminal Farmers' Market Trust is thinking about establishing a label that will promote the products grown and marketed specifically in the Philadelphia area, and they need growers.

The profit margin to market fresh produce to the Reading Terminal may be appealing, especially for those farmers who are switching from growing tobacco or field crops to fresh fruit and vegetables, said R. Duane Perry, executive director of the Reading Terminal Farmers' Market Trust, a nonprofit organization.

"Our mission is to reach everyone, in particular the lower income people in the city who need more access to fresh fruit and vegetables," said Perry.

Perry was instrumental in estab-

Family, Future Is Farming; Farming Is Management

KLEINFELTERSVILLE (Lebanon Co.) — On Tuesday afternoon, all the cows in Nelson and Susan Sensenig's 92-tie stall dairy barn were lying down on clean, dry bedding, chewing cud, except for two animals standing — one was eating and the other drinking water.

The center aisle also was clean.

His cows just laid there — on beds designed using the latest information on cow comfort for stall and bed design — making milk.

Six, 48-inch fans were tunneling air down through the barn. The ceramic tile manger, or feed bunk, still had some of the tested, carefully balanced totally mixed ration left in front of every cow.

No swollen hocks, no bad feet, no obvious risks of environmental mastitis.

Last year, the rolling herd average for the Sensenigs was more than 30,000 pounds of milk, for many reasons.

It dropped since then, but slightly. A herd reproductive problem related to a feeding problem, since resolved, curtailed having fresh cows in recent months, which continues to hurt production and income.

As of this week, the herd averaged more than 29,000 pounds of milk with a 4 percent butterfat test. The Sensenigs ship milk once a day to their cooperative, Atlantic Dairy Cooperative.

(Turn to Page A22)

Nelson Sensenig holds the halter of one of his Holsteins that have given him a rolling herd average of close to 30,000 pounds of milk. His nutritionist says the herd average could be up to 35,000 pounds in several years. Susan Sensenig sits at the picnic table with the baby, Darren, Maria in front, Joel sits on the table, and Daryl sits on the other seat. The cow is No. 34, an 85-point, 3-year-old daughter of Rusdale Promise, with a 305-day record at 2-11, of 22,832 pounds milk, 912 pounds fat, and 743 pounds of protein. Photo by Vern Achenbach Jr.

New York & Phila. Frozen Egg Report

Tuesday, April 19, 1994

Prices were unchanged under a generally steady but cautious trade sentiment. Buying activity was mixed as higher asking prices discouraged sales. Raw materials were usually more than adequate for current processing schedules. Floor stocks were in good balance to satisfy current needs.

National Egg Market

Wednesday, April 20, 1994

NATIONAL EGG MARKET-AT A GLANCE: Prices were unchanged to lower on all sizes in the Northeast, generally unchanged elsewhere. The market tone was barely steady to weak. Demand was fair to good where featured and into food service channels, only light to fair elsewhere. Supplies were adequate to ample with light weight eggs in the best balance. Breaking stock supplies were at least adequate for the mostly moderate demand, and prices were lower. Light type hen offerings remained at least adequate for the limited demand, and the trade sentiment remained barely steady to about steady.

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wednesday, April 20, 1994

Trucklot buying interest continued quite irregular. Supplies of .boneless skinless breasts with tenders were balanced with current demand with trading reported at fairly steady prices. Heavy breast cutlets without tenders in trucklot volume was available and slow to clear. Whole breasts were ample to burdensome. Product was offered at sharply lower asking prices but buyers were out of the market and await further developments. Trading was reported in the low 80s and some product was booked with prices to be determined later. Dark meat items and wings were well cleared at listed prices. The trade sentiment was steady.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer Market

Wednesday, April 20, 1994

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds remained good and offerings continued to clear well, particularly on the 3 pound and lighter weights. Live supplies were moderate; weights were generally desirable to heavy. Processing schedules were very heavy and light operations were scheduled for the upcoming Saturday. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 55 to 67 cents. Trade sentiment was fully steady to firm. In the parts complex, bone-in breasts were a burden on some plants and remained slow to clear. Other items varied in availability, but were at least adequate overall.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

APRIL 25-MAY 1, 1994

FULL PINK MOON, APRIL 25.

SHOCKING BEHAVIOR

Charged with "corrupting the morals of youth," playwright-actress Mae West was placed under arrest on April 26, 1926. What did she do to stir up the Society for the Suppression of Vice? West, starring as a prostitute in her play, Sex, was swinging her hips and licking her lips, although it's not known how many youth were actually corrupted. In testimony against West, an undercover policeman stated that she "moved her navel up and down and from right to left" in a belly dance. In April 1927, West was sentenced to ten days in jail and a $500 fine. But it didn't seem to slow her down much. By April 1928, she had written and was starring on Broadway in Diamond Lil.

Today's shocks are tomorrow's conventions.

TIP OF THE WEEK

EARTHWISE

Planning your garden? Don't forget to include plants that will attract beneficial bugs to your garden. Angelica, euonymous, morning glory, and yarrow all bring ladybugs. These friendly beetles attack aphids, leafworms, and leafhoppers. Lacewings (also good at controling aphids) flock to oleander and plants in the carrot family. Trichogramma wasps don't sting people, but they do attack two hundred pest species, including spruce budworm. Plant Queen Anne's lace, oleander, and strawberries to attract them.

ZESTY VEGETABLE SOUP

6 potatoes, peeled, chopped
3 carrots, peeled, chopped
2 onions, chopped
5 cups chicken broth
1 20-ounce can tomatoes
1 20-ounce can creamed corn
½ cup small shell pasta
1 tablespoon chili powder
salt and pepper to taste

Cook potatoes, carrots, and onions in broth in covered pan until almost tender. Add remaining ingredients and bring to boil. Reduce heat, simmer, covered, until shells are tender, stirring often.

Makes 6 servings

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

SOUTHEAST: Showers, mild, clearing and warmer, showers north, sunny south.

MIDWEST: Rainy colder snow north and west, clearing and warming, rainy and warm northeast, floods possible.

NORTHWEST: Cold, snowstorm northeast, sunny and dry coast, then cold and rainy, snow mountains.

SOUTHWEST: Clear and warm, cool California, then colder; rain, snow mountains.

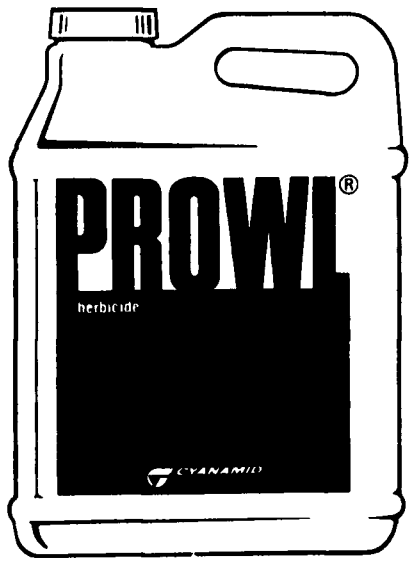
FOR LOW-COST WEED CONTROL IN CORN VELVETLEAF, FOXTAIL AND OTHER ANNUAL GRASSES USE A PROWL® TANK MIX



EFFECTIVE CONTROL PROWL® herbicide with atrazine or bladex stops velvetleaf and foxtail from choking your young corn plants. This tank mix gives you top performance and real economy in corn weed control.

EASY APPLICATION Apply the PROWL tank mix preemergence, or early postemergence after the corn is up, but no bigger than the four-leaf stage. Weeds should be no more than an inch tall. Do NOT incorporate PROWL in corn.

OPINION

Seasonal Farm Labor Act Could Do You In

In 1978, the Pennsylvania General Assembly passed the Seasonal Farm Labor Act-legislation. The Act mirrored federal law that stipulates housing and working conditions' standards for migrant farm workers, employed at a particular farm on a limited and temporary bases. According to the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau this act was approved to regulate working conditions for seasonal employees, not full-time employees on the farm.

The law functioned reasonably well until several court challenges brought by "social advocates" caused regulatory agencies to "revise" their interpretations of this legislation.

For example, the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources (DER) recently issued (Jan. '94) revised regulations that classify housing, provided by farmers to many of our year-round farm employees as "migrant labor camps" and subjects it to inspection by DER. These employees may have worked for the same farmer for ten years, living in the same house provided by the farmer-employer. However DER's new regulations now classify many homes of year-round farm employees as "migrant labor camps."

To make matters worse, the law makes it unlawful for anyone (including the farmer or any housing occupant) to interfere with or prohibit access of another person to this "migrant" housing. This is not just to DER inspectors, but to anyone that has an interest in the "health, safety, welfare, or dignity" of the occupants.

Many year-round employees of farmers now must deal with the fact that their homes have now been magically transformed by DER into "migrant labor camps." By law, or interpretation of it, has made it impossible for the occupant of these houses to legally control access to their own home.

In other areas under the law, so-called social advocates have split "regulatory hairs" to pressure farmers into paying monies to farm workers under the threat of lengthy and costly litigation. The privacy of farm workers is ignored and work on the farm disrupted by these social advocates. They gain access to farm workers under liberal and ambiguous interpretation of the law. Once in contact with workers they file charges on theoretical legal violations, causing havoc in the workers' life and in the daily operation of the farm.

Farmer-employers are considered guilty under these regulations and must prove themselves innocent. Unfortunately, the farmer would need a "Ross Perot" bankroll to fight these technical legal charges. There are few farmers willing or able to afford the prolonged legal process. The farmer is forced to make an economic decision, instead of defending his innocence. The farmer doesn't want to subject himself, his family and his business to spend months and even years in court fighting false charges. Thus, his only real road to legal freedom is to negotiate a settlement to get the charges dropped.

The harassers leave this farmer and impose the same form of torment on another farmer, who is caught in the identical legal web with the same guaranteed results. The law protects the rights of the harassers at the expense of the seasonal farm worker and the farmer-employer. We don't believe this was the intent of the General Assembly when it passed the Seasonal Farm Labor Act.

Legislation, S.B. 1255 introduced by Senator Patrick Stapleton, strikes a reasonable balance in the scope of regulation imposed under the Seasonal Farm Labor Act upon farmers employing and housing farm workers. You will want to contact your state legislator on this one.

To Be Prepared For Fires

Fires may erupt at anytime without warning. If they do occur, are you prepared to deal with them effectively and in a safe manner?

Some items you should consider:

- Do you have fire alarms and smoke detectors installed at strategic locations for early warning? Are they functional? Do you change the batteries twice a year?
- Do you have an evacuation plan for your family and farm animals? Is the plan rehearsed? Is there a place where family members are to assemble after evacuation so they may be accounted for?
- Are fire extinguishers installed in critical places around the home, barn, shop and equipment? Are they operational and serviced once a year? Do family members and workers know how to use them?
- Have you checked your home and farm to identify and eliminate all fire hazards?

To Control Coccidiosis In Calves

Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, reminds us coccidia organisms may severely impair the health and vigor of calves starting at a very young age.

Coccidia oocysts may survive six months or more in the soil and fecal matter. Thus, reinfections are a continued threat to young cattle.

The organism may be killed by extreme temperatures and by prolonged exposure to hot, dry, sunny conditions. Therefore, it is no surprise that coccidiosis is more of a problem during periods when cool, wet, sloppy conditions prevail.

Moving calf hutches to new locations that have been exposed to clean, sunny conditions may help reduce the risk. Calves may be exposed to coccidia organisms soon after birth and for months thereafter.

Calves raised in close confinement and calves under stress are at greatest risk. Thus, it is recommended that calves be fed a coccidiastat in their milk replacer and calf starter and coccidial compounds be fed until cattle weigh 800 pounds.

Coccidiosis is not a problem in all herds. For additional advise and recommendations on coccidiosis, consult your veterinarian.

To Count All Agricultural Jobs

Farming has changed a lot over the last 80 years. Today, many of the jobs performed on the farm at the beginning of the century are now performed off the farm.

Farm- and farm-related industries account for 23 million jobs in the United States. This represents about 17 percent of total employment.

Nearly 71 percent of all farm- and farm-related jobs are located in metropolitan counties. Agricultural wholesale and retail trade account for two thirds of these jobs or about 15 percent of total metropolitan employment.

This wholesale and retail trade segment is the fastest growing segment of agricultural employment. These jobs are located in metropolitan areas because they depend on the size and growth of consumer markets, according to Alan Strock, extension farm management agent.

Thus, we need to rethink who is a farmer and count these farm-related jobs as agriculture. As number of jobs decline in production agriculture, farmers need to expand their thinking to build political coalitions with people in jobs related to farming and small independent business owners.

By including these people who have similar concerns, farmers regain the numbers necessary to have influence in public policy.

Farm Forum

Editor,

Your newspaper is always full of great things to do with agricultural business. From 4-H news to advertising fertilizer. Everything is positive. You try to report the good and bad points of life, the highs and lows. Well it is, my opinion it's time for the readers to wake up and admit there is a problem! Yes a Problem! We as dairy farmers are not getting enough money for our milk! There I said it. Some of us selling our milk to Co-ops own the Co-ops. We pay for every one of our employees from general manager to milk

ON DESTROYING GOD'S WORK?
April 24, 1994

Background Scripture
Romans 14
Devotional Reading
Romans 15: 1-17

If I had the power to do so, I would decree that every Christian congregation read publicly the 14th chaper of Romans every Sunday for the next year. For Romans 14 has a lesson for Christendom that is not being heard and obeyed: "Do not . . . destroy the work of God" (14:20).

The reason that the message does not get through to many of us is that we think of ourselves as advancing, rather than destroying, the work of God. Destroying the work of God, we think, means denying the gospel. Speaking against Jesus Christ, committing heresy, blocking the churches in their efforts. I'm sure that all of the above can be harmful to the work of God, but none so destructive as passing judgment on others.

In Romans 14 Paul repeatedly draws our attention to this destructive behavior. "Who are you to pass judgment on the servant of another?" Paul asks (14:4). "Why do you pass judgment on your brother?" (14:10). And: "Then let us no more pass judgment on one another . . ." (14:13). That should be sufficient repetition to get our attention, but apparently it isn't, for often people standing outside the Christian faith frequently conclude that judging other Christians is what Christianity is all about. For many of us, it is what we seem to do best.

IN GOD'S PLACE

Having stated and restated his admonition, Paul goes on to show us why judging one another is destructive to God's work. For one thing, it puts us in the place where only the Lord himself should be. Judgment belongs to God, not us. He is master of us all, including those whom we think are as wrong as they can be. That's why he asks "Who are you to pass judgment on the servant of another?" Are we the master of others? "It is before his own master that he stands or falls." What he's really saying is 'Do you think you are God?' When we presume to judge another person we are consciously or unconsciously trying to take God's place. Even an idiot should be able to realize how dangerous that is for our own souls.

Secondly, we endanger ourselves because, despite our own perceptions, we all stand on the same ground before our divine Judge. "For we shall all stand before the judgment seat of God" (14:10). Each of us has enough to be concerned with our own security in the face of God's judgment. "So each of us shall give account of himself to God." That is why in the Lord's prayer, Jesus counsels us to pray, "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us." Judgment of others is probably the riskiest, most self-destructive thing a Christian can do.

STUMBLING BLOCKS

Third, our purpose as Christians is to help our brothers, not to judge or otherwise injure them." . . . rather decide never to put a stumbling block in the way of a brother (14:13). If you have any doubt as to whether your behavior is judgmental or not, just ask yourself: "Am I putting a stumbling-block in someone else's way?" If the answer is "yes" or even "maybe," you've got a spiritual problem that, should you ignore it, could be monumental in its consequences.

And then, if you still have doubts, measure yourself and your attitudes toward others against Paul's rule-of-thumb: "For the kingdom of God does not mean food and drink but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit . . . Let us then pursue what makes for peace and mutual upbuilding" (14:19).

If your attitude and actions toward others, particularly those you think wrong, "makes for peace and mutual upbuilding," then you won't have to worry about destroying the work of God.

Dedication Ceremonies Set For Poultry Center

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Department of Poultry Science will hold dedication ceremonies for its new Poultry Education and Research Center (PERC) on Thursday, May 19 at the main university campus in State College.

The PERC includes six separate buildings (central research with incubators and environmental chambers, meat bird, pullet, layer/egg processing/market turkey, breeder, and meat processing) consisting of approximately 50,000 square feet of floor space, constructed at a cost of more than $6 million. The facilities have been designed with both fundamental and applied research in mind, as both commercial equipment and small pens for battery and floor studies are available.

Dedication day will start at 8:15 a.m. with a symposium in Room 101 of the Agricultural Sciences and Industries Building. The program will open with research presentations by two faculty members in the Department of Poultry Science and will conclude with a keynote address by Dr. Bill Stadelman, an emeritus professor of food science and animal (poultry) science at Purdue University.

Stadelman earned his master's in poultry husbandry and doctorate in agricultural biochemistry from Penn State in the 1940s. After arriving at Purdue, he developed an outstanding research and teaching program using both meat birds and eggs that has truly gained him an international reputation.

Governor Robert Casey, Penn State President Joab Thomas, and Dean Lamartine Hood are scheduled to participate in the formal dedication ceremonies at the PERC at 11 a.m. After the dedication, lunch will be provided, followed by guided tours of the facilities.

Surviving this hard winter hasn't been easy. Collapsed buildings, caved-in roofs and water leakage problems are a few of the results of the unusual amounts of snow, ice and rain.

Are you 100% certain that your current policy provides coverage for this type of catastrophe? Ours does. Don't take a chance on getting snowed under next winter. Call the Securus Group today and create value for your future.

AGCO ALLIS
8600 SERIES TRACTORS

36 SPEED CHOICES

AGCO Allis 8600 Series tractors give you 36 speed choices, an electronic engine speed governor and many other quality performance features, as well as a comprehensive 4-year/4,000-hour warranty.

- Speed choices for all conditions. The standard synchropower transmission offers 24 forward and 12 reverse speeds. An optional power Hi-Lo transmission boosts that to 36 speeds both forward and reverse. Both 8600 Series models are AWD with planetary final drive, and a self-adjusting, hydraulically-actuated clutch.
- The air- and oil-cooled engine advantage. The 8600 Series tractors feature the high-output, 6-cylinder, air- and oil-cooled diesel engine that eliminates components that cause downtime in liquid-cooled engines. The 8610 model has a 103 PTO hp engine with a 22% torque rise and the 8630 model has a 120 PTO hp turbocharged engine with a 30% torque rise.
- PTO power and versatility. The independent PTO operates at 540/1,000 rpm with 6- and 21-spline shafts and an electrohydraulically-actuated wet PTO clutch. The 3-point hitch comes standard with telescopic stabilizers: Category II/I on the 8610; Category III/II on the 8630. Optional telescopic lower links are available.
- Quality performance features. The 8600 Series tractors ride on premium Goodyear radial tires. They have hydrostatic steering, a tilt-telescope steering wheel and hydraulically-actuated wet disc brakes on all four wheels for 40% better braking. These models also have electrohydraulically-actuated rear and front differential locks that an operator can manually disengage for tighter turns.

To learn about all the quality features of the 8600 Series tractors, or any of the "orange" line of AGCO Allis tractors ranging from 40 to 128 PTO hp, stop by or call us soon.

Can You Afford To Quit DHIA?

GEORGE F.W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — Maybe you get tired of the inconvenience, the added expense, the new and stricter national regulations, even the push for conversion to electronics that are part of DHIA, particularly the new DHIA.

You wish you could just enjoy milking your cows or goats in peace, keeping a simple wall chart record for each, thus removing yourself from the competitiveness.

It would be cheaper, too, you think. No longer would you have to pay the tester or put up with the delays. Never again would you be hounded by all those questions: When did you breed which cow to what sire? What are numbers of the sire, the cow, the cow's dam? When did you dry off that cow? How much silage, hay and grain do you feed to each? And so on.

Maybe your bank doesn't require you to keep official DHIA records for your mortgage and you don't sell young sires, heifers or embryos from high-record cows with fancy pedigrees.

Perhaps you don't care to use proven AI young sires, which you can get cheaper, but only if you are on DHIA. And maybe you are called on by effective sales reps from milking-machine companies who convince you that their new electronic systems give you everything DHIA offers in records except the official label.

If these "maybe" circumstances describe your situation, then you are a good candidate for thinking: "let's quit DHIA; it'll be easier and cheaper."

You aren't alone. You have company. DHIA has been part of U.S. dairying for 85 years, and though it includes a few more cows every year, it never has covered more than half of all dairy cows in all states. In fact, every year a good number of dairy farmers quit, and the number is barely made up by new participants.

Why?

A new study (Journal of Dairy Science, 77:1994; 1141-1145) from a Midwestern state examined reasons for 148 herd owners quitting DHIA during the last two years.

On profile, the discontinued herds were slightly smaller in herd size and slightly lower in average herd production than the herds continuing on DHIA.

Among four major management areas for using DHIA — culling, mastitis, feeding, estrus — only culling seemed a strong reason for being on DHIA, according to those who discontinued DHIA.

Maybe these herds used bulls instead of AI, even though other studies in that region on the use of AI have demonstrated a significant superiority of between 800 to 1,100 pounds milk per cow per year for herds on AI.

Or maybe they had little mastitis and mainly fed pasture and free choice roughage.

Farmers gave several reasons for quitting DHIA. One-quarter sold the herd; one-eighth replaced DHIA with a new electronic private system and one-eighth went back to hand-written records; one quarter didn't like the tester or the lab (half didn't like the computer center); and one-quarter quit because of cost, despite the fact that another Midwest study had shown that DHIA herds gave 1,800 pounds more milk on average than non-DHIA herds.

What do Delaware records show? Last year we had more cows on record than in any previous year. There were also fewer herds than ever, down from 94 herds 30 years ago to half that. The herd size, however, is the largest ever — 135 cows now, compared to an average 45 cows then.

And while we have made great strides every year for higher and higher milk production averages per cow per herd, we still have tremendous variation in production levels and management parameters. This indicates that some dairy farmers make better use of their records than others, assuming that higher milk production means higher profits.

DHIA management data reveal where and why differences occur in milk production level.

We have repeatedly demonstrated that higher milk levels per cow under prevailing feed prices mean more profit per cow on average, regardless of breed (especially when other DHIA data are considered), and these are warning lights. I will name only six.

No. 1: If a Holstein cow or Swiss goat is testing less than 3.5 percent milk fat (other breeds are correspondingly higher), this is a signal from her DHIA records that you are feeding her too much grain in proportion to roughage and insufficient levels and length of fiber.

Grain should not exceed 60 percent of dry matter of the total daily ration, and fiber should not be less than 17 percent in the total daily ration with a greater amount longer than 1 inch.

You will not only lose money from low testing milk, you will soon have veterinary problems from excess grain feeding, such as acidosis, enterotoxemia, parakeratosis, displaced abomasum, laminitis, etc.

No. 2: If a Holstein or Swiss goat is testing less than 3.2 percent protein during the first four months after lactation begins, you aren't feeding her enough energy to make up for her high milk production demands, thus she is cutting back on her reproduction, coming into only silent estrus or not at all. She is underfed in energy, and you will be losing money because your animals won't conceive again in time. DHIA records could have helped you prevent this; besides, you are getting less money for your milk because of lower proteins-solids contents.

No. 3: If your herd average days in milk is much above 150 days that's a warning that your animals aren't conceiving back in time. You have a major number of your milkers beyond the peak of lactation in the later stages of lactation. When they milk less than they should, they cost more to maintain. Also somatic cell levels tend to go up with later stages of lactation, even when there is no mastitis infection, not even subclinical. And you'll have less than one calf per year from each cow, the mini-

Koontz Crowned State Jersey Queen

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Dairy maid at 13 and state Jersey Queen at 16, Janelle Koontz is on her way to Louisville in November.

The daughter of Wayne and Kathy Koontz of Stan El Jerseys, Bedford RD 4, Janelle is realizing her dream of being a Jersey Queen.

Crowned by outgoing queen, Anna Calhoun, at the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club's annual meetung held at Bedford on April 8, Janelle is growing up on a Jersey farm.

She credits many of her successes to her grandfather, the late Stanley Koontz.

"I still remember how he came home from the hospital before he died and would sit in a lawn chair and coach me on how to handle my cows. He always said my cows were spoiled, but he had a lot to do with spoiling them."

Janelle has a total of nine cows of her own and a host of ribbons and trophies to back up her enthusiasm in the Jersey industry. As the dairy maid, one of Janelle's main goals was to inform the public that sometimes cows are brown. "They aren't always black and white."

At Stan El, Janelle helps extensively with the computer which is used for feeding and breeding purposes and keeps track of the amount of feed consumed by each cow daily. It tells the family how much butterfat and protein each cow is producing. The Koontz family also has a state-of-the-art milking system which allows them to milk 85 cows in 1½ hours.

Leading a well rounded life, Janelle is a cheerleader, on the student council, in chorus, the science olympiad, envir-o-thon, and teen club. She is also active in the Friendly Moo-Moo's 4-H Club.

Runners up were Emily Dietrich, a junior at Shippensburg High School, and Angelina M. Poligardo, a senior at Meyersdale.

Emily is the daughter of Bill and Susan Dietrich and resides in Newburg, Cumberland County. The owner of 13 Jerseys, Emily has shown her animals at county, district and state dairy shows for eight years.

Angelina is the daughter of Dominic and Teresa Poligardo from Meyersdale and owner of 23 Jerseys.

Others in the contest included Deborah Lyn Callan, a sophomore at Edinboro University, and the daughter of Frank and Lynette Callan of Sugar Grove in Warren County; and Samantha Hillyard, a junior at Athens High School, the daughter of Ben and Kathy Hillyard and a resident of Ulster in Bradford County.

She was accompanied by her brother, Leon, in a opening invocation done in song.

Joyce Bupp, correspondent for Lancaster Farming, was the guest speaker. Giving a lively talk on the perils and pluses of dairy farming, Joyce, a Holstein farmer, kept the Jersey people chuckling at her stories.

She told of the cow with the prolapsed uterus they fixed with a darning needle and the water heater they fixed with a broom handle and a rubber glove.

"Farmers," Joyce said, "Find humor where there isn't a lot." She added that, this winter, there were times when another profession (like welfare) looked good.

"But a farm is a great place to bring up your kids," she concluded. "Very few kids who grow up on a farm ever have trouble finding a job."

1993 All-American Jersey Show Participants included: Lee Bailey, Blair County; David Chess, Mercer; Emily Dietrich, Cumberland; Melanie Dietrich, Cumberland; Heather Furry, Crawford; Thomas Greenleaf, Blair; Jody Hewitt, Chester; Suzanne Jackson, Tioga; Erin Mowry, Mercer; Amy Plummer; Paul Plummer, Montgomery; Mary Anne Rearick, Centre County; Brian Reichard, Franklin; Curtis Reichard, Franklin; and Michelle Ryan, Dauphin.

Betsy Dupuis was presented with a gift and given many good wishes as she resigned as Youth Chairman, a position she had held for a number of years.

Farewell remarks were also given by Anna Calhoun who has participated in numerous 4-H and FFA shows, attended the All American Jersey Show and the Pennsylvania State Farm Show.

Yes. The Sensenigs are now using Posilac, Monsanto Corp.'s recombinant form of bovine somatotropin (BST) that was approved last year by the Food and Drug Administration as an over-the-counter drug for use in lactating cows to stimulate additional milk production.

Although approved for use last year, the sale of the product was delayed until this February because of a first-ever moratorium imposed to determine potential economic impact.

(Determination of a product's potential economic impact had not previously been considered as a function of the FDA, since its purpose is to make objective determinations of safety and efficacy of products based on factual science. Some people were upset with the FDA's seeming political acquiescence to those objecting to the concept of Posilac. The argument is that in the future, given such a precedent, the FDA would be able to ban food or drugs because of social or economic impact, not because of anything dangerous to health in the materials.)

But even before using BST, his herd average — at more than 30,000 pounds — was the top in Lebanon County and one of the highest in the state.

The couple has been farming at their place since 1987.

According to Sensenig, the desire to use BST was to increase the economic base of the farm, i.e. higher milk output over financial input to get maximum cash-return flow.

The decision to use BST only came after having done plenty of homework first, and in talking with his consultants — before, during and while now using it.

Sensenig, 30, said he expects to continue using it because it works for him and it doesn't hurt his cows.

The 177-acre farm, the equipment, and the cows are the investment upon which he, his wife and four children depend to pay off debt and keep themselves healthy.

Anything that would hurt the cows would hurt the Sensenigs. "We praise the Lord for the way He has blessed us," Nelson said.

With that much at risk, he said that is why he is using such modern techniques as milking three times per day, feeding TMR, designing barns specifically for the cow rather than the cow-man, stressing cow comfort in every aspect, etc.

And, he said it is really the reason he is using BST. "It's a tool, just like any other tool," he said. "Making milk takes good management."

The Holsteins at Sensenigs are not a rare breed or even particularly the showcase of superior genetic achievement by a breeder, although Nelson does his own AI work and is getting some attention on genetics.

The majority of the herd consists of the cows and offspring that came from a farm where the rolling herd average was about 15,500 pounds of milk. Some other cows in the herd were purchased from farms with higher herd averages, but nothing close to what the animals have achieved at the Sensenig farm.

The same story has been told by researchers and many experts: management makes milk, not magic.

In fact, the genetic limit is not yet known as to how high an average production can be expected by a herd of any dairy cattle. Sensenigs' herd average could increase.

Glen Flickenger, an independent nutritionist who runs his own business, 21st Century Consulting, has been working with Sensenig since last year and the two have known each other since 1985.

"I can see Nelson obtaining a short term goal of (an average herd production of) 32,000 (pounds of milk), and obtaining a moderate (several years) goal of 35,000 (pounds of milk). I see him doing that," Flickenger said Wednesday during a telephone interview.

Flickenger praised Sensenig highly.

"There's just no substitute for (Nelson's) management," Flickenger said. "Nelson is a topnotch manager and the majority of Neslon's milk comes from Nelson's management. The thing is, I make a recommendation and go home. He's the one who makes it work. He carries it out. He gets the milk out of those cows.

"To me Nelson is the manager of the next century. He wants the people he works with to feed him information, to feed him the new technology and then he implements it and he is constantly looking for new information.

"He is outstanding, really outstanding. He's the kind of guy everybody wants to feed, because he'll make their product look good," Flickenger said.

Sensenig said that he works closely with his nutritionist and veterinarian, who also work with each other very closely concerning Sensenig's herd.

The trio consists of Sensenig, Flickenger and Dr. Timothy Trayer, an associate with Hutchison, Trayer and Reed, in Denver, Lancaster County.

Every two weeks, or within several days of two weeks, the three get together at the farm and do a herd health check.

"I find out when (Dr. Trayer) is coming and stay with him through the herd check, and we talk about it; about what he's seeing, what I'm seeing," Flickenger said. "In between visits we talk on the phone.

"I love working with Dr. Trayer," Flickenger said, "I realy do. It's a pleasure. The thing I like most is his honesty. If he doesn't like what I'm doing, he'll tell me, and I like that."

Trayer wasn't available for comment.

The background to the Sensenigs is that Nelson started off as an electrician after having grown up on his father's hog and beef farm. For three years he worked as an electrician. Then, at age 20, he married.

He and his wife Susan then dairy farmed for three years at Philhaven Farms in Lebanon County.

According to Nelson, the experience he got working there, under the tutelage of farm manager Aaron Shirk, is what prepared him for farming as an independent. "That's where I learned how to milk cows," Nelson said.

"I asked a lot of questions and he gave me a lot of answers. He was very patient," Nelson said of Shirk.

Susan got her start growing up on a dairy farm milking cows as a teenager. She is as involved in the milking at the farm as Nelson.

The farm they took over had been purchased by Nelson's father, Eugene, in 1985. It was a steer and hog operation with an old bank barn and other buildings, including a second house.

Large wooden ear corn cribs were converted into heifer stalls; one house was razed, as well as some other equipment buildings.

Part of the rock outcropping behind the barn was removed to provide more space behind the bank barn. From the side of the barn, Sensenig put on a single-story extension for the 92 tie stalls. He built a milk house with a 1,500-gallon tank (though he could use a larger one) about where the buildings meet.

In the back of the barn, three silos were erected. A 6-month storage, circular manure pit was built off of one of the front corners to receive the manure from the gutters.

Actually, his father and brothers worked a lot on building the new facility. Nelson did also, and with his electrician background, he did all the wiring.

In fact, it is still undergoing small improvements.

The approach the Sensenigs take to farming is to be aggressive in problem prevention, Nelson said. He said his goal is to learn as much as possible, to ask questions and ask for reasons when advice is given.

In order to keep the herd at a high level of production, Nelson tracks his DHIA records for changes. He tests his feed when it changes. He tests moisture content, etc..

Nelson said that, just like the reproductive problem he had at the farm, he knows there are many almost hidden things that can go wrong in managing a dairy operation, and the longer it takes to detect, the longer it takes to cure, if there is a cure.

It can be little, almost incedental things too.

He said that in one instance his 9-year-old son Joel was sweeping up some feed that had been spilling from the conveyor next to the Rissler TMR mixer and some of the feed apparently got under the scale on the mixer.

Until he discovered the error — by realizing that what he was measuring was much more than it should be for the volume — every time he measured an ingredient, the measure was off.

The problem was quickly corrected and apparently didn't cause any problems, but it was memorable because it re-emphasized the need to pay attention, to be analytical and systematic, to consider and monitor the entire operation on one level, and also to consider and monitor each component of the operation.

He said he may now consider using a known weight to do an occassional calibration check of his scales.

The high production levels at the Sensenig farm were not widely known, but they were talked about locally.

Even though Nelson officially requested that his Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association records be kept private last year, people tend to find out in ballpark figures, how another is doing. Local dairymen familiar with the Sensenig operation already knew of his high production.

The request was made by Sensenig that his herd information not be published during that time for privacy reasons, which includes the well-known reason that nothing attracts friend, foe and salesmen like success.

Sensenig didn't need to attract anyone's attention — he had his hands full with the three-times per day milking, staying on top of his farm work and herd management, and with his family.

The old bank barn at Sensenig's dairy farm was remodeled with the expansion toward the house, the three silos and the milkhouse, just visible behind the automobile, among other things. It is a modern operation designed for cow comfort.

The same is true with Susan, who does the morning milking at 5 a.m., helps with the 1 p.m. milking and currently helps with the 9 p.m. milking, while Merle Wise, who does evening milkings sometimes, is busy with his regular job. And she has the four children — ranging in age from 1 to 9 — to care after.

Their schedule is full, by many standards, but Nelson said they do take time away from the farm. Three times per year, they take a vacation.

"You have to get away from it, to clear your head, if you want to keep enjoying it," he said, adding that he knows of many others who continue to stick to the daily routine so much they end up bitter.

Another benefit in getting away from the farm for a day or two is that it can help with recognizing subtle changes that may get overlooked in a day-in-day out routine.

Those are the changes Nelson seeks, the small ones before they get big ones.

Some people have suggested that those who seek to produce a lot of milk from each cow may be digging their own financial grave. The theory is that high numbers are possible, but the return doesn't justify the effort or overhead.

Nelson said he can understand that, but it isn't the case for his operation.

"Yes, we have a large debt load, but we are managing it well," Nelson said.

"Yes, we have a large debt load, but we are managing it well," Nelson said.

As far as feeding a TMR, his recipe on Tuesday for 86 cows was for 425 pounds of supplement; 1,320 pounds of haylage; 1,075 pounds of silage; 890 pounds of high moisture corn; 255 pounds of cotton seed.

The supplement he uses is formulated by his nutritionist. And it is custom made.

The haylage and silage are farm raised. The cotton seed bought.

But working with an independent nutritionist is better for him, Sensenig said, because the consultant is not tied into any specific milling operation. In fact, though Flickenger said he doesn't do a lot of it, he puts out Sensenig's orders for bid.

Flickenger can calculate the components Sensenig needs, send out several requests for bids to several mills by fascimile machine, and then after about a two-week period review the offers.

Nelson said the differences between high and low bids has varied as much as $20 per ton.

Sensenig said he enjoys the team work approach to farming also.

"You have to surround yourself with people who are aggressive and up on the latest and who ask you questions that make you think," Nelson said.

"It's becoming more important to me to have a good relationship (exist between) the vet and nutritionist and they can work together to solve problems that arise."

Flickenger said the Sensenigs are special, enjoyable people.

"Because he loves what he does, he does it well," Flickenger said. "He doesn't neighbor-farm. Nelson does what is right for his farm at the given time that it is right.

"I see a lot of young farmers follow what the neighbor is doing. Nelson won't care if everyone else is mowing hay, if his is not (at the right maturity). And he doesn't care if no one else is mowing hay. He will, if his is right and that's what makes him different," Flickenger said.

How Does Your Herd Compare?

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — These data are calculated using information pulled from Pennsylvania DHIA's mainframe computer each week. It is a one-week summary representing approximately one-fourth of the herds on test, as they are tested monthly.

These data are valuable from a business management standpoint and can be used for comparing your operations to the averages from about one-fourth of the herds across the state.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's this week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania. Remember these are averages so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Spring Conference Report

DAVE SLUSSER
General Manager

During the last three months, I have met hundreds of DHIA members, and particularly all of the employees of Pa. DHIA. It is really inspirational to know that we have so many friends and supporters on the farm, and in the dairy industry. DHIA is changing nationally. Pennsylvania is of course involved with that change.

I have a set policy for myself to attend at least one county committee or board meeting in every county per year. So far, I have attended 10 county meetings, most of which involved the field technicians. I give a report on the Pa. DHIA association, and then we have a round table discussion.

The county committee duties include evaluating and assisting the state association in providing DHIA services. By all working together, we can do a much better job serving our members. If your county has not yet met with me, please let me know your meeting dates, and I will attend.

Weekly I meet with Dean Amick, Dixie Burris, Jim Boyer and Jim Garrity. We discuss the comments and recommendations that come back from the county committee meetings. Many recommendations that come from the counties have already been instituted, one being the color report forms.

The field service on Thursday, April 14 completed the Spring Technician Training Conferences. There were 14 conferences altogether of which I was able to attend 8 of them. After meeting so many of our field technicians, and working with them, I am more confident than ever about our future. These employees work where the rubber meets the road. They come into your farm every month, and provide a service second to none. They are Pa. DHIA in your barn, and all the rest of us support them in their work.

Because of the work they do and the management information Pa. DHIA provides, hundreds of Pa. DHIA members will be able to survive these troubled economic times.

At each meeting, technicians shared their ideas on how to better serve our members. Another important accomplishment for our technicians has been the mastering of the laptop computer. Half of the conference time was spent working on their computer skills with our Pennsylvania DHIA DRPC staff. Over 2 hours of each technician conference was spent on computer functions and on farm reports.

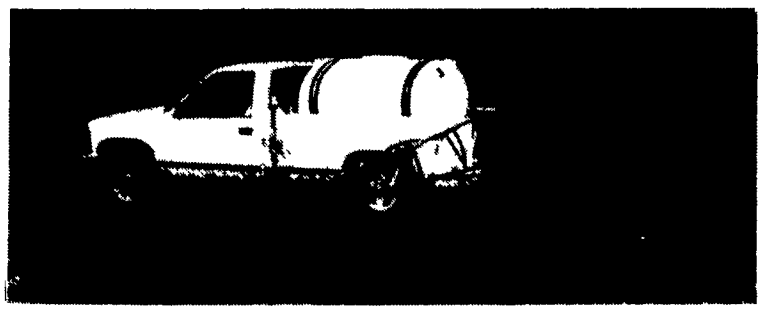
502T Pull-Type Sprayer

Establishing quality standards in pull-type sprayers began over 20 years ago with the Ag Chem Model 402 sprayer, and today the Model 502T is carrying on the tradition. With a formed steel channel frame for extra durability and a tongue that attaches directly to the axle for maximum pulling strength, the chassis of the 502T is a rugged performer. Axle choices include the single configuration or, for maximum stability, the tandem axle design. Axles are row crop adjustable from 60 inches to 80 inches and wheel hubs are the 6-bolt type. Wheel rims (10"x15") and tires (11Lx15, 6-ply) are also available.

Standard features for this sprayer include a loading platform and a 2,000 lb rated tongue jack. Boom Options: • 45' Hydraulic Fold & Level Boom
• 47½' & 60' Manual Fold Boom

SK400 Skid-Mount Sprayer



The Ag Chem SK400 Skid-Mounted Sprayer is an ideal system for a custom operator who wants to cover acres fast and efficiently It easily slides in and out of a standard pickup bed and is recommended for use with 3/4 ton or larger vehicles. When the unit is not being used, it rests on four conveniently built-in leg stands.

Our 47½ foot suspension boom features our unique 3 section quick-fold system (manually operated) and breakaway boom arms that automatically return to the spraying position after striking an obstruction. The boom is crop height adjustable, and its arms fold forward to rack along the side of the pickup bed. Hydraulic options include boom leveling and our new boom fold system.

Penn State Dairy Club Exposition Today

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The 69th Penn State Dairy Science Club Dairy Exposition will be held today at the Ag Arena, beginning at 8:30 a.m. with cattle fitting and showing competition among club members and other interested Penn State students. A champion fitter and showman will be named in each of three divisions: amateur, intermediate, and professional, from which the show's Grand Champion and Reserve Grand Champion will be crowned.

In addition to the competition, several fun events are planned for all ages, youth to alumni. Penn State President Joab Thomas will participate in the annual celebrity milking contest, and several faculty members will get into the spirit of competition as they try to win the calf showmanship contest. Other special events include a milk chugging contest, calf dressing, alumni showing contest, and cow pie bingo.

The culmination of the day's events will be the annual awards and recognition banquet, where club members will be rewarded for their work throughout the year. Awards will also be given to winning dairy judges from the spring contest, Dairy Science Club Young Dairyman and Dedicatee, and the Department of Dairy and Animal Science Distinguished Dairy Science Alumni.

Penn State's 1994 Outstanding Young Dairyman is Mary Ann Keith, a 1990 Dairy and Animal Science alumnus. During her undergraduate education at Penn State, Keith served as secretary of the Penn State Dairy Science Club in 1988 and president in 1990. She also was an Ag Advocate and the 1988 Ms. College of Agriculture. Keith was a founding member and 1990 president of Sigma Alpha sorority, a member of the Coaly Society and Alpha Zeta fraternity, and 1990 Outstanding Senior in the College of Agricultural Sciences.

Currently, Keith is agriculture administrator at Mid-State Bank, where she evaluates loan requests and handles agriculture transactions for new and existing customers. She also lends a hand on the family farm as night and relief milker. In addition, Keith volunteers with various state and local community organizations including the Pennsylvania State Grange, Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences Alumni Society Board of Directors, Penn State Dairyman's Club Board of Directors, Huntington County Extension Board, and the Altoona/Blair County Chamber of Commerce. She also donates time to the Pennsylvania Rural Leadership program and the Holstein Foundation Young Dairy Leader's Institute.

Penn State Dairy Exposition Dedicatee

The club has named Robert "Whitey" McKown its 1994 Club Dedicatee. Born and raised on a dairy farm in Apollo, Pennsylvania, he came to Penn State in 1947 after attending Clarion State Teacher's College. As a dairy production major, McKown was an active member of the Penn State Dairy Science Club. He was named Grand Champion Showman at the 1948 Dairy Expo and 1949 winner of the spring judging contest. He also competed on the Penn State Dairy Judging Team, finishing fifth high individual at the Waterloo contest. McKown also found time to play varsity basketball at Clarion State and Penn State.

Upon graduation in 1951, he became farm manager at Wernersville State Hospital, a 1250-acre farm in Berks County, where he and new wife Jeanne purchased their first registered Holsteins.

In 1956, they moved to Sandy Creek, New York, where McKown became editor of the Pennsylvania Holstein News. He currently is senior vice president of livestock advertising for Holstein World. In addition to overseeing their advertising programs, McKown reports on Holstein shows, sales, meetings, and other related events. His work has taken him across the United States, Canada, Japan, and Korea.

McKown's original herd grew to about 100 head. Over the last 14 years, twenty Excellent Holsteins were bred at MooKown Farm in Belleville, New York, with many other Excellent cows raised on the farm. The herd has earned several PBR awards, and its 1993 classification BAA was 107.2 percent, with a DHIR average for 47 lactations of 24,099 lb. milk, 822 lb. fat, and 763 lb. protein. Averaging $1,650 per head, the MooKown herd was dispersed in June 1993, 39 years after its establishment.

McKown has been active in his community through involvement with Holstein and DHIR county associations, fair boards, cattle judging, Boy Scouts, Little League coaching, and the Methodist Church.

In 1991, McKown was selected as World Dairy Exposition Industry Person of the Year. After serving several years on the Dairy Shrine Board, he was elected president in 1986. He has twice been a showmanship judge at the club Expo and is a lifetime member of the Penn State Alumni Association and a member of the Penn State Dairyman's Club.

Conference

Our technicians were asked to name something good about working for Pa. DHIA, and the remark I heard far more than anything else was, "I love and care for my farm families." They really love you, and care for your future. God Bless them, and God Bless you!

Our laboratory and field training program has just completed the quality certification from National DHIA. The lab scored a 99 percent. The field service scored a pass. National DHIA QC now scores field service only pass or fail. Historically we have always scored 100 percent. I wish the scoring system had not changed because it does not give a true picture of our field service. I can assure you that they are the best in the country. Our DRPC service will be scored later in the summer. I wish that these scores were public information nationwide. If it were, Pa. DHIA would rank near the top, if not the top.

We are in the process of making some changes in State College. The West College Avenue office will be closed, June 30, and we will all move into the laboratory building on Orchard Road. Also, we are making some personnel changes in our milk testing laboratory.

All of these changes are for economic reasons, so we can provide the best service at competitive prices. However, during the next 2 months our turn around time may slow down some. I ask you to be patient with us until our new people get better trained at their work.

We, at Pa. DHIA are honored to serve you. If you have any concerns, please write or call me at 800-344-8378. Our Pa. DHIA members and their profitability are the reason that we exist.

Delay On Worker Protection Standards Will Help Safety

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Postponing enforcement of new Worker Protection Standards for agricultural pesticides will result in maximum compliance with new regulations and better worker protection, according to State Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff.

Wolff commended President Clinton and Members of Congress for taking action to delay enforcement of the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) new Worker Protection Standard (WPS) for agricultural pesticides by almost nine months, until Jan. 1, 1995.

A postponement in enforcement of the new Standard had been sought by the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture (NASDA) because of delays in EPA's completion of education and training materials and over serious flaws in parts of the regulation.

lishing a meeting in January this year to discuss some options to increase the food distribution system in the city of Philadelphia, home to about 5 million people. Already, three farmers markets are in place, including the Reading Terminal market in center city Philadelphia. Two are scheduled to start in May, with a plan to bring a total of 10 markets altogether to the city during the next year and a half, according to Perry.

The Reading Terminal market is a "traditional" farmers market, selling food directly to institutions in the city and providing for the sale of produce at the Reading Terminal Market. The Trust is working to make sure "more Pennsylvania-grown farm-fresh food ends up in stores in the area," said Perry.

In a telephone interview, Perry indicated the Trust is more interested in having farmers set up direct-sale contracts rather than setting up specific auction sites such as exist throughout the region. They want to elminate the "middleman" and keep bureaucracy to a minimum.

The Trust conducted a meeting late in January this year to obtain input from farmers. Another meeting is planned for next month, according to Perry.

The Reading Terminal Farmers' Market is working to contact farmers groups, such as the Lancaster Farmland Trust and others, to spread the word about the potential of marketing produce.

Also as important, the Trust wants to help market the products with a specific label, such as used by New Jersey markets ("Jersey Fresh") or statewide commodity organizations ("Washington State Apples"). The label cannot be limited to Pennsylvania-grown produce, since much of the produce comes from the tri-state region. A suggested name would be "Delaware Valley Produce."

Interested farmers should contact Perry at Reading Terminal Farmers' Market Trust, 1411 Walnut Street, Suite 200, Philadelphia, PA 19102, (215) 928-1029.

Project groups such as the Regional Infrastructure For Sustainable Agriculture (RISA), a partnership which includes Penn State University, the Rodale Institute, and the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture, are working to help farmers market their produce, according to Jonda L. Crosby, RISA project associate.

RISA sponsored the January meeting with farmers and the Reading Terminal.

RISA examines "what is happening at the farm level and its effects on food distribution in the region," said Crosby. "Southeast Pennsylvania is one of the most productive agricultural areas in the world and is among the most threatened from urban pressures in the U.S."

RISA involves 10 counties in the southeastern portion of the state. Through meetings, surveys, and other projects, RISA is trying "building a unified platform of issues that affect agriculture," said Crosby. After the assessment phase is completed in the late summer this year, grant resources will be allocated to address the barriers to sustaining agriculture, she indicated.

According to Rochelle Kelvin, RISA Metro Farmer Networks Project leader, the group is analyzing the needs of farmers through three separate surveys and focus groups. The results will be available sometime in the early summer, according to Kelvin.

One survey, titled "Consumer Perceptions And Attitudes About Regional Agriculture In Southeast Pennsylvania," interviewed 1,214 consumers in a wide variety of supermarkets and farmers' markets in southeastern Pennsylvania.

Another survey, sent to more than 1,500 farmers, asked questions regarding agricultural practices, trends, and barriers to long-term farming for dairy and vegetable farmers in the region. Another smaller survey went to about 35 organic farmers in the region, asking questions about the marketing needs of these growers.

At a recent meeting, there was interest by farmers in marketing directly at a farmers' market that is taking shape in Norristown. At this time, about 12-15 farmers are committed.

For more information about RISA, contact Crosby at the Berks County Cooperative Extension, P.O. Box 520, Leesport, PA 19533-0520, (610) 378-1135.

Scientists Study Effects Of Mastitis On Reproduction

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Mastitis, the dairy industry's most pervasive animal health problem, may be costing farmers more than they think. Each year, farmers lose up to $200 per cow each year in lost milk, culled cows, veterinary fees and other expenses. Annual losses from mastitis total $150 million in Pennsylvania and $2 billion in North America.

Now researchers in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences are learning that mastitis also may be a factor in bovine embryo mortality. Veterinary scientists Dale Moore and William Sischo are investigating a possible link between coliform mastitis and changes in the reproductive cycle of infected cows.

"Some types of mastitis are caused by E. coli bacteria or other organisms that have endotoxins in their cell walls," Moore said. "When those bacteria die inside the mammary gland, toxins are released. The cow's immune system responds and, after a series of biochemical events, prostaglandin is produced. This chemical mediator is associated not only with pain but also with reproduction."

Moore suspects that prostaglandin released in response to mastitis short-circuits a cow's reproductive cycle. "A layer of tissue called the corpus luteum, which grows on the ovary after a cow ovulates, may be the key," Moore said. "If the cow conceives, the corpus luteum produces progesterone, which maintains pregnancy.

Progesterone is produced at maximum levels during days six through 17 of the cow's 21-day cycle. "Normally, if conception doesn't occur, the cow's endometrium produces natural prostaglandin, dissolving the corpus luteum so that she can ovulate again," Moore said. "If bacterial endotoxin from mastitis stimulates her immune system and prostaglandin is produced, the corpus luteum could be dissolved. Once that happens, the pregnancy is over."

The researchers have studied 75 cows from Penn State's dairy herd since the project began. "We're not inducing mastitis in any animals, but if a cow is diagnosed with coliform mastitis, we study her," Moore said.

"Because hormone levels reveal whether the reproductive cycle is disrupted, we monitor blood progesterone every four days for a whole cycle. We also check the ovaries to see if a corpus luteum is present when mastitis is diagnosed, and whether it regresses as the infection runs its course."

Weather's Right, So Idea Garden Goes In

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Plant•ing fe•ver — n. 1 a : The incredible urge, when the weather turns just right, to plant. b : the state of mind when planting.

About 12 Lancaster County Master Gardeners know what planting fever was like this past week. The rains passed through late in the day Tuesday and the sun broke out clearly Wednesday morning. The sun warmed things up.

It was irresistible.

To Idea Garden coordinator and Master Gardener Hans Lienhard, it was warm enough, even in the 60s, to take a chance that we won't have a frost. So out came the 1,200 plants in 14 varieties, obtained from Good Harvest Vegetable Farm and Greenhouse, Strasburg, to adorn the entrance and side of the Farm and Home Center.

The Master Gardeners — spades, shovels, and wheelbarrows in hand — moved mulch and dug away, beginning at about 8 a.m. Wednesday. It only took about four hours before all the varieties for the annual Idea Garden were planted.

For some of the plants, such as the salvias, cold weather, especially a frost, could have a dramatic effect. But many of the perennials are winter hardy and could take a little nip now and then.

"We're hoping the weather will hold up," said Lienhard, pushing a spade to the already wet earth. Geraniums, petunias, salvias, marigolds, Alyssum, and more will bloom in the coming months around the building perimeter of the Farm and Home Center.

Already, the cold winter has had an effect on the perennials, according to Lienhard, delaying their bloom by more than two weeks. "But in the long run," he said, "it all evens out.

"Things are coming up much faster now that the sun's out."

Last year, the gardeners put the Idea Garden in late, because of unusually cold weather into May. But this year, the overall cold weather "kind of slowed us down and we were delayed in getting to work on the ground," he said.

Two weeks ago the gardeners were out tilling up the ground and working in peat moss. Also, a 10-10-10 fertilizer was worked in the ground for season-long fertilization.

This was the first year, according to Lienhard, that the gardeners did a soil test, which came back nearly average on pH, but some soil additions, including lime, were needed.

An open house to showcase the Idea Garden will be held in August, said Lienhard.

For many who want to start gardens of their own, this is the place to get some ideas of what will work, including the hardier perennials.

The Master Gardeners — spades, shovels, and wheelbarrows in hand — moved mulch and dug away, beginning at about 8 a.m. Wednesday. From left, Hans Lienhard and Pam Oles.

This was the first year, according to Lienhard, that the gardeners did a soil test, which came back nearly average on pH. But some soil additions, including lime, were needed.

For many who want to start gardens of their own, this is the place to get some ideas of what will work, including the hardier perennials. Here, Carol Stoltzfus waters the geraniums.

Two weeks ago the gardeners were out tilling up the ground and working in peat moss. Also, a 10-10-10 fertilizer was worked in the ground for season-long fertilization.

Lancaster County Master Gardeners know what planting fever was like this past week. The rains passed through late in the day Tuesday and the sun broke out clearly Wednesday morning. From left, Hans Lienhard, Elaine Fisher, and Pam Daughton work mulch into the garden.

haulers. We pay for advertising and printing, hats, pens, paper, chairs and desks as well as offices and everything else.

How come I can't afford to pay my expenditures on my farm? I give them a product to sell for me. All I am doing is creating jobs for someone else and I get all the grief and I can't even afford to buy anything extra. Heads should roll. If my job is not done properly I get ashamed of myself, I am one of the Proud Farmers of America. We have so much pride we are ashamed to admit to anyone there's a problem. There are a lot of agribusinesses that advertise in your paper that could do a lot better in sales if they would stand up and not be afraid to open their mouths and back the farmers of America. Somebody better get the courage and strength to say enough is enough.

The farmers, however, few that there are today, are the back bone of this country and our country revolves around us. Do you think it's time we got a better price for our milk so we can get this country revolving again? Anyone reading this letter and starts laughing and trying to put me down in any way doesn't deserve to be a farmer. Farmers have to show how much bigger we are. Not to fight and ridicule each other and say that someone is trying to cause trouble. If you are still laughing, shame on you, because only you alone control your destiny. If you only knew how few farms are left in our country and how we give our milk away. Please unite your efforts no matter how big you think you are, no matter how much better you pretend to be. Stop hiding behind your computer program. Who cares who 's laughing at you. Just remember he's in the same boat as you and he shouldn't be in the boat.

It's time to get the co-ops and processors back to work for us so we can hold our heads up once again and join together to keep the ones laughing at bay. They think we will never unite to one organization. Let's show them how wrong they are. Let's get our money back from co-ops who don't want to fight for a better price for us. We pay the dues so they can have a job.

Let's join together so the N.R.A. members could have a place to hunt! Let's get them behind us. We own the land of America! We are always giving and giving because we like to show people how we were raised with pride and caring about others' feelings.

Giving always feels better than receiving. Anyone laughing yet? I am not afraid to ask for help. If anyone can get the N.R.A. people to help us get the bad wood out of our pockets, please don't be afraid to do it and let me know also. Tell your neighbors and get together. Please UNITE with them. Maybe the Better Business Bureau or some other group can help. But for your own sake stand up and shout for help. Get mad and keep your head. Admit there is a problem. Look your wife and kids in the eyes and shout let's UNITE together across America.

I want to be able to send my kids to college someday and I don't want to send my wife off to work someplace to do it. I don't want to have to put more cows on or build a bigger barn to house them. The answer is getting a better price today, immediately, and changing a few laws to suit "OUR" need for a change. Put the shoe on the other foot and put money in the bank now, or in our local stores, or in our community and keep it in our country.

Change the law! How? By uniting together everyone of us, sort out the Judases and traitor and replace them with one of you. You are smarter than you think. You kept your farm so far didn't you? Maybe some of the people who sold out have some good ideas of who the bad guys are, maybe they can help more than they know.

Please get your confidence back and your courage up and fight. Show each other we can take on the world to make it a better place, let's keep our jobs, our homes, our land and our love for our country. If you are still laughing don't let me know about it.

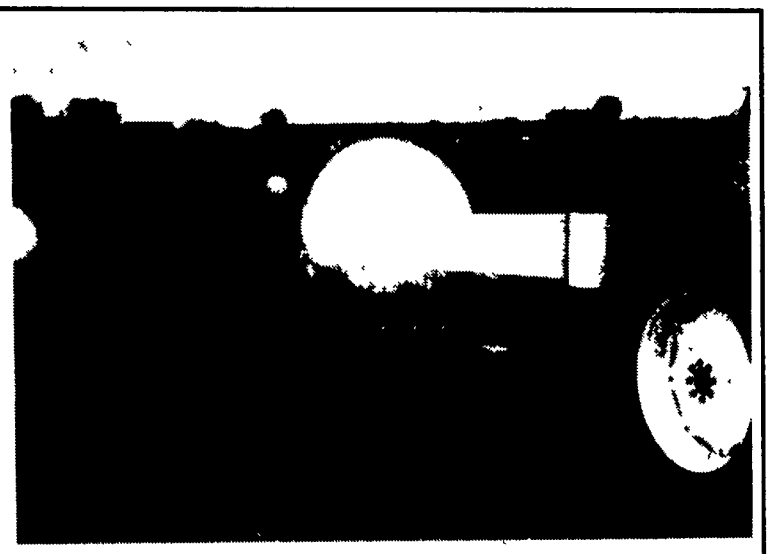
TOP 10 REASONS



WHY YOU SHOULD BUY A TANCO BALE WRAPPER

TANCO	COMPETITION
1. Five (5) points of support on turntable: Four heavy duty rollers add stability and support to the perimeter of the turntable in addition to the main central shaft. This allows Tanco wrappers to safely wrap the heaviest silage bales on rough or uneven ground.	Competition uses one central shaft to support the entire turntable mechanism
2. Single solid belt on turntable: The single belt enables Tanco wrappers to effectively wrap misshapen or soggy bales providing a positive surface for bale rotation.	Competition uses either no belts between rollers, or multiple belts which can allow bales to sag and slip.
3. Adjustable extendable axle: On trailed models the extendable axle provides a wide, stable wheel base when loading bales. Eliminates the need for counter weights.	Competition must add counterweights or tandem axles as options to effectively handle silage bales
4. Top rollers on turntable: Extra rollers provide security to keep bales in place when wrapping at high RPM's (25) or on uneven terrain.	Competition - None.
5. Unloading ramp on trailed models: The ramp allows bales to be unloaded gently. When a wrapped bale falls hard it can "burp." Once it "burps" the bale does not re-seal. The ramp gives a smooth transition between the ground and turntable.	Competition - optional drop mats or ramps available.
6. Optional "High Rise" axle kit for soft ground conditions.	Compare!
7. Models available to fit every individual need, including machines to wrap big square bales. Tanco was first to build a large square bale wrapper, and continues to produce advancements in bale wrapping technology.	Limited product lines.
8. Positive bale positioning: While being wrapped, bales are rotated the exact distance required to obtain optimum coverage.	Competition uses continuous hydraulic advance. Bales can slip or over-rotate giving an uneven wrap.
9. Durability: Tanco's subframe is one of the heaviest of any machines available in North America. The low profile design keeps silage bales closer to the ground with a low center of gravity for stability. Tanco's features are the result of years of experience and input from hundreds of individual, and commercial users.	Competition - Compare!
10. Price: From a basic 3 point Model AW200, to the trailed Model AW400 with automatic cut & start, bale and batch counter, and tractor seat controls, Tanco prices are very competitive. Pay less for more features and durability than any other bale wrapper on the market.	Competition - Compare!

Agriculture Fights Back On False Claims

been found to not be up to the challenge of animal agriculture, and some of the statements that have been made by animal activists," Curtis said. "This bill attempts to bring them in and hold them to their false statements.

"The generic laws on the books in several states have not proven to be very effective, and there is a move by several national commodity organizations to try to see state laws enacted that will make it possible to be more specific about disparagement of agricultural products.

"It is very well known that agriculture has been hurt in the veal industry that came under the onslaught of criticism about 15 years ago in the U.S. Beginning about five years ago, veal began to feel the real impact. The way the American veal industry has been able to maintain stability has been by taking advantage of the export market. The domestic demand for special fed veal has really gone down, probably as a direct result of false statements that have been made about animal production.

"We believe all agriculture is vulnerable, and we think it is a real threat to the vitality of agriculture and animal agriculture. That's why we are very glad to see this legislative effort," Curtis said. "We are pleased to see Representative Miller bring this bill to the Pennsylvania legislature, and we hope it will pass."

Miller said that after only one week of circulation, 20 bi-partisan co-sponsors have already come forth for the bill. In addition to the Grange, other organizations listed as supporting the legislation were the Pennsylvania Livestock Association; Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association; Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, and Pennsylvania for the Responsible Use of Animals.

The bill would make individuals who make false statements against food and other commodities financially liable for those remarks. "We introduced this legislation because unfounded claims are being made by non-scientific groups that lead to economic harm to farmers and other producers," Miller said. "Farmers constantly need to defend allegations that their products are in some way harmful to consumers. This bill was introduced because agricultural and aquacultural products and commodities constitute an important and significant portion of the state economy.

"Agriculture is our number one industry, but some people don't realize it. What we envision happening is that before people blatantly make a statement without sound scientific substantiation, they will have to research their facts. And, they are going to be more careful about making damaging claims. The bill is about responsibility," Miller said.

Gordon Hiller, State Grange president, said an anti-disparagement law has been passed in several other ag-oriented states, and he urged members of Pennsylvania's general assembly to enact a law here, too.

"The vitality of Pennsylvania's commodities is crucial to the economic stability and continued growth of the Commonwealth," Hiller said. "False, uninformed or unsubstantiated disparaging statements only serve to damage our credibility and needlessly erode consumer confidence."

Disparagement in the bill means the publication to a third party of a false factual statement that concerns the plaintiff's specific perishable agricultural food product or commodity and clearly imputes the safety of the product or is intended to cause harm to the plaintiff's pecuniary interest or should reasonably been recognized that it was likely to do so. In addition, statements made with actual malice or known false reckless disregard of the truth are covered.

Perishable food is any agricultural or aquacultural food product which is sold or distributed in a form that will perish beyond marketability within a short period of time is included, as is agricultural or aquacultural practice used in the production of such a product or commodity. On a question from this reporter, Miller said legal council believes the bill would help with false accusations made against accepted production practices on individual farms. Individuals, companies, and associations have recourse in the bill.

Brenda Shambaugh, legislative director, introduced other major Grange legislative initiatives that were to be presented at the legislative dinner later in the day. A brief summary of these initiatives are as follows:

HB 2202 (et al) Local Tax Reform - The Grange endorses legislation that requires less reliance on property tax and more emphasis on equal tax. The Grange also supports more local control on the tax formula because one tax base is different than another across the state. Both the Senate and House have their local tax reform packages. Both versions are in the Senate with the House passing its version earlier. We support the House version, but want to make it clear that it must stay revenue neutral and reduce property taxes.

HD 398 Contract Managers - The Bill passed the House and is in the Senate Education Committee. Our policy to support the bill came from our last convention. The bill allows school districts to hire contract managers who assist in construction projects. They do not work on commission like a general contractor so there is no incentive to cut corners. The manager is the person or group who supervise the work from start to finish to determine the best and most cost effective job. We know of several school districts who have used contract managers and have saved thousands.

HB 2651 Humane Agents - Requires all humane agents to go through a PA Department of Agriculture program before they are allowed to investigate a farm-related complaint. There was a problem in Fayette County where the humane agent came on the farm and was unfamiliar with animal husbandry practices. The person was, unfortunately, argumentative and caused a public outcry. The bill is in the House Agriculture Committee and there was a hearing on April 15, 1994. The Grange testified in favor of the bill.

HB 2520 Farmland Preservation - The House Agriculture Committee passed several bills to better assist farmers who want to participate in the program. The farmland preservation program is a way for the Commonwealth to save prime farmland by purchasing the easement of development rights from the farmer.

The most significant bill is HB 2520 because the committee listened to Grange testimony at a hearing last summer. HB 2520 reduces the acreage needed to create an agricultural security area from 500 to 250 acres. Farmers who want to participate in the farmland preservation program must belong to an agricultural security area. We have found that some farmers in a developing area are finding it difficult to find 500 acres in the area.

By reducing the acreage, it will make it easier to form an ASA and consequently make it easier to participate in the farmland preservation program.

State Budget - The Grange is in a unique position of being pleased with the governor's proposal - except for the agricultural research line item at Penn State University. PSU does incredible research for agriculture at their College of their Agricultural Sciences.

The research benefits all those who eat food, not only those who produce it. From less costly production, to higher yields, to food safety, it all comes down to research. To cut this imperative line item is a travesty.

SB 351 - Water Resource Management - The Grange would like to see significant changes to the current draft of this legislation. The current bill is about water quantity, not water quality. It's a comprehensive program of water resource conservation in case of a drought. Currently, DER is responsible for preparing a state water plan. There would be a state water resource advisory committee to advise DER on development of the plan.

DER would be required to establish and maintain a statewide inventory and record water usage. While we think DER should accomplish an inventory, we believe the plan should be created on the local level. Local committees should be comprised of leaders, businesses, agricultural representatives and local conservation district directors. We support the idea that eight regional boards should be created, which, in turn, would be combined at the state level to make the state water resource plan.

The bill is currently in the Senate Environmental Resources Committee.

SB 955 Deep Mine Mediation - (Passed Senate: currently in House Conservation Committee)

This bill, supported by the Grange, provides protections against underground mining. Currently, there are no protections provided by law against mine subsidence for structures built after 1966. This bill states that coal companies would be able to long wall mine, but they have to provide compensation or replacement of any damage they cause. There is what is called a rebuttable presumption clause in the bill that states that coal companies must provide their mining efforts did not cause the damage rather than the landowner proving the damage is a result of the mining.

HB 1353 Wetlands - (In House Conservation Committee) Because farmers must derive their livelihood from the land, farmers must be compensated to equal the loss in value of acres set aside for the preservation of wetlands. A fair wetland protection program must take the financial hardship of a farmer into consideration.

HB 1353 clearly identifies a wetland and establishes standards for the regulations of those wetlands. It allows for normal farming practices to be accomplished on wetlands. It also classifies wetlands based on their importance to the area.

Underground Storage Tank Superfund - As a result of recent federal law, a storage tank superfund was created in Pennsylvania. An annual assessment has been used to fund the superfund for all owners storing diesel fuel and heating oil. Because the assessment is done by tank size rather than quantity used, many farmers are being assessed the same fees per tank as many commercial fuel dealers.

For farmers, the costs could be hundreds of thousands of dollars. We are working with the General Assembly to determine what can be done legislatively to resolve the issue.

USDA Restructuring - The Pennsylvania State Grange advocates moving food welfare programs, rural housing and other non-farm public service programs administered by the USDA under one agency like the Department of Public Welfare. The Grange supports co-located service centers under a 30-30-30 formula where a minimum of 30 farmers would not have to travel more than 30 miles or need more than 30 minutes' time to get to a service center. The Grand backs converting the Soil Conservation Service to the National Resource Conservation Service, but feels the function of SCS should continue to be technical with priority given to farmers.

Health Care - The Grange supports freedom of choice for medical providers and facilities; uniform fee schedules, benefits and eligibility requirements, including coverage for in-home care. Health care that maintains existing preferred or association group health care plans; and contributions based on ability to pay.

Clean Water Act - Congress is expected to rewrite the Clean Water Act of 1972 as emphasis shifts from point sources to non-point sources of pollution. The Grange urges Congress to maintain full funding of up to $400 million, to be spent with a state's matching funds, on programs to provide educational and technical assistance to address non-point problems. Full funding, the Grange believes must be a priority in any Clean Water Act reauthorization. Pollution control programs must be based on voluntary, locally-designed programs that meet the voluntary cooperation of farmers and landowners to use best management practices. The program should be administered by a single federal agency and must protect the rights of farmers and landowners.

Prior to the evening banquet a forum for the candidates for governor was held. In addition workshops on various topics including local tax reform, environmental issues and health care were held. The PA State Grange represents 35,000 members.

Beef Expo Posts Sale Results

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The 1994 Pennsylvania Beef Expo breed sales, held for the first time at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg, grossed $190,560 from 153 lots of Angus, Charolais, Limousin, Polled Hereford, and Simmental. A special American Highland show was also held.

The Angus high-selling bull was a one-half interest in GS Duster 301C, a 2-23-93 son of Ginger Hill Duster 89, consigned by Stockdale Farm, Dayton, and purchased by Boart's Farms, Ford City, for $3,000. South Branch Blackbird 002, a 1-29-90 heifer and her heifer calf, sold for $3,200 to Jeffrey Keifer, Bangor. A Twin Oaks consignment, Twin Oaks Blackcap 2031, born 9-25-91, with her heifer calf, sold for $3000 to Jason Slaughter, Mission, S.D.

Charolais high-selling lot was Rainbow's Jewel 428 by BR Prospector W660, purchased by Dale Gard, Richmond, Ind., for $1,650. Rainbow's Jewel 378, sired by BR Prospector W660 and consigned by Rainbow Farm, West Tisbury, Maine, was purchased by Paul D. Miller, Spring Grove, for $1,000.

The top-selling Limousin was a 1-16-93 bull, GPFF Bear Cat, sired by NMCC Polled Black Powder from the Green Pastures/ Fairland Farms, Louisville, Ohio for $2,700 to Pleasant Valley Farm, Brookville, Md. Second top-selling lot was GPFF Miss Melanie LKCC Black Nugget 906U purchased by Max Bingman, Kreamer, for $1,800.

In the Polled Hereford sale, a 3-26-93 bull, Salunga Player 50C, sired by Louada 800 Sylvester 244, consigned by Salunga Acres, Mt. Joy was purchased by Scenic View Farm, Manns Choice, for $3,100. CS Miss 1st Vision, a 4-4-90 female with calf at side from the Stockdale Farm, Dayton, sold for $2,750.

Two Polled Hereford flush cows from the Circle B Farm, Dillsburg, were consigned. One-fourth interest and no possession of SBF Royal Red Rose 8407 sold for $1,000 to Granberry's Hidden Acres, Zellienople, and one-sixth interest and no possession in SBF Royal Gypsy (full value $4,000) sold to Susquehannock Farm, Sunbury for $800 (full value $4,800).

In the Simmental sale, DVF Ms. Bloomin, a 6-1-93 Polled heifer consigned by Dunkard Valley Farm, Dallastown, sold for $2,850 to Troy Gelsinger, Wernersville. A 3-20-93 heifer, Cherokee Black Miss, from the herd of Cherokee Fur Co., Hopewood, sold for $1,850 to Dwayne Amoss of Lemon Bridge, Md.

The Beef Expo also included an educational program emphasizing grazing management, handling newly arrived feeder cattle, forage storage and feeding methods, use of growth promotant implants, and legislation affecting animal agriculture. The expanded program for juniors included a 170-head junior heifer and steer show and an eight-stop Skillathon in which junior cattlemen demonstrated their skills and knowledge about a variety of important contemporary beef cattle management areas.

The juniors also competed in a special obstacle course competition which involved leading their calves through water, into and out of a trailer and a blocking chute, and several other exercises.

More than 200 juniors participated in one or more of the junior events. The juniors were treated to a pizza party courtesy of the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association.

PSU Dept. Dairy, Animal Science Names Distinguished Alumnus

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Penn State University Department of Dairy and Animal Science has announced its recipients of two annual recognitions for distinguished alumnus.

Joseph J. Knapka, of Brookeville, Md., and George Shook, of Madison, Iowa, were recognized respectively as the department's distinguished alumnus of animal science and alumnus of dairy science.

The Penn State University Department of Dairy and Animal Science recognizes alumnus whose career and life achievements and involvements characterize some of the best attributes held in regard by the PSU Dairy and Animal Science Department.

Distinguished Animal Scientist

Knapka, a prominent animal scientist, earned national acclaim for his development of open-formula animal diets at the National Institute of Health (NIH), where he has worked since 1967. He currently serves as special assistant to the director of Veterinary Resources at the NIH's National Center for Research Resources.

In addition to his affiliation with a number of organizations — the National Cancer Institute; National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences; National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute; and National Center for Toxicological Research, among others — Knapka also has worked with NASA on animal projects in space. He has served on the editorial boards of six scientific journals and spent three years as a lecturer at Georgetown University School of Medicine, in the mid-1980s.

He earned a bachelor's degree in animal husbandry science in 1958 while at Penn State University. As a student, he lived and worked at the beef barn, competed on judging teams, and belonged to several organizations, including Block and Bridle Club. He was the 1956 Champion Angus Showman and editor of the 1957 Little International catalog.

Knapka went on to the University of Tennessee to earn a master's and doctoral degree in animal nutrition.

Through the Pan American Health Organization, Knapka also has worked with scientists internationally to improve the quality of biomedical research in developing South American countries and republics of the former Soviet Union. He is scheduled to lecture in Sweden and Estonia this spring about the nutrition of animals used in biomedical research.

Distinguished Alumnus

He and his wife Dorothy live in Brookville, while a daughter Cindy and family live nearby. A son, John, 1988 graduate in animal production, lives in Meadville, Pa. Knapka said he visits his mother at the family farm near Benton. He said that, after he retires from government service, he would like to manage a small herd of Maine-Anjou cattle with his son.

Distinguished in Dairy Science

George E. Shook, currently professor and chair of the University of Wisconsin-Madison Department of Dairy Science, grew up on a Guernsey farm in Clarion County. He received a degree in dairy science from Penn State University in 1963.

As an undergraduate, he served as president of the Dairy Science Club, and for three years played baritone horn in the Penn State Blue Band. He also was a member of the Coaly Society.

He earned his master's and doctoral degrees from University of Wisconsin and joined the faculty there in 1967. He became department chair in 1990.

His studies of somatic cell count and clinical mastitis led to the recent publication of national sire evaluations for somatic cell score. The scoring system is now being used nationwide.

He has also made important contributions to the accuracy of Dairy Herd Improvement Association production records. He developed test interval adjustment factors — long known as Shook Factors — that are used to estimate an animal's production in the first and last months of lactation.

Shook also developed AM/PM adjustment factors which improved the accuracy of an estimate of a cow's 24-hour production from a single sampling at a morning or evening test.

The AM/PM test program is becoming the predominant production test program nationwide because it allows DHIA personnel to test more herds at less expense and more convenience for the herd owner.

Shook and his wife Nancy celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary last year and both have sung in the Madison Symphony Chorus for 22 years, also performing in the chorus in four productions of the Madison Opera. The couple has a 10-year-old son Kynan, and their two oldest children, Karina and Kent, are undergraduate students at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Growers Vote For Sheep Industry Checkoff

DENVER, Colo. — The sheep industry will launch legislative efforts to secure a self-help lamb and wool checkoff, following a last vote Saturday by the American Sheep Industry Association board of directors at a special meeting in Denver.

Sheep producers representing the organization's 50 state affiliates uttered a strong yes to a checkoff on lamb and wool to replace the promotional funds that will be lost in 1996 with the phase-out of the National Wool Act.

"Sheep industry leaders showed deep commitment to securing the future of lamb and wool promotion, education and information," said Pierce Miller, president of the American Sheep Industry Association. The San Angelo, Texas, sheep rancher said the "history-making" move will help the sheep industry determine a more aggressive direction in its efforts to return profitability to American sheep producers.

Domestic producers will write the legislation to include a checkoff on both domestic and imported lamb and wool and their related products to the tune of 1 cent per pound on lamb and 2 cents per pound on domestic wool. Imported wool and wool products will be assessed at 2 cents per pound on a clean basis. ture of elected representatives since 1954.

Remittance of the checkoff on domestic product would be at the point of slaughter on lamb and at the point of first processing for wool. The choice of single-point remittance, said industry leaders, will help control compliance costs and maximize collections.

For lamb, each seller would be deducted a penny per pound at the time of sale. The packer would remit a penny per pound at the time of slaughter. Directors proposed all imported live sheep and product also be assessed the one cent per pound. Exported sheep would also pay the checkoff. Under current projected sheep and lamb numbers, the lamb checkoff would raise $5.7 million.

For wool, the checkoff of two cents per pound of grease wool would be assessed at each sale and be paid at the processing level. Producer leaders asked that all imported raw wool and wool products be assessed at roughly half the domestic level, at 2 cents per clean pound. The wool checkoff would raise $1.3 million domestically.

The board moved to mandate return of 20 percent of the checkoff to state associations for state promotion programs, amounting to just over $1 million.

The board also set incremental increase levels and caps on both lamb and wool checkoffs, increases which would have to be approved by both the ASI board of directors and the secretary of agriculture.

Boardmembers hashed out the issue of a cent-per-pound versus ad valorem rate, and looked at numerous state scenarios of production and costs in deciding on the more simple cent-per-pound. Figures showed the proposed scenario came the closest to a checkoff that fairly assessed growers on a percent of income per ewe.

State and other sheep checkoffs, both voluntary and mandatory, now in place would not be affected by the national checkoff.

If the sheep industry is successful in passage of related enabling legislation, U.S. growers will have the opportunity to vote in a referendum on the checkoff. Other industries involved in the proposed checkoff, namely importers, will also be entitled to a vote in the referendum. The board voted to propose continuation of the current language on the referendum vote, which allows passage by either voter numbers or production value.

The board proposal, debated point by point during the two-day session, closely parallelled the proposal by the special industry task force appointed by ASI's president at the direction of the board in its January annual meeting. That task force, made up of producers, feeders, packers, wool buyers and textile manufacturers, met two days prior to the board meeting to finalize its proposal developed in the past two months.

Penn State's Meats Judging Team Takes Top Honors

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Meats Judging team won top awards earlier this month at the 1994 Southeastern Intercollegiate Meats Judging Competition held at Dawson-Baker Packing Company in Louisville, Ky.

In addition to first overall, the team brought home first in pork judging; second in beef grading, beef judging, overall placings, and reasons; third in lamb judging; and fifth in specification cuts.

Of the other 11 teams competing from as far away as South Dakota and Florida, the University of Tennessee finished second and Iowa State third.

Penn State students won many individual honors as well. Jen Sweitzer (York County) was high individual in pork judging and placed fourth in beef grading, placing, and reasons and fifth in lamb judging. She finished third overall.

Jason Ahola (Putnam, Conn.) was fourth high overall, finishing second in placings and fourth in beef judging and specification cuts.

Brian McAllister (Centre County) brought home the top score for beef grading and total beef, and finished fifth in placings and overall competition.

Amysue Eshelman (Berks County) placed second in beef judging, fifth in beef grading, and was seventh overall.

Todd Rabenold (Berks County) and Howard Reyburn (Chester County) also represented Penn State in the Southeastern competition. William Henning is the team coach and Dan Northrup is assistant coach.

Top Jersey Brings $2,300 At Spring Sale

From the left, Steve Batchelder turns over the halter of the top selling Jersey of the Pa. Jersey Club Spring Sale to Chris Reigard, who represents himself and co-buyer Wayne Stiles.

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Caf Sooner Bonnie, a two-year-old Jersey owned by Julia Batchelder of Paris, Kentucky, sold for $2,300 at the annual Pennsylvania Jersey Club Spring Sale giving her the honor of taking the highest bid.

She was bought by Chris Reichard of Chambersburg, bidding for Wayne Stiles and Bradley Reichard. Stiles is the owner of Spring Valley Jersey Farm while Reichard owns Reich-Dale Jersey. The two bought the cow in partnership.

The sale was held at the 4-H building at the Bedford Fairgrounds in Bedford.

"Overall bidding," said event chairman, Don Stonerook, was good. Calves averaged $550 and cows, $1,043.48.

Three No. 1 frozen embryos were all sold with proceeds going to benefit the PJCC Youth Scholarship Fund. The embryos were from Star Point Jerseys.

Pot of Gold average was $708. The Pot of Gold began in 1981. This year, the award will go to the junior born between January 1, 1975 and January 1, 1987 whose calf purchased in this sale will make the highest production record on her first lactation, provided they calve before reaching 30 months of age.

Records must be made on official test, regular DHIA or DHIR or any test recognized as official by the American Jersey Cattle Club.

A junior may not purchase an animal consigned by a member of his immediate family. A junior may purchase only one Pot of Gold consignment per year. All animals must be tested in a DHIA or DHIR herd owned by purchaser or the purchaser's parents.

The 1993 winners were Emily Norman with Windy Acres Brass Top Doris who won $290 and Joy Vance with Brigadier Samson Cricket who won $174.

Twenty-five percent of the sale's proceeds is set aside for prize money each year.

Calves owned by Donald and Jill Stonerook, Martinsburg; Ralaine Jerseys, Everett; Todd and Patty Stroup, Greencastle; Bill and Susan Dietrich, Newberg; John and Cindy Batchelder, Quarryville; Jerry and Deb Moose, Mercer; Fredric J. Knepper, Hustontown were sold at this year's pot O gold.

Auctioneer for the sale was Art Kling. Larry Beach, Dick Johnson, Dominic Poligardo, Don Stonerook, and Alvin Vance were on the sale committee.

Rep. Miller Honored By Agricultural Society

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Rep. Sheila Miller (R-Berks) has recently been named Penn State Gamma Sigma Delta Outstanding Alumna for her active support of agricultural communities in Pennsylvania.

Gamma Sigma Delta, an Honor Society of Agriculture, recognized Miller's services on behalf of the Pennsylvania farmers, as well as through the positive image she projects regarding the importance of the state's agricultural industry.

Stanley E. Curtis, head of the Department of Dairy and Animal Science at Penn State, presented Miller with the award.

"Sheila Miller's contributions to Pennsylvania agriculture, and to the commonwealth as a whole, already have been enormous, and their ramifications will be far-reaching and long-lasting," Curtis said.

"Sheila Miller was distinguished herself, since her days with the Soil Conservation Service and then Lancaster Farming newspaper. She has been extremely helpful to the agricultural community: through direct service to agriculturists in her various positions, as well as through the positive image of agriculture she consistently conveys to the general citizenry," Curtis said. He also praised Miller for her involvement on other community programs aimed to improve society as a whole.

Rep. Sheila Miller

Miller graduated Cum Laude from Penn State University in 1974, with a Bachelor's of Science Degree in General Agriculture. At Penn State, she was inducted into the Phi Kappa Phi and Gamma Sigma Delta Honor societies, as well as the honor society for the College of Agriculture - the Coaly Society.

A member of the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee, Miller has drafted several agriculture-related proposals, most recently a bill concerning farmland preservation.

"It was a wonderful feeling to be honoreld by my alma mater. Penn State has given me a solid background in agriculture that I have relied on throughout my career. I thank them for the honor, and pledge to continue to be an advocate for Pennsylvania's farmers," Miller said.

Northern Bedford Captures Holstein Trophies

Linda Williams

WOODSBURY (Bedford Co.) — The Bedford County annual Junior Holstein Field Day was held on Wednesday, April 13, at the Charles Hershberger farm near Woodbury.

Practicing their FFA learned judging skills were about 110 students from Chestnut Ridge and Northern Bedford High Schools.

Dick Loose of the Martinsburg Milling Company educated the young FFAers on "Feeding Dairy Cows."

The highly debated BST subject was broached by Steve Shaw.

David Donaldson, Jerry Conley, Tara Godshall, and Tom McElwee took home the trophies at the Bedford County Junior Holstein Field Day.

District Awards Scholarships

FLEETWOOD (Berks Co.) — The conservation district has awarded two individuals with $1,000 toward their first year of college. This is the seventh year that these scholarships have been awarded to outstanding youth in Berks County.

Camilla M. Elfazzani will be graduated from Conrad Weiser High School this year and plans to continue her education at Northland College in Ashland, Wis. Camilla is the daughter of M.A. and Jean Elfazzani of Wernersville.

Camilla has been involved with several school organizations including marching and concert bands, National Honor Society, the Key Club, county band and orchestra, the computer club, and the student environmental action club. She attended the Don Hartman Conservation Leadership School and the Penn State Conservation Camp.

The essay she wrote in her application shows how much she appreciates the environment and how important it is for us to appreciate and conserve what we have for our future enjoyment and survival.

Heather Dawn Dougherty will be graduated from Twin Valley High School this year and plans to continue her education at the University Park Campus of the Pennsylvania State University School of Agriculture with a major in agricultural science. Her plans include becoming a doctor of veterinary medicine.

She is the daughter of Debra Dougherty of Elverson.

Heather has been an officer of the FFA chapter four years. She has won honors in many categories at the county, regional and state levels. She served as a county FFA officer two years. She was awarded the Keystone Degree in 1994.

She is a member of the National Honor Society and has served on many active committees. She has won many record book contests and competed in judging contests at local and state fair events. She was a member of the Berks County Envirothon winning team and also placed well in the state Envirothon.

Her essay shows she realizes what a complex ecosystem we live in and how each part of that system is important to all the other parts.

PSU Works On Farm Decision Software

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State dairy scientists and computer software engineers have been working together to design new tools to help dairy producers make difficult decisions about problems that create lost revenue year after year.

These tools are "user friendly" software programs called computer decision aids. They can identify a problem for a particular producer, teach how to control the problem, and estimate the cost to implement a control program.

To achieve this, the program calls on a database unique to the farm in conjunction with expert knowledge gleaned from a variety of sources. Using a personal computer, one can put the software to use with modest computer skills.

Nearing completion, one such program — the Mastitis Control System — is being field-tested by select users whose recommendations will be incorporated into the final product.

Developed for IBM-compatible computers, this decision aid can easily retrieve DHIA mastitis data from a remote location and evaluate mastitis control procedures used on specific farms. Graphs, tables, and worksheets are employed to help the user understand and formulate a plan for mastitis control in a particular herd.

The system provides a new way for veterinarians, feed dealers, consultants assisting farmers with mastitis problems, and some dairy farmers to access and apply information on mastitis and find solutions for this costly problem.

Based on DHIA data and currently available information on mastitis, the program walks users through a step-by-step process of questions and answers that sheds lilght on problems and suggests solutions specific to individual producers.

Using this information, the program creates worksheets to calculate milk loss, aids to convert somatic cells to linear scoree, lists of most severe cows, graphs of historical herd data, and partial budgets to assist with decision making.

For instance, one screen asks the user to evaluate the herd by placing"X"s next to appropriate questions:

- Have you added new cows to the herd during the last six months?
- Is a common wash cloth or sponge used to wash udders?
- Were chronically infected or low-producing cows culled in mid- to late-lactation?
- Did you change any management practices recently?
- Was the weather hot and humid, or are the udders dirty?
- Has the weather been very cold?
- Has the milking equipment been tested in the last six months?
- Are there any bacterial culture results?

The computer then uses answers to these questions, along with DHIA data, to query the user further on specifics or to create graphs or charts to increase the user's understanding of the problem.

If the computer decides the problem is a form of mastitis caused by bacterium known as Staphylococcus aureus, for example, it next asks the user to choose from a "menu" of information on the topic, such as:

- Where can Staph. aureus be found on the farm?
- How does the infection move from cow to cow once it develops?
- What kind of mastitis problems can Staph. aureus cause?
- How widespread can a staph problem be within a herd?
- What signs might tip me off that a Staph. aureus problem exists in my herd?
- What steps should I take to solve the problem?

By bringing together massive amounts of information and making it easily accessible, computer decision aids make it vastly simpler for producers to identify, analyze, and learn about problems that plague them.

For instance, one database alone, used as a source in the development of the Mastitis Control Program, contains 12,000 documents, 1,500 graphs, 50 comprehensive data collections, 50 computer programs, and even a 14-minute video — all on a single compact disk. This collection, the National Dairy Center Database, is updated annually.

Other computer decision aid programs currently under development include a lactation graph evaluator and a herd performance evaluator. Although Computers will never replace individuals in the decision-making process, they go a long way in making the process more precise and less tedious.

Funding for the work on the Mastitis Control Program was provided by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences and Department of Dairy and Animal Science.

Project Leader C. William Heald, in conjunction with the Center for Mastitis Research, collaborated with the following individuals in the development of this decision-making tool: William M. Sischo and Dale A. Moore of the Department of Veterinary Science, James Boyer of Pennsylvania DHIA, and computer programmers Michael Foster, Tai-Oun Kim, and Jae Lee.

Gold Bar Champion Saler Bull

DENVER, Colo. — Gold Bar was recently awarded the 1994 National Champion Saler Bull Award here at the National Western Stock Show.

As a 10-month-old calf, he was named Reserve National Calf Champion at Denver. As a yearling, he was named Canadian National Champion Bull at the Canadian Western Agribition Show in Regina, Saskatchewan.

Now as a senior bull, Gold Bar was the reserve senior champion bull at the North American Livestock Exposition at Louisville, Ky., in November and senior and grand champion bull at Denver.

Gold Bar is the first Saler bull to have won both the U.S. and Canadian National titles. Gold Bar is owned and managed by E.C. Rowlett, Guy, Ark.; Greenough Cattle Co., Missoula, Mont.; Joe Dearing, Harrison, Ark.; and Metro Ltd., Jay Temchack, Bellefonte, Pa.

Growers To Meet Near Kutztown

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — A twilight growers' meeting will be held here at the John Brubaker farm on May 4 at 6 p.m.

Topics covered will include cover crops, relay cropping, composting, and no-till soybeans without herbicide.

Since 1991, Brubaker has participated in a unique project with the Rodale Institute Research Center (RIRC) known as the Whole Farm Management Study. Through this study Brubaker and RIRC staff haye looked at the effect that implementing low-input practices has on the whole farm, and at how well new practices work on a real farm.

Brubaker implements low-input farming practices on a portion of his farm, allowing researchers to monitor the effectiveness of those practices on a farm scale.

Researchers also look at Brubaker's beef feedlot to get a picture of how the livestock operation affects crop production. The growers' meeting will focus on several practices used on this study site.

One topic will be the use of hairy vetch as a cover crop. Brubaker and RIRC staff will discuss benefits and management of this cover crop and how this crop fits in Brubaker's crop rotation. A demonstration of no-till corn in this cover crop will occur.

Relay cropping is a soybean production system incorporating soybeans and small grains which Brubaker has successfully used in the past. He will demonstrate that system as a part of this meeting and explain management of that system.

Brubaker and RIRC staff will discuss the farm's use of composting as a manure handling system for the feedlot, and how the farmer adapts the system to match the farm's labor resource.

No-till soybeans without herbicide have been used successfully on the Brubaker farm in the past. A demonstration of this system will occur.

The meeting will occur rain or shine, and should last approximately one and a half hours. Field demonstrations may be changed depending on weather conditions.

The Brubaker farm is located just east of the Rodale Institute Research Center on Siegfriedale Road. There is no charge for this event.

For more information, contact Paul Sowden, (610) 683-1474.

Moisture, Temperature Keys

GOLDEN VALLEY, Minn. — Under ideal conditions, the earliest corn will emerge from the ground is five to six days after planting, said Jim Graeber, Northrup King Co., Illinois agronomist.

However, Graeber noted that corn is seldom planted under optimal conditions, so growers need to adjust planting depth accordingly.

Adequate moisture and temperature levels are vital to seed germination and plant emergence, Graeber said. Because heat is usually the limiting factor early in the season, shallow planting is best.

Even then, it might take as long as two weeks before corn plants emerge. Later in the season, when soil temperatures reach 55 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit, soil moisture becomes a limiting factor. In that case, Graeber said, the seed should be planted somewhat deeper.

In germination, the seed initially develops radical and lateral seminal roots. This temporary root system absorbs water to help the seedling emerge. At emergence, the nodal roots begin to form. After the plant reaches the three-leaf stage, the permanent nodal roots take over in the uptake of water and nutrients.

When planting, key factors are uniform spacing, proper depth, and getting the kernels covered. These are the seedbed conditions most ideal for helping the seed take up moisture and promoting fast growth.

On set-aside ground, where the potential is greater for insect damage, Graeber recomends delaying planting until after the ground is warmer.

Dreamfield Manor
960 Acre Country Estate
Just 35 Miles From Philadelphia

A rare opportunity to own a beautiful private valley. This one of a kind farm features a traditional English Manor entryway to the main set of buildings passing between the gate house and stone bank barn and over 2 stone bridges to an exquisite stone manor house circa 1703, with 6 bedrooms & 3 huge stone fireplaces. There is also a large Federal brick manor house. In total there are eight farm houses, four of which are stone, and two large stone bank barns. The land consists of gently rolling fields, woodland, and a beautiful steam valley. This farm has excellent potential for equestrian activities such as fox hunting or combined training. Secluded yet close to a PA Turnpike interchange and Interstate 78. (the owner may consider dividing) $6.5 Million.

Can You Afford To Quit DHIA?

mum needed for optimum herd replacement.

No. 4: Is your calving interval greater than 13 months? For every extra day you lose money at the rate of $1.50 to $2-per cow. This alone will pay for a major part of the cost of DHIA.

No. 5: Do you have cows testing above 400,000 somatic cell count? Then you're losing money from reduced milk production and eventually from added mastitis treatment costs and culling. First, though, you lose money because you forego that nice 20-cent bonus for every 100 pounds of milk sold when you qualify below limits your milk buyer sets to induce you to produce the most wholesome milk possible.

We have herds in Delaware that qualify for that bonus month after month. One herd, in fact, has qualified for the third year in a row. What an achievement! And it's thanks to DHIA. Nowhere else could the farmer get this essential information data. What a difference in herd income, much more than the cost of DHIA.,

No. 6: Any heifer calving for the first time beyond 24 months of age costs you money in extra feeding, with no milk money to pay for it. It takes the milk income from the entire first lactation to pay for 24 months of raising that heifer.

Other Benefits

You can derive extra income from DHIA in other areas as well. You name the identification of your service sire and/or the sire of your cow or goat and you get free all available genetic merit data from the national computer archives.

You name the national computer identification number of your cow or goat (it doesn't have to be a breed registration number) and you get free all of her genetic merit information.

This makes your animals capable of higher production and more valuable.

If you try to save money by not testing on DHIA every month, 12 months a year, you get into irregular data that's less reliable, and the computing center will not give you herd summary data as soon as you fall below 10 tests per year.

DHIA offers money-saving options without relinquishing regular, reliable and official records.

One such option is APCS. You test your milk every month, in the morning and at night, but sample milk for fat and protein and somatic cell only in the morning or evening in alternating months. APCS is labor-saving, and many farmers are convinced that their fat tests fluctuate less and are even more reliable. The system is certainly less time-consuming for the tester, who must fill the sample bottles only one time instead of twice daily.

Another great labor- and cost-saving option is AM/PM, which alternates in milk and test sampling between morning and evening and between alternating months. Farmers with larger herds especially like this option because records are still considered official. One drawback is that the total 24-hour milk is estimated by the computing center, based on only one milking.

Whatever your situation, it's clear that DHIA not only can make you money, it can save you money too.

From The Ashes Of Destruction...

LOIS SZYMANSKI
Maryland Correspondent

NEW WINDSOR, Md. — Just a few weeks after losing his barn and his livestock to a fire, all Joel and Maura Jo Nupp can talk about is the generosity of the community around them. They are overwhelmed by the giving nature of their Carroll County neighbors and they want people to know that there are still a lot of good folks in the world.

It is said that tragedy breeds hope, and maybe that is so, but the heartbreak that comes with destruction can be the worst kind, especially when that destruction is a farmer's barn. For the family of Joel and Mura Jo Nupp of New Windsor, Maryland, the big old bank barn on their farm signified everything they had dreamed of for years. They had moved to the Carroll County farm to fulfill a dream of raising their children in a farm environment as Jeol had been raised.

After purchasing the place in January, they began to fill the barn with young livestock. 4-H projects for their children, Justin, 8; Michelle, 6; and Matthew, 3 y ears old. The livestock was a sign of a bright future ahead. Then on March 9, their dreams went up in smoke.

"Maura Jo was going out to bottle feed the baby lambs," said Joel. "At first she thought it was snow, and then she saw it was smoke." After dialing 911 and calling Joel at work, Maura Jo dashed to the barn to try to save the animals, but it was too late for most of them. Five piglets, a calf, two lambs, two cats, and a goat perished in the fire, despite the efforts of over forty firefighters from surrounding communities. The only animals to survive were two horses and the children's pony. The Nupp family credits their dog Jasper with saving them.

"When my wife opened the door, the dog just made a beeline for the barn. My wife unlatched the gate and my old gelding came barreling through. But then they (the horses) kept circling the barn and trying to run back in," Mr Nupp says. It was Jasper who stopped them. Over and over the dog herded the horses away from the fire, until they gave up and headed down the hill. Since them, the Nupps have taken to calling Jasper, "The Wonder Dog."

By the time Mr. Nupp got home his neighbors were already at the farm. Beating the firetrucks in, it was the neighbors who supported a sobbing Mrs. Nupp. But that support was only the beginning.

"After the fire, we were numb," Mr. Nupp recalls. "I sat on the ground and bawled like a baby. For days, we didn't sleep, or take calls." Then, the Nupp family found out that neighbor Laurel Hummel had been taking their calls.. many calls.

Donations began to poor in. The Gunpower 4-H Club called and wanted to give the Nupp family a cash donation. Mr. Nupp, a proud man, politely refused. But that didn't stop the 4-Hers. Instead, they bought 82 bales of hay to replace the hay the Nupp family had lost. They delivered it to the house, unloaded it and stacked it neatly before covering it with a tarp. How could Mr. Nupp say "no?"

I've learned that in Carroll County, you have to learn to take help. I'm not used to taking from others," Mr. Nupp added.

Tim and Candy Cole donated two lambs to Justin and Michelle. Dr. Kay Wagner and the Carroll County Livestock Club donated two $100 gift certificates, one to Tractor and Supply Company and one to Southern States. Bob, Shirley from the Carroll County Extension Center called to ask what they could do. When Mr. Nupp's reply was "I don't know," fencing arrived. Robin Kessling donated a piglet. Then Nicki Ratliff, director of the Carroll County Humane Society called. They had a pig at the Humane Society that had been found wandering Route 140 in December. No one had claimed the pig, and the board had voted unanimously to give the pig to Justin. How do you say "no" to a 250-pound pig named Petunia?

"The pig is so big," Justin says. Now, the Nupp family has taken to calling Peunia, Bib Mama.

"A man I didn't even know, Bill Franz from Linwood kept calling. He was persistant that I have some hay," Mr. Nupp said. "I told him I didn't have any place to keep it. So he brought a stock trailer,

REPUBLICAN PRIMARY MAY 10

TOM RIDGE: The right man for governor

Tom Ridge is what America is all about. A working class kid from Erie, Pa., every step up the ladder was a challenge. But he never quit.

At school he studied hard and won a four-year scholarship to Harvard.

In the Vietnam War, he served as a non-com "grunt" and came home with the Bronze Star for Valor and Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry.

Back in school under the GI Bill, Tom earned a law degree at Dickinson College and served as Erie Assistant District Attorney.

Then, in 1982, Republican Ridge stunned political pundits by winning the Congressional seat in northwestern Pennsylvania despite an overwhelming Democratic registration.

And, boy, did he earn the respect of farmers and rural leaders. Ridge fought our wetlands battles, won immediate disaster aid for communities hard hit by the 1991 drought, authored a federal law that makes bank loans more available to distressed rural communities, helped assure fair milk prices, and more, much more.

Now the six-term Congressman has accepted the call to serve as governor.

We know Ridge has the brains, training, experience and courage to do the job. He's already proved that. But first that "working class kid from Erie" must win the Republican primary May 10. And that's up to you.

Tom Ridge, who's seeking the Republican nomination for governor May 10, wows son Tommy with this farm tractor on visit to a southeast Pennsylvania farm. Wife Michele and daughter Lesley also accompanied Ridge on farm tour.

packed full of alfalfa hay and told me to keep it as long as I needed it. He told us to just let him know when we run out and he'll find it again! He is probably borrwing someone else's or doing without while it is here!"

When the Nupps found a place to board their horses, it was neighbor, Matthew Huff who came to haul the horses to their new home. "And he wouldn't even take a nickel." Joel shakes his head in amazement.

It was a few days after the fire before the Nupps realized the extent of their loss. Air conditioners, fans, auto supplies and tools were stored in the barn, as was the children's bicycles, a row boat, fishing rods and ball equipment. Five saddles, bridles and tack as well as a pony sulky are all gone. A cast iron ring used to store firewood had melted like a pretzel and there wasn't a trace left of the boat. "It must have completely melted," Maura Jo said.

Mr. Nupp believes the goat, known for her mischeivious behavior, and a heat lamp meant for the lambs is the likely cause of the fire.

Yet, the Nupp family has developed a new spirit. They have discovered neighbors and found a community spirit they didn't know still existed.

"It really hurts to lose everything like this," Mr. Nupp says. "But it makes it easier when there are so many people there for you."

"It makes your feel humble," Maura Jo" said.

"I told my neighbors, I want to be on the giving end," said Mr. Nupp, "and they all say that I will get my chance.

Right now, I want to thank everyone... and if anyone needs anything, I'm here."

Eastern Shore Searches For Contestants

FREDERICK, Md. — The Eastern Shore Dairy Princess Committee is searching for contestants for its annual pageant.

As part of a new state program, they will also be sashing young ladies between 13 and 16 years old who would like to represent the area's dairy industry. With the exception of age, dairy maids must meet the same requirements as a princess.

Dairy maids will perform similar duties as the dairy princess, assisting her throughout the year. There will be no competition for the "princess-to-be's" at the area or state level.

Princesses make school and grocery store promotions, speak to farm and non-farm groups and appear on radio and television. They often make appearances at sporting events and fairs. Regional princesses participate in a training seminar and will compete in the state pageant, Tuesday, July 26, in Frederick.

Qualifications have changed for the princess program. Contestants may be the daughter of one of the following employed in a dairy-related industry (farm store dairy cooperative, DHIA supervisor, feed supplier, veterinarian, mild inspector, etc.). Candidates may also be employed herself as one of the above or the owner of at least one dairy animal or enrolled in the dairy foods project in 4-H or FFA.

Contestants must be at least 16 years old and not reach her 22nd birthday by Dec. 31 of the contest year.

Application deadline is May 2. For more information and an application, contact one of the following: Chris Johnston, (410) 758-1066; Linda Holland, (410) 957-1399; Kim Kempel, (410) 438-3678; Fay Collier, (410) 822-3371.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Wht a treat to throw open the doors and welcome in the daylight.

Opening up the house doors to let in springtime warmth and sunshine has always seemed to me the equivalent of turning the page to a new chapter of time. Suddenly the barrier between inside and outside living is greatly diminished and the porch beckons us to "come, sit a spell."

Equally welcome is the return of wide-open barn doors. An overhead garage-type door at one end and wide, sliding doors at the other permit a free-flow of air and unobstructed vision down the center alley of the dairy barn. Doors flung wide allow us to enjoy the outdoor freshness and better keeping taps on what's happening on the farmstead outside during milking hours.

And, when you're outside working in the yard, the see-thru effect of the open doors offers a quicker tip-off if one of the four-legged girls is somewhere she isn't supposed to be.

Moving perennials from one border to another a few days ago, I glanced toward the open dairy barn door and spotted a cow standing just inside the entrance, calmly munching haylage from one of the boxstall feed troughs.

"Best, what are you doing out there?" I growled at the big, old cow surveying the scenery while she pilfered a herdmate's chow.

Our dairy barn boxstall doors are each fastgened with an "L" shaped piece of half-inch steel rod that slides through sections of pipe welded to the gate and the stall sides. A few of our more clever cows have learned to wrap their tongues around the shorter, handle part of the "L" and yank it from the pipe closure. When the gate swings open, the escapee will then take a stroll around the dairy barn, ultimately ending up at a feed cart with her big black and white muzzle buried deep in the grain.

Not only is this irritating to us cow caretakers, it is dangerous to the cow. Overeating of grain can result in serious stomach disorders and sometimes costly and unhealthy side effects.

On the pen presently shared by old cows Best and Marvina, the "L" shaped closure has been replaced by a large bolt, a deterrent to these veterans of the bovine-tongue-escape trick. However, if the bolt is not pushed tightly against the pipe into which it fits, these girls can still yank it free.

As I headed toward the barn to corral the chomping escapee, she began strolling the other way, headed for the long center alley between the two rows of stalls. So, I slipped in through the side door, effectively cutting her "off at the pass." So tame is Best and so used to going into her pen that she promptly returned to it, even though the main door a dozen feet away was still wide open.

Then I realised that Marvina was missing as well. A glance down the feed alley in front of one row of stalls confirmed my suspicion. Way down near the far end of the barn, Marvina was sampling each bale of alfalfa hay stacked along the wall as she mosied past. A sort of hay-tasting party, if you will. With bites of other hay in between as a palate cleanser.

I trotted down the center alley, whipped around the end of the row of cows and headed toward Marvina. She glanced up, took one last yank of alfalfa, turned tail and began hyoofing it toward her pen.

Halfway there, she paused a split second to grab a mouthful of feed from the grain cart, hauntily tossed her head in my direction, then lifted her tail and left me dodging manure souvenirs the rest of the way to her pen.

Even more aggravating than a clever cow is an arrogant, clever cow.

"You're something," I grubmled to her as she ambled into her pen and stood there while I patted her long, smooth neck.

The expression on her face looked suspiciously like a smirk.

A Topping For Every Dish

Almost any food can be dressed up or enhanced by topping it with flavored mustard, sauces, or dressings. Creativity and an adventurous spirit makes cooking with mustards, sauces, and dressings interesting.

Here are some pointers when experimenting.

• Start with prepared mustards and add extras such as herbs and horseradish. A Dijon-type mustard is a good base. Combine all the ingredients and allow to mellow a few hours for the flavors to blend.

• Blend 1 teaspoon Dijon mustard with 1 cup plain yogurt, salt and pepper to taste and use as a sandwich spread for tuna and chicken salad recipes.

For breakfast, try a fruit or cheese spread on a bagel, muffin, or toast. Or, how about eggs benedict with sour cream hollandaise sauce?

For snacks, mustards and dips are great with vegetables and crackers.

For lunch, try homemade dressings on your salad. Remember great salads deserve great dressings. For a change of pace from oil or mayonnaise dressings, use dairy products as a base for your own creations.

Choose from yogurt, cottage cheese, ricotta cheese, sour cream, cream cheese, buttermilk or a combination. Add fresh or dried herbs, seasonings, and spices. Vinegars, flavored pepper, mustards, roasted red peppers, lemon and lime juice, sun-dried tomatoes, green onion, chives and cinnamon are some possibilities.

Cheese also adds flavor. Stir in crumbled blue cheese, grated parmesan, or shredded cheddar, Swiss or mozzarella.

For dinner, a sauce can dress up fish fillets and vegetable dishes, and mustards can dress up a beef or chicken roast.

GARDEN VEGETABLE RICOTTA SPREAD

⅔ cup ricotta cheese
½ cup chopped raw vegetables
1 tablespoon sliced green onion, optional
⅛ teaspoon ground red pepper

Stir together all ingredients in small bowl; refrigerate to blend flavors. Store covered in refrigerator up to 5 days. Serve as a spread for bagels, English muffins or toast.

Yields 1 cup.

CREAMY TOMATO SAUCE

½ cup whipping cream
1 cup seeded and chopped tomato
¼ cup sliced green onions
1 tablespoon chopped fresh tarragon Or 1 teaspoon dried

In skillet used to saute fish fillets, add whipping cream. Bring to a boil. Cook over medium heat 2 minutes or until cream has thickened and reduced slightly. Stir in tomato, onions, and tarragon. Cook 2 minutes. Serve warm over fish fillets. Yields 1 cup.

LEMON DILL BUTTER SAUCE

¼ cup butter
2 tablespoons chopped fresh dill OR 1½ teaspoons dried dill
2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice

RASPBERRY SWIRL CREAM CHEESE

6 ounces cream cheese
¼ cup vanilla yogurt
1½ teaspoon sugar, optional
3 tablespoons raspberry preserves

Using food processor or electric mixer, combine cream cheese, yogurt, and sugar. Mix until smooth. Alternately spoon cream cheese mixture and raspberry preserves into small serving bowl. Gently stir in circular motion to form swirls; do not mix completely. Serve immediately or store covered in refrigerator up to 5 days. Serve as a spread for bagels, English muffins, scones, toast or waffles.

If mixture separates during storage, stir to blend.

SMOKEY CHEESE DIP

8-ounces cream cheese, softened
4 tablespoons butter, softened
½ cup sour cream
1 tablespoon snipped parsley
1 teaspoon steak sauce
1 cup shredded smokey cheddar cheese
1-2 tablespoons milk

Combine cream cheese, butter and sour cream; beat until fluffy. Stir in parsley and steak sauce. Beat cheese into mixture with milk to make dipping consistency. Chill. Stir before serving. Serve with crackers. Yields: 2½ -3 cups.

In 1876, at a county fair held in St. Joseph, MO, a recipe contest gave rise to a unique soda cracker that garnered top honors.

Winning the blue ribbon for excellence, the cracker was later christened "PREMIUM," beginning a 118 year-long tradition as America's number-one selling saltine cracker.

Today, Premium Saltines are as integral part of many family favorite recipes. From stuffed mushrooms, to casseroles, to pie crusts, the quality of Premium Cracker's blue ribbon performance always shines through.

So, Nabisco now invites you to enter the "Premium Blue Ribbon Recipe Contest" for a chance to win the grand prize of $10,000. Eligible recipes must use at least 15 Premium Saltine Crackers (any variety) as a recipe ingredient. The first prize winner receives $5,000; second prize winner receives $2,500 and third receives $1,000.

To get you started, here are few tried-and-true favorites from Nabisco; Turkey Almond Croquettes and Premium Stuffing.

For official entry form and complete contest rules write to: PREMIUM RECIPE CONTEST, P.O. Box 8014, Easton, MD 21606-8014. Requests for rules must be received by June 15. Entries must be postmarked by July 31.

TURKEY ALMOND CROQUETTES
Makes 4 Servings

2 cups finely chopped cooked turkey or chicken (about 3/4 pound)
36 PREMIUM Crackers (any variety), finely rolled (about 1 1/3 cups crumbs)
⅔ cup mayonnaise
1 egg
¼ cup almonds, chopped
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
2 tablespoons vegetable oil

In large bowl, thoroughly mix turkey, 1 cup cracker crumbs, mayonnaise, egg, almonds, onion and pepper. Shape into 4 patties. Coat with remaining crumbs.

In medium skillet, over medium heat, heat oil. Add croquettes; brown slowly on all sides. Serve warm.

PREMIUM STUFFING
Makes about 5 cups

1 medium onion, minced
4 large stalks celery, chopped (about 1¼ cups)
⅓ cup margarine
80 PREMIUM Crackers (any variety), coarsely broken (about 4 cups)
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
½ teaspoon ground sage
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 cup chicken broth

In large skillet, over medium-high heat, cook onion and celery in margarine until tender; remove from heat. Stir in cracker crumbs, parsley, sage, pepper and broth. Use to stuff poultry or spoon into a greased 1 ½ -quart casserole and bake, covered, at 325° F for 40 minutes or until heated through.

The Family Side of Downsizing

There are some days when I really wish that I didn't have to get up and go to work. But for people who have felt the brunt of factory or business downsizing, the wish may be just the opposite.

Downsizing and layoff decisions don't just affect a company's bottom line. These decisions also affect families — both the families whose members were cut and those whose members are now doing two people's jobs (because they weren't cut). The stress can be very hurtful to a person's physical health but also may impact relationships.

According to Joan LeFebvre, University of Wisconsin-Extension, "Losing a job is one of the most stressful events a person can experience. Unemployment can be personally devastating and can trigger the same reactions you might feel during other serious crisis, such as divorce or the death of someone you love." People often base their worth and identity on their employment. We're often more comfortable saying, "I'm a grain farmer." "I'm an accountant", "I'm a child care provider." "I'm an EMT," than we are saying "I'm a caring husband." "I'm a thinker" or "I'm a concerned member of my community." When that source of identity is taken away, a person may begin to doubt his or her self-worth.

Losing a job forces a person, against his or her wishes, to make rapid changes in life plans. It can disrupt habits and normal routines. It may actually provide a person with too much free time. LeFebvre explains that a person experiencing a job loss may feel tense or angry. They may suffer from dramatic mood swings and lash out at others — even those not responsible for the layoff. Recently unemployed workers may encounter increased numbers of arguments at home. They may feel depressed. These reactions are normal, but they aren't wonderful to live through.

If you are unemployed, don't expect to just "snap out of it." It takes time. Try to talk through your ambivalent, even negative feelings about your situation. Remember, you have a lost a significant part of your life with this change. Allow yourself to grieve that loss. On the bright side, because of the layoff you may have more time to spend with your family. You may be able to work on some long-delayed household project or do some reading or training in a new, exciting area.

Unemployment is a family issue. Research shows that during times of unemployment, when parents support each other, the entire family fairs better. If your family is suffering because of company downsizing, try some of these suggestions: Go outside. Make a "To Do" list (break your job search, housework into small tasks.); Write down your frustration. Stretch; roll your shoulders slowly; massage your neck. Cry; laugh. Make a list of two to three things you do well. Post it on your mirror or refrigerator.

These are just a few things that people can do to help lower the stress of unemployment. Anyone who is on the other side of the picture, being asked to pick up additional assignments because of staffing changes, can also benefit from these techniques. And all famil members need to remember that a layoff doesn't just affect the one person who was the employee. Everyone is influenced by the change, and all will suffer the loss in some way. Allow time to grieve. Also seek outside help when needed. This is especially important if people in the home:

- ✔ begin to hit or shove during arguments
- ✔ think of suicide
- ✔ feel overwhelmed with bills
- ✔ consider separating from spouse because of problems
- ✔ constantly put down themselves or others
- ✔ take a drink in the morning or hide alcohol to disguise the amount of drinking
- ✔ notice that children start acting "crazy" and begin getting in trouble with the law or other authorities
- ✔ start lying about what has happened or what they are doing.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 18

Lancaster Society Farm Women #20 met on April 10 at the Memorial United Methodist Church, Quarryville, when they entertained Societies #25, 15 and the county officers to a covered dish luncheon. The committee consisted of Lillian Winters, Marion Hastings, Emily Gallimore, Thelma Miller, and Vivian Trout. Following the meal Lillian read the 126th Psalm and the poem "All it takes is one hello". The Lord's Prayer was prayed in unison followed by the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag. The president, Nancy Axe, presided at the business meeting when among other items the society yard sale was announced for the 4th of June at Nancy's home. The Sunshine committee reported 6 cards sent since the last meeting.

The program was very interesting when Ellen Baber spoke and showed slides of her and her husband's visit to St. Petersburg, Russia through a poultry exchange, and they were privileged to stay with the mayor of the town.

For the roll call, each one mentioned their favorite vacation spot and the guests were introduced. The meeting closed by singing "Brighten the Corner" and in May members will be going to Living Waters and then have lunch at Schoney's.

Lebanon Society 20

Lebanon Farm Women Group #20 met April 11 at the Ono Fire Hall and entertained Group #21.

Elaine Shuey had devotions. The speaker was Dr. Charles Dahlstrom. He spoke about spinal adjustments. We played several games and held a short meeting.

The County Convention is Oct. 12. A motion was made to give $100 to Jr. Holstein Club to be used for expenses for Leb. Co. Jr. Dairy Bowl to go to Seattle Wash.

County cookbooks are available. Members gave $20 to help sponsor Sally Martin who is walking for the Pregnancy Center.

Members will be entertained at the Bellgrove Fire Hall April 19 by Group 19. The next meeting is May 9 at Mary Stamm's Home.

ANSWER — Mimi Stoltzfus, Lewisburg, wanted a recipe for honey-mustard pretzels. Thanks to Joan Lesley, White Hall, Md., who sent a recipe.

Honey Mustard Pretzels

Break up 1½ pounds of large hard pretzels in small pieces. Combine and mix well:

1 package Good Seasons Honey Mustard Mix
¾ cup canola oil
1 teaspoon dill
¼ teaspoon garlic powder

Pour mixture over broken pretzels and mix well. Spread pretzels onto cookie sheets. Bake at 275 degrees for 15 minutes. Serve or keep in air tight tin when cooled.

ANSWER — Dorothy Golembieski, Gettysburg, wanted a recipe for pineapple jam made with fresh crushed pineapple and Kiefer pears. Thanks to Carol Miller, Newport; Annie Stauffer, Loveville, Md., Bev Martin, Stevens; Mrs. David Oberholtzer, Lititz; and others for sending recipes.

Pear Honey

8 pounds Kiefer pears
8 pounds sugar
2 cups crushed pineapple

Remove peeling and core from pears. Grind pears in food chopper. Add crushed pineapple and sugar gradually. Bring to a boil and cook until thick (about 20 minutes). Stir frequently to prevent it from burning. Put into jars and seal.

Pear And Pineapple Jelly

1 quart crushed pineapple
5 pounds Kiefer pears, ground
8 pounds sugar

Boil together pineapple, pears, and sugar for 20 minutes. Put in clean jars and seal.

A Topping

LEMONY BREAKFAST CHEESE SPREAD

1 cup part-skim ricotta cheese
1 tablespoon sugar
½ cup lemon lowfat yogurt
½ teaspoon vanilla extract

Beat ricotta cheese and sugar in small mixer bowl until smooth, about 5 minutes. Stir in yogurt and vanilla. Refrigerate, covered, 1 to 2 hours to allow flavors to blend. Spread 1 to 2 tablespoons cheese spread on warm assorted toasted breads or rice cakes. Top with fresh or dried diced fruit, cooked bacon or sausage or sliced hard cooked egg. Yields 1½ cups.

HORSERADISH MUSTARD

1 cup prepared mustard
1 tablespoon horseradish, drained
1 clove garlic, minced to paste
Pinch gound allspice

MIXED HERB MUSTARD

1 cup prepared mustard
½ teaspoon dried tarragon
½ teaspoon thyme
½ teaspoon marjoram
1 clove garlic, minced to paste
1 teaspoon finely chopped parsley

EGGS BENEDICT WITH SOUR CREAM HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

¼ cup sour cream hollandaise sauce
2 toasted buttered English muffins
4 slices Canadian bacon, grilled
4 poached eggs

For each serving, top English muffin with bacon slice, then poached egg. Spoon 3 tablespoons warm sour cream hollandaise sauce overall. Serve immediately.

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted recipes using self-rising flour, here are several from Kerry Clark, Warfordsburg, and from an anonymous reader.

Zucchini Bread

2 cups squash, grated
2 cups sugar
2 cups self-rising flour
2 tablespoons vanilla
3 teaspoons cinnamon
1 cup vegetable oil
3 eggs

Mix together ingredients. pour into bread pans and bake at 325 degrees for one hour.

Cobbler

1½ cup self-rising flour
1½ cups sugar
1½ cups milk
½ cup butter, melted
1 quart sweetened fruit and liquid

Mix together flour, sugar, and milk. Melt butter in baking dish. Make sure fruit has at least one cup liquid in it. Pour fruit over butter. Pour batter over fruit. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour or until browned.

Vanilla Butter Nut Cake

3 cups sugar
½ cup oil
1 cup butter, melted
3 cups self-rising flour
5 large eggs
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons vanilla butter nut flavoring

Mix together all ingredients until moistened on low. Mix on high for 2 minutes. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour.

Quick Seed Bread

4 cups self-rising flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
4 tablespoons poppy seeds
4 tablespoons sesame seeds
1¼ cups plus 3 tablespoons milk
3 tablespoons water
Seeds to sprinkle on top

In a large bowl, combine flour, baking soda, salt, and seeds. Add milk and water, with a fork, mix quickly into a soft dough. On a floured board, knead the dough lightly for 2 minutes. Shape into a ball and place it on a greased and floured baking sheet. Sprinkle with additional seeds and press lightly into the dough. bake at 425 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes or until a tester comes out clean. Cool on a rack.

ANSWER — Lisa Miller, New Hope, wrote that she and her grandmother found a recipe that called for died apples. She wanted to know how to do it. This sounded like a typographical error to me and the concensus of our readers is that it should have read dried apples.

ANSWER — Grace Ikeler, Bloomsburg, wanted a recipe for English walnut cake. Thanks to Josephine Matenus, for sending a recipe.

English Walnut Cake

1 cup sugar
¼ cup butter
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon baking powder
1½ cups flour
3 egg whites
1 cup chopped English walnuts nutmeats

Mix together ingredients and pour into small loaf cake pan. Bake in 375 degree oven for 30 minutes.

(Turn to Page B9)

SOUR CREAM HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

¼ cup dairy sour cream
1 egg yolk
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup dairy sour cream

Combine ¼ cups sour cream, egg yolk, lemon juice, and salt in small saucepan. Heat over low heat, stirring constantly, until thick and hot. Remove from heat and stir in remaining ½ cup sour cream. Return to low heat; heat to serving temperature. Do not boil.

CUCUMBER SALAD DRESSING

1 cup sugar
⅓ cup Miracle Whip
¼ cup white vinegar
⅓ cup heavy whipping cream

Mix sugar and Miracle Whip. Add vinegar and stir well. Add whipping cream and stir again until thoroughly mixed. Chill for 1-2 hours. Pour over cucumber slices with onion.

Jennifer Grimes
Pa. Dairy Princess

BLUE CHEESE DRESSING

¾ cup crumbled blue cheese
3 ounces cream cheese
½ cup mayonnaise
⅓ cup half and half

Reserve ⅓ cup blue cheese. Beat remaining blue cheese and the cream cheese on low speed until blended. Add mayonnaise and half and half. Beat on medium speed until creamy. Stir in remaining blue cheese. Cover and refrigerate about 3 hours.

Jen Bashore
Lebanon Co. Dairy Princess

EASY CHEESEY SAUCE

8 ounces cold pack cheese (cheddar, smoked, Swiss, bacon, horseradish, port wine)
¼ cup milk

CREAMY PARMESAN HERB DRESSING

½ cup buttermilk
¼ cups grated parmesan cheese
½ teaspoon Italian seasoning
¼ teaspoon black pepper
1 tablespoon chopped green onions
1 tablespoon chopped sun-dried tomatoes, if desired

Place cottage cheese, buttermilk, parmesan cheese, Italian seasoning and pepper in food processor or blender. Blend until smooth. Stir in onions and sun-dried tomatoes, if desired. Cover and chill.

ROASTED RED PEPPER DRESSING

¾ cup roasted red bell peppers
⅓ cup plain yogurt
2 teaspoons balsamic vinegar
½ teaspoon garlic pepper
1 tablespoon minced parsley

Place red peppers, yogurt, vinegar, and garlic pepper in blend or food processor. Blend or process until smooth. Transfer to small bowl. Stir in parsley. Cover and chill at least 2 hours.

To roast pepper halves, place on pan, skin side up. Broil 2 to 3 inches from heat source. Watch carefully, turning until skins are black all over. Remove from heat; transfer to sealable food-safe plastic bag. Let steam 15 to 20 minutes. Remove from bag; peel off and discard blackened skin. If desired, jarred roasted peppers may be substituted. Rinse, drain, and dry peppers. Proceed as recipe directs, adding ½ teaspoon sugar with ingredients in blender or food processor.

Cook's Question

Chestnut-Flour Crepes

4 ounces raisins
½ cup light rum
2 cups plus 1 tablespoon chestnut flour
2 extra-large eggs plus 1 extra-large egg yolk
Pinch salt
2½ cups cold milk
15 ounces ricotta, drained
4 ounces bittersweet chocolate, coarsely chopped
3 tablespoons granulated sugar
4 tablespoons sweet butter

In a small bowl, soak the raisins in rum for about 30 minutes. Meanwhile, sift the flour into a bowl and make a well in it. Place the eggs and egg yolk in the well and start mixing with a wooden spoon very slowly, incorporating a little bit of flour. Be sure no lumps form, because it is very difficult to remove afterward. Add salt and while still mixing, add the milk little by little until all the milk and flour are incorporated. Let the batter stand for 30 minutes in a cool place or on the bottom shelf of the refrigerator. Place the ricotta in a large bowl and add the chocolate and sugar. Mix well with a wooden spoon until thoroughly combined, then drain the raisins and add them to the ricotta mixture. Mix gently until the raisins are well distributed. Cover the bowl, and place in the refrigerator until needed.

Melt the butter in a double boiler, then remove from heat. Using the batter and the melted butter, make the crepe,* according to directions. Place the crepes stacked on top of each other with paper towels between them to cool. May be prepared a day in advance and kept in refrigerator. After cooling, wrap completely with wax paper parchment paper. Butter two 13½ x8¾ -inch glass baking dishes. Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Place 2 tablespoons ricotta mixture on each crepe, roll it up and place it in one of the baking dishes with the seam side up. Repeat the procedure with all the crepes. Place the baking dishes in oven for 10 minutes, remove and serve immediately.

*Crepes: Brush an omelet pan 8½ -inches in diameter with melted butter and prepare to work quickly. Place the pan over low heat. Put about 3 tablespoons of the batter in a ladle, and when the pan is hot, pour batter into the pan and quickly swirl around until the bottom of the pan is covered. As the batter sets, shake the pan vigorously to keep the bottom of the crepe detached from the pan. All this happens very quickly, and after 40 seconds it should be firm enough to turn. Shake the crepe over the edge of the pan so, with fingers and thumb of both hands, you can quickly turn it over. Cook other side for only 5 seconds, then slip crepe onto aluminum foil. In a similar manner, make the remaining crepes and stack them on top of each other ANSWER — Kathy Szarko, Landisville, wanted recipes using chestnut flour. Thanks to a reader for sending two that can be stored in the freezer for up to 6 months.

Flat Chestnut Cake

3 tablespoons raisins
¼ cup lukewarm milk
2 cups plus 2 tablespoons Italian chestnut flour
1 tablespoon granulated sugar
Pinch salt
2 tablespoons pignoli (pine nuts) or walnuts, chopped
2 cups cold milk
3 tablespoons olive oil
1 tablespoon rosemary leaves

In small bowl, soak raisins in lukewarm milk for 20 minutes. Sift all but 1 tablespoon of the chestnut flour into a large bowl. Add sugar, pinch of salt, and the nuts. Mix well with a wooden spoon, add 2 cups cold milk little by little, stirring constantly and being careful to avoid lumps. Drain the raisins and flour with the remaining tablespoon chestnut flour. Add the raisins to bowl, along with 1 tablespoon of the olive oil and mix until smooth. Oil a round baking pan, preferably tin-lined copper 9½ x3-inches with the second tablespoon of olive oil (do not remove the excess from the pan). Preheat oven to 400 degrees.

Pour the contents of the bowl into the prepared pan and sprinkle the remaining tablespoon olive oil and the rosemary leaves over it. Place the pan in preheated oven for 40 to 50 minutes. (If you are not using a copper pan, the cooking time will be about 10 minutes less. Remove the cake from the oven and let set 15 to 20 minutes before serving. Serve from the same pan, sliced in the manner of a pie. Can be eaten cold, but do not keep in refrigerator.

ANSWER — David Akins of Blairsville wanted to know where to purchase monosodium glutamate. Thanks to Joan Lesley of White Hall, Md., who said it can be purchased in the spice section of supermarkets under the seasoning name of Accent.

Why Do Dogs Bark?

No One Knows For Sure

DONALD J. FREDERICK
National Geographic News Service

Woof! Woof! Woof! There it goes again, your neighbor's loud-mouthed dog. It's enough to drive you crazy.

Well, you may as well stop complaining, because nobody has figured out a fool-proof way to keep a raucous dog quiet. In fact, scientists can't even agree on why most dogs bark.

"It's because they're immature characters, like teen-agers, very hard to train," says dog expert Raymond Coppinger, a biologist at Hampshire College in Amherst, Mass.

Unlike their wild wolf relatives, which stop barking as they mature, dogs develop into noisemakers because of domestication, Coppinger theorizes. Instead of achieving "a rich adult repertoire of wolflike guttural growls and snarls," he says, "they became perpetual adolescents and come out with something we affectionately call the bark."

Coppinger once clocked a sheep dog in a remote Minnesota field that barked non-stop for seven hours. "I don't know if the dog is a record-holder, but I'm certainly the record-holder for listening without interrupting," he says with a rueful grin.

Even Coppinger stands in awe of the researcher who timed a cocker spaniel that yapped 907 times in 10 minutes.

Almost anything can set off a canine barking jab. "Dogs can bark at the moon, the wind or the rustling of trees," says Mark Feinstein, a professor of cognitive science at Hampshire.

"Sometimes they bark when there appears to be nothing happening at all. There seem to be an astonishing number of reasons, and it's unusual in the animal kingdom, where most creatures tend to vocalizel for a few specifics such as defending territories or finding mates."

Dogs that sound off because they have nothing better to do are called "boredom barkers," says Bonnie V. Beaver, chief of small-animal medicine and surgery at Texas A&M University.

"Dogs are social," she tells National Geographic. "Keeping a pet shut up in the back yard without any human interaction isn't realistic. They're going to do something. They'll dig, bark, jump over the fence or run in circles. That's basically all they can do. You've got to look for what's driving the animal to a particular behavior."

The secret of dogs' communication lies in the pitch and frequency of their baking, says Stanley Coren, a psychologist at the University of British Columbia who has studied canine intelligence.

Harsh training elicits menacing snarls from a dog in Kenya. Some experts think dogs communicate through the pitch and frequency of their barks. Lower tones convey threats, and rapid-fire sounds warn of approaching strangers. Dogs may bark at anything, and nobody has figured out how to keep them quiet.

"A higher-pitched bark can mean a dog's frightened, and a lower tone can convey a threat," he says. "A quick burst of four or five barks, the kind you hear when someone comes to the door, means 'Come over herd, someone's invading our territory.' Then there's the bark with a stutter to it that's an invitation to play."

Some owners inadvertently turn Bowser into a loudmouth. The pet starts howling in the yard about midnight. "Shut up, you stupid mutt!" someone shouts.

"The dog gets rewarded with a voice response, so it barks even more," Beaver explains, "and eventually it gets to come inside. That dog's training its owners very well."

Reacting to complaints, many communities have passed anti-barking laws. "Of course they don't stop dogs from barking," Beavers says, "but all of a sudden you've got a lot of frustrated owners looking for quick fixes instead of trying to deal with the initial problem of why their animals are barking."

Seeking instant cures, some dog owners have gone to such lengths as noise-activated devices that emit offensive odors or squirt water on offenders. A British inventor recently came up with a gadget that hangs around a dog's neck and emits a pungent lemon aroma every time the animal barks. Typical anti-bark collars produce unpleasant sounds or mild electric shocks.

Most such contraptions have one thing in common, the experts say: They don't work.

"Almost nothing will keep terriers from barking; it's in their genes," says Coren. "Everybody who owns a little terrier will tell you that its favorite game of all time is imaginary burglar. And it's always played between two or three o-clock in the morning, when in fact the dog is announcing that a leaf has fallen against the wall of the house."

But Coren is also convinced that canine heroes have saved many human lives with their clamor. "I tend to believe that barking dogs are often called for help or alerting people, whom they consider members of their pact, that something is going on," he says.

Heroes aside, how do you silence a noisy dog? Coren has a soothing solution: "No yelling; you don't say a word. Instead, you just stroke the dog, sort of run your hands along his head, down along the side of his chest and maybe a bit along the back. The dog will interpret that as meaning 'All's well, there must not be anything to bark about.'"

You hope.

A pooch voices displeasure at a painter. Many dogs need little or no excuse to bark, an exercise that may last for hours. Scientists don't agree on the reasons dogs vocalize. Animals that sound off for no apparent cause are frequently called "boredom barkers," but training failures by their owners may be to blame.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Over the years I've spent a lot of time reading the newspaper. Every day I try to get through the whole paper. It is easier to do in in wintertime than in summertime. And, easier to do now then when our six children were all living at home. I would save the papers, thinking that someday I would get around to reading them, but then eventually I'd throw them away when company was expected.

For some reason I scan the front page and then start at the back page. You can read the paper any way you want and don't have to take the news as it is presented to you on television. Sometimes I remember details of a scandal but don't read all the information on local government.

My parents always read the obituaries first and I thought that was morbid. But now that I'm older, I find that I try not to miss looking over the names too. When it comes to the comics, you can afford to be choosy and only read the ones that make you smile — sometimes they're hard to find.

Nowadays, there is so much information available and it comes to us much quicker than in previous years. The trouble is that much of it is bad news from the far corners of the world. However, there is important educational news such as that on health.

All of us have just so much time that we can devote to reading and thus we must pick and choose from the many magazines that come into our homes. Recently, I've subscribed to two new ones and hope that I'll find time to read them. My daughter tells me that I will like the "Smithsonian" and I hope that she is right.

4-H HAPPENINGS

County 4-H Members To Compete

Adams County 4-H members will be vying for special honors and awards when they compete at County 4-H Presentation Night to be held April 28 at 7 p.m. at the Biglerville High School.

You are invited to join the 4-H family, as 4-H members present communications skills.

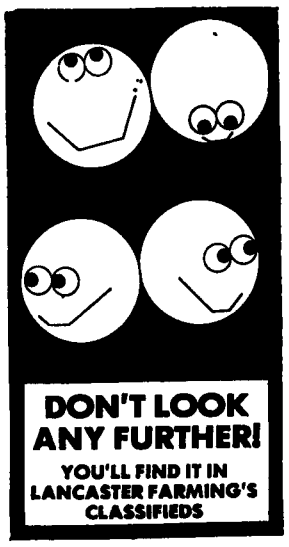
There are three communication formats you will be able to see in action: 1) the presentation is an organized illustrated talk using models, posters, slides, or other visual aids to help the member make his/her point; 2) the prepared speech is an organized talk with no illustrations and involves the use of words, voice, and gestures to help the member make his/her point; and 3) the impromptu speech is a talk on a familiar 4-H topic assigned to the member with 10 minutes to organize thoughts and involves the use of words, voice, and gestures to help the member make his/her point.

Those 4-H members participating have been busy preparing theirs presentations and speeches under the supervision of their local 4-H club leaders and parents. High scoring individuals and teams will be eligible to compete in the Regional 4-H Presentation Night scheduled July 21 near Mechanicsburg.

Winners in the senior division of presentations at Regional 4-H Night will then move on to even stiffer competition when they present their presentations or speeches at Penn State 4-H Achievement Days on August 2-4 at Penn State University.

The purpose of 4-H Presentation Night, according to County 4-H Agenty Jared Tyson, is both educational and competitive in nature. Through the experience, 4-H members develop self-confidence, self-esteem, communication skills, and increase their subject knowledge.

Each participant at 4-H Presentation Night will receive a 4-H T-shirt presented by the Adams County 4-H Senate. Refreshments will be served by the Equest 4-H Horse Club and registration will be done by Mt. Pleasant 4-H Club.



Safety Course

Six Adams County teens successfully completed the tractor and farm machinery safety course. The program was conducted by the Adams County Penn State Cooperative Extension 4-H program in cooperation with the high school vo-ag departments throughout the county.

Completion of the course included the following: attending eight consecutive evening training sessions that taught 11 different units, scoring a 70 percent or better on unit quizzes, scoring a 70 percent or better on a written exam, and safely demonstrating the ability to drive a tractor.

Also cooperating in presentation of the course was Finch's, Hanover; Yingling's Implements, Gettysburg; and 4-H leader Ed Wilkinson.

According to Jared Tyson, county 4-H agent, the high scoring individual was Chad Hollabaugh, East Berlin. Chad will be invited to a state tractor driving contest August 2-4 at Penn State. Others completing the course were Chris Hollabaugh, East Berlin; Keith Livelsberger, Gettysburg; Jonathan Miller, East Berlin; Ronnie Myers, Gettysburg; and Shawn Myers, East Berlin.

Child labor laws require 14 and 15 year olds hired by farmers to complete the safety course. The next course session will be offered in January 1995.

County-Wide Dairy Club

The April 11 meeting of the County-Wide Dairy Club was called to order by newly elected president David Day.

New Officers are president-David Day; vice president-Amanda Naugle; secretary-becky Cornman; assistant secretary-Patrick Snoke; news reporter-Matthew Day; treasurer-Betsy Walton and game coordinator-Kendra Naugle.

The club welcomed any new members and invited all people to come and give 4-H a try.

The old business was discussed and a report on the 4-H dairy banquet was given.

Award winners from the club were 1st Year Outstanding Member-Aaron Comman, and the Merle Miller Savings Bond-Matthew Day.

The club, in conjunction with the Blue Mountain Club are having a "Fitting and Showing Workshop" at the Harry and Aliene residence in Carlisle on Saturday, May 7.

Some other new business was discussed, including the 4-H Roundup, and a committee was appointed to work with ideas. Amy Kulick then gave a very informative demonstration on "Poisonous Plants to Dairy Cows."

The meeteing was then adjourned, and the club broke up into groups to work on project books.

The next 4-H meeting will be on May 9 at the Second Presbyterian Church in Carlisle.

4-H Keystone Winners

Three Adams County 4-H members were each selected as a 4-H Keystone winner in the National 4-H Award programs.

The winners were selected on the state level through judging of a member's 4-H Keystone Recoginition Form.

The top scoring individuals were selected as Keystone winners and invited to Penn State for a personal interview on May 3.

Based on the results of the interview, individuals will be selected as state winners and represent Pennsylvania at National 4-H Congress. Congress will be held in Orlando just after Thanksgiving.

The Adams County Keystone winners are Marci James, Gettysburg; Julie Zepp, New Oxford; and Kristin Johnston, Gettysburg.

You Ask ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? You Answer

In response to readers' questions, this column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for the answers. In the past many readers sent non-cooking requests to Cook's Question Corner, a column located in B 8.

"You Ask — You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. The concept is the same: When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed as soon as possible in the paper.

Questions and answers for this column should be addressed to You Ask — You Answer, Lou Ann Good, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522.

QUESTION — A. Nolt of New Holland would like to know the complete poem that was recited in the 1920s when her father-in-law went to school. The poem contains these lines: The carpenter's house is falling down. The preacher's kids are the worse in town....

QUESTION — Marie Lorah, Box 299 R.D.3, Tamaqua, PA 18252, is looking for water glasses with pictures of owls on them.

QUESTION — Romaine B. Ansell, Summerdale, would like to know who manufactured the Webalco electric skillet.

QUESTION — Nancy Kring, Johnstown, would like to know where you can purchase books and cassettes on the Pennsylvania Dutch language. Also, where can Pa. Dutch signs, cookbooks, and other memorabilia be purchased?

Urban Cowboys And Girls Enroll In Agriculture

CLAIRE MCCABE
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — What's a city slicker like you doing in a college like this? That question can hit an urban student in an agricultural college like a bale of wet hay.

Jean Lonie, John McGoldrick, and Sarah Schroer — who respectuvely, come from Philadelphia, a Manhattan bedroom in New Jersey, and Wilmington, Delaware — city kids who are enrolled in the College of Agricultural Sciences at the University of Delaware. How did they get from city life to an agricultural college?

Lonie headed in this direction in the eighth grade when she decided to attend Philadelphia's W.B. Saul Agricultural High School. four years in a secondary school that incorporated animal science, horticulture, and agronomics into its daily curriculum, convinced her to continue agricultural studies at the collegiate level.

As an agriculture economics major, the sophomore says she'll have a better chance at landing a job than if she were getting a general business degree.

"The job market for ag majors is wide open," she says. "When you think about it, so much comes under the title of agriculture. To some, agriculture equals farming. To me, agriculture equals life."

Lonie is still undecided about her exact career path. But she has considered becoming a spokesperson for an agricultural commodity group or getting a law degree and working for the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

McGoldrick had to fight a background of family and peers who had a limited view of career opportunities. Coming from a high school where everyone becomes a lawyer, doctor or business executive made it hard for McGoldrick to convince his parents that majoring in wildlife conservation was a worthwhile career move.

The senior admits that when he enrolled at the university, he didn't even know there was a major in wildlife conservation. After three semesters of general study, a counselor in the university career planning and placement office steered him in the direction of the agricultural college.

Acknowledging his own once narrow view of agriculture, McGoldrick has become an ag ambassador for the college to help others understand the breadth of study available here. He says it's especially important to visit high schools to let those students know about the career possibilities in agricultral science.

"I'm really happy I got into this area," says McGoldrick, who is planning to study avian or landscape ecology at the graduate level. "I'm looking forward to all the possibilities in my career."

Schroer always wanted to be a veterinarian, so majoring in animal science was a logical choice. But after working in a veterinarian's office she found that the business aspects didn't mesh with her romantic view. Fortunately her animal science laboratory work introduced her to the world of research, which she finds fascinating.

In working with a professor on a project, Schroer says, "I got a feel for the slowness of research and found that I liked the problem-solving aspects."

She's now applying to graduate schools to major in reproductive physiology. Although Schroer hadn't originally planned to major in an agriculture college, the senior says she's now glad that she did. Her background in biology and chemistry will serve her well in graduate school.

Each urban student has his or her own story of finding a path into the College of Agricultural Sciences. They all may feel a bit out of place at first. Actually, about 90 percent of all students enrolled in the college come from non-rural backgrounds. As the perception of what agriculture is broadens, so does the type of student attracted to the college.

FFA HAPPENINGS

Dover FFA Recognizes Members

The Dover FFA held its 42nd annual banquet on April 8 at the Wellsville Firehall, with Brian Smyser presiding.

More than 225 members, parents, guest and faculty were present. State FFA Sentinel Patrick Redding of Gettysburg provided a motivational introduction to the evening designed to recognize the achievements of the members and showcase their accomplishments.

Twenty-four new members received their Greenhand degrees, noting their enrollment in agricultural education courses, establishment of supervised agricultural experience (SAE) programs, and participation in local FFA activities. Laura Lease was selected as Star Greenhand for involvement in FFA above the local level through the Made For Excellence Conference and the county and area parliamentary procedure contests.

Sixteen second-year members received the Chapter FFA Degree for their expanded efforts in SAE, increased involvement in leadership activities, and continued course work within agriculture education. Kelli Macdonald and Lester Baney were named Stars in Agribusiness and Production for having an outstanding record of achievement in these areas. Both received proficiency awards for their efforts.

Brian Smyser, Angie Hollinger, and Mandy Rogers also received special recognition for their accomplishments. Brian was named the 1994 DeKalb Award winner, which annual goes to the senior who, during the past four years, exhibits outstanding leadership, scholarship, and citizenship. Brian served as chapter officer for three years, received his state Keystone Degree, the Extemporaneous Public Speaking Award, and the State Project Book Bronze medal. Angie Hollinger was awarded the Chapter Scholarship Award for outstanding scholastic achievement during the past four years. Angie was also recognized for having received her state Keystone Degree. Mandy Rogers was presented the Agriscience Student Award for her research efforts in food science. Mandy is conducting an independent study in this area of agriculture.

Honorary membership in the Dover FFA Chapter was presented to Mr. & Mrs. Rodney Smyser and Larry Redding. Mr. & Mrs. Smyser, parents of Brian and Jed Smyser, were inducted into membership for their support of chapter activities such as dairy judging, the Halloween float, the chapter Halloween party, and banquet preparation. Redding is in his third year as co-adviser to the FFA chapter with Nick Stollar. Redding was recognized for his contribution to the FFA chapters' activities.

Proficiency awards were also presented to Derwin Lamberson in agricultural mechanics, James Shultz in ag sales and service, Lester Baney in crop production, Kristi Ryder in horse production, Jed Smyser in placement in ag production, Jason Brubaker in speciality animal production, and Jon Bish in swine production.

The banquet closed with the installation of the 1994-1995 officer team: Jon Bish, president; Jed Smyser, vice president; Amanda Roger, treasurer; Kelli Macdonald, secretary; Kristi Ryder, reporter; Harry Border, sentinel; Ryan Keller, chaplin; and Jason Brubaker, parliamentarian.

Cookbook Offers Something For Every Taste

LOU ANN GOOD

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Hot off the press is the Manheim Christian Day School Cookbook.

Marty Smucker said that more than 900 recipes sent in by the school's patrons and friends are included in the hard-cover cookbook.

Originally, she and the committee anticipated receiving about 400 recipes.

"But the project just mushroomed," she said.

It grew so big that the original plan to publish a spiral-bound cookbook was squelched.

"The company said the book was too large to be spiral-bound," Marty said.

Instead, the book was hard-bound. But, of interest to cooks, the book lays nicely open to a selected recipe.

Only 1,000 copies of the cookbooks have been printed. The recipes are easy to read and attractively printed with the name of each contributor appearing with the recipe.

Included is a special section on party planning, which includes diagrams of napkin folding, buffet settings, and six easy steps to make a perfect pie. Guides include freezing, herb usage, diets, calories, first aid, and cooking charts. Suggested Bible passages are listed for those who are discouraged, anxious, tempted, or facing numerous other dilemmas.

The recipes were collected and sent to the publishing company in October 1993. After the galleries were printed, the cookbook committee proofread the recipes. In addition to Marty, the committee responsible for the cookbook included Bev Hosler, Carole Zeigler, and Twila Rohrer.

The committee had hoped to have the cookbook ready for Christmas sales last year. Instead, the publishing company promised them by June but sent them the beginning of April.

The cookbooks can be picked up at MCDS, 686 Lebanon Rd., Manheim, PA 17545 for $13 or shipped for $18, which covers postage and handling.

Here are several recipes from the cookbook.

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — The sizzle of browning sausage, the sing-song chant of the auctioneer, and the voices of friends and neighbors will permeate the grounds of Manheim Christian Day School on April 29 and 30. That's the date of the 18th annual Dutch Country Benefit Auction.

It's the time when patrons and friends combine their talents and energies to contribute works of art, food, collectibles, and usables to raise about $90,000.

It's also the place where local and out-of-state people return year after year to bid on the perfect quilt, a hand-crafted cradle or an

THREE CHEESE CHICKEN BAKE

½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper
3 tablespoons butter
10¾-ounce can condensed cream of chicken soup, undiluted
8-ounce can sliced mushrooms, drained
2-ounces chopped pimentos, drained
½ teaspoon dried basil
8-ounce package noodles, cooked and drained
3 cups diced, cooked chicken
2 cups ricotta or cottage cheese
2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
½ cup grated parmesan cheese
¼ cup buttered bread crumbs

In a skillet, saute onion and green pepper in butter until tender. Remove from the heat. Stir in the soup, mushrooms, pimentos and basil; set aside. In a large bowl, combine noodles, chicken, and cheeses; add mushroom sauces and mix well. Transfer to a greased 13x9x2-inch baking dish. Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees for 40 to 45 minutes or until bubbly. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake 15 minutes longer. Yield: 12 to 15 servings.

Virginia Brubaker

SUMMER FRUIT PLATTER PIE

2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅔ cup plus 2 tablespoons shortening
⅔ cup shredded cheddar cheese
4 to 5 tablespoons cold water
1½ pints fresh strawberries, halved
1 or 2 fresh pineapples, chunked
3 to 4 fresh peaches, sliced
2 to 3 cups seedless grapes
3 to 4 kiwi fruit
3 to 4 oranges, cut in half and cut crosswise

Combine flour, salt, and shortening until crumbly. Add cheddar cheese and cold water. Roll dough into large circle and place on ungreased 12-inch tart pan and flut edge. Prick bottom and side of pastry. Bake 8 to 10 minutes at 350 degrees. Cool. Prepare clear orange sauce. Arrange strawberry halves around edge of pastry shell. Place orange selections next. Arrange pineapple nuts. Place kiwis and grapes. Place a strawberri in the center. Spoon clear orange sauce over fruit. Cut into wedges to serve.

Clear Orange Sauce:

2 cups granulated sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups orange juice
1½ cups water
½ cup lemon juice

Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt. Add orange juice, water, and lemon juice to sugar, and cornstarch mixture. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until mixture thickens and boils. Boil and stir one minute. Remove from heat. Stir in ½ teaspoon each grated orange and lemon peel. Cool. Spoon over fruits on Summer Fruit Platter Pie.

antique chair. And — eat food.

The benefit auction is well-known for its chicken barbeque, strawberry pies, and homemade soups. There are pork rolls by Smucker's Meats, an on-site pig roast, country breakfasts, and racks of cakes, pies, and other goodies.

A sale preview dinner of chicken barbecue, baked potato bar, cole slaw, applesauce, roll, butter, and beverage for $4.75 is offered Friday evening on April 29, from 3:30-7:30 p.m.

The dinner is followed by an auction that begins at 7 p.m. Houseplants, bedding plants, toy tractors, selected certificates and other miscellaneous will be sold until 8 p.m. when the Winross truck auction begins.

The following day begins with a country breakfast served from 6 a.m. to 10 a.m. It includes orange juice and coffee with a choice of egg omelet and toast or pancakes and sausage.

At 9 a.m., Manheim and Lititz crocks and pottery, a Tiffany table lamp and matching accent lamp, oval mirror with oat frame and other furniture and collectibles will be auctioned until 11 a.m. when certificates for merchandise and services from many local businesses will be sold.

A fine collection of originals, limited and open edition prints will be auctioned at noon. These include "An Original" by Freiman Stoltzfus, "Rocky Springs Carousel" by Denny Bond, "Water Lilies," by David Brumback, and local art by Susie Riehl, Deb Smith, Arlene Fisher, P.Buckley Moss, Dan Barthold, Lisa Madenspacher, and Art Taft.

This year, a real eye-catcher is a Southern Cottage dollhouse handcrafted by Benjamin E. Brubaker. As usual, Abner Zook has prepared a special 3-D handcrafted painting. This year's offering is "The Old Saw Mill." Artist Linn Longenecker always selects one of his special paintings for the annual auction. This year's painting is "Lincoln Schoolhouse at Erismann." This schoolhouse was used by Manheim Christian Day School before they built their present school.

Thirty-three top-quality quilts in traditional and unique patterns will be sold, beginning at 1 p.m. Many quilts have matching items, wallhangings, and pillows that will be sold separately.

Quilt patterns include Country Love, Sampler, Mariner's Compass, Patchwork Hearts, Tree of Life, Feathered heart with Doves, Philadelphia Pavement, Nonesuch, Dogwood Bliss, Stars over Georgetown, and others.

Some new and miscellaneous items to be sold include a 20-25-foot maple tree that will be planted on the property of the highest bidder, a handmade croquet set by Norman Sauder, shrubbery, mulch by the scoop or truckload, firewood, and sporting goods.

The school is located at 686 Lebanon Rd., which is one mile north of Manheim on Rt. 72. For more information, call (717) 665-4300.

JAY'S SUNDAY POTATOES

Potatoes, washed and cut in half
1 large onion, sliced in round slices
2 to 3 tablespoons butter
1½ cups shredded cheese
Parmesan cheese
Salt and pepper, to taste

In 13x9x2-inch glass baking dish, melt butter in microwave oven. Lay sliced onions in butter. Place half of pototo on top of each onion slice, sliced side down. Sprinkle cheeses over potatoes. Add seasonings. Cover with paper towel. Microwave on high until potatoes are soft, approximately 20 minutes.

Entrepreneur Raises Belgian Blue For Lean Beef Market

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — When Brent Brubaker talks about his Belgian Blue cattle, his words tumble over each other in his enthusiasm for the breed.

"The genetics produce lean, tender beef 40 percent more quickly than other breeds and 40 percent leaner," he said.

While a staunch Holstein supporter might think the Belgian Blue breed appears a bit odd with its lumpy rumps and bluish black spots, Brubaker believes the breed with its Belgian origin is beautiful and tasty.

In fact, taste with low fat content is the reason that Brubaker began raising the breed.

He is convinced that if the fat content in beef is lowered and the price is competitive with other meats, the market for beef will explode.

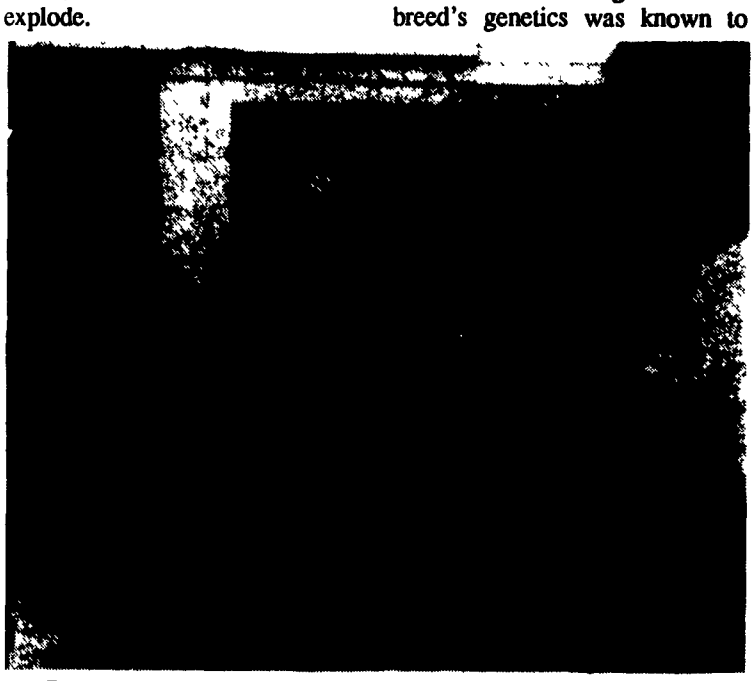
Plans for marketing the Belgian Beef he is raising under the label of Lancaster Lite Beef are already in the final stage.

A former 4-H'er and president of the county 4-H dairy club, Brubaker said his heart was always in farming. He grew up raising beef and milking cows on his grandfather's Mount Joy farm, which is now owned by his father J. Kenneth Brubaker and an uncle Harold Brubaker.

He went to college to study marketing and was graduated two years ago. His enthusiam for the Belgian Blue breed was sparked, when as a college junior, he visited his uncle's farm in Ashboro, N.C. His uncle raises Belgian Blues for breeding purposes. He selects cattle from Belgian, which are imported via England because of import restrictions.

Brubaker was intrigued that the breed's genetics was known to grow 40 percent more rapidly and produce 40 percent more meat than Angus, Herefords, and Continental breeds.

Brent Brubaker stands in front of the barn that had been his grandfather's and now is owned by his dad and a uncle, but used by Brent to raise Belgium Blue cattle.



Brubaker prefers that pictures of his cattle be taken from the rear where the difference is most noticeable between Belgian Blues and other breeds. The cattle have what is referred to as double musceling.

The lumpy appearance of the cattle is not fat, but double musceling, which means more meat when butchered.

On the rail, the carcass has little fat cover and there is little marbeling.

The breed is rare in the U.S., but growing. Brubaker estimates that there are about 2,000 scattered across the states.

"Belgian Blues fatten faster and are ready to butcher at a younger age, which makes the breed a more profitable meat animal than another breed," Brubaker said.

This is a picture of the steaks that Brent markets under the label of Lancaster Lite Beef. Marbeling and fat cover is less than that of USDA choice and prime.

"The beef industry wants fat cover and heavy marbeling for quality beef, because they think fat makes beef taste better," Brubaker said. "But I can produce steak that will taste as good and tender without the fat."

Because beef is graded by fat marbling rather than taste, the Belgian Blue appears more like a good grade than choice or prime.

"I can produce steak that is only graded good under present USDA standards and it will taste as good and tender as a prime. The industry believes quality equals marbeling and fat, but I say quality equals tenderness and fat to some degree," Brubaker said.

Fat comparisons by a local laboratory show that a Lancaster Lite boneless roast has 1.8 grams of fat and a T-bone steak 2.7 grams fat compared with 18.2 grams of a T-bone USDA choice. A whole skinless chicken has 6.4 grams.

"My target market is females from 20 to 50 who are educated on health issues," Brubaker said.

This segment of the population is less inclined to eat red meat because of the fat content, but would be interested in purchasing beef that is comparable in fat and price to chicken and fish.

"If it (lean beef) costs too much, it eliminates the market," he said. "To be marketable, it must have these four qualitities — lean, taste, high quality, and the right price."

Brubaker believes his beef is the solution. While other segments of the industry are experimenting with raising lean beef at lower costs, Brubaker believes that Belgian Blue cattle gives an edge. "They grow faster and have more meat on the carcass than other breeds."

Brubaker brags that his steaks can be cut with a fork.

The secret, he says, is in growing young bulls and butchering them at 10 to 12 months of age.

"I know people don't like the thought of eating bull meat. They think it is tough and has an odd taste," Brubaker said. "But studies show that bulls produce much leaner meat, and if butchered young, the meat is tender. The odd flavor is the result of improper handling and butchering."

Generally steers are finished for the market and killed about 18 months of age. A bull at that age would result in tough meat.

When Brubaker first began experimenting with Belgian Blues, he purchased a Holstein herd, planning to milk the cows and to inseminate them with Belgian Blue stock. But the process toward developing the meat proved too slow.

"You only have a 50 percent chance on getting a bull calf once a year," he said. "So now I collect semen from the bull and sell it to farmers for $5 with a contract that promises that I will buy back all healthy calves — male and female — for $200 when born and fed colostrum."

Female calves are sold since they grow more body fat. When bull calves are turned into steers, it not only removes the hormones that cause them to be tamer, but also the growth hormones. For that reason Brubaker doesn't want to turn his bulls into steers.

Brubaker feeds the bulls a vertically-intergrated diet of corn and grass.

He keeps precise records. He has a computer program to tract markets, feeding, and the fat content results.

In Belgian, calves are taken by c-section because they have a tendancy to get stuck in the birth canal ramp due to the extra muscling of Belgian Blue cows. By cross-breeding with Holstein cows, birth problems have been eliminated, Brubaker said.

The bull that Brubaker uses for his own stock was born in Belgian and imported from England. It was chosen for producing offspring that are in the 70- to 90-pound weight range and have correct legs.

Brubaker grew up as the son of a doctor who was concerned about the fat content in beef. "Then we only had beef about four times a year, but now, my dad is my biggest fan of what I'm doing and we eat it five times a week," Brubaker said.

"Some care more about health than taste, but I think health and taste are equally important," Brubaker said.

He distributes much of his meat to the medical community. His marketing stragedy is to offer samples to grocery stores, institutions, and restaurants.

Brubaker says that most of those who taste his beef believe the taste is equal to a prime rib. A few diehards who believe fat must be present for flavor and prefer to eat fat are skeptical.

One, a retired butcher, automatically dismissed the idea of lean meat being flavorable by saying, "No waste, no taste. Lean meat is terrible."

But Brubaker shrugs off that criticism as a preconceived out-of-date belief.

"The guy has had two triple bypasses," he said.

Brubaker believes the educated consumer will choose meat with less fat because it is more healthful eating.

"You can eat two of my burgers for lunch and two more for supper, and still have 15 fat calories to eat on other food," he said.

In his search for a meat packer who does a quality job and vaccum packs, Brubaker chose John F. Martin, butcher.

To preserve the flavor and juiciness, the meat is vaccum packed and frozen immediately.

Of some concern to Brubaker is the fact that the meat appears dark red when processed by this method. When meat is exposed to oxygen, it turns a bright red, which seems to be more eye appealing to customers. If the meat is removed from the sealed bag and exposed to the air, it will also turn a bright red. Brubaker's concern is that the average consumer will be less inclined to pick up the meat because of the preconceived idea that it should be bright red.

Because the carcass does not have the normal covering of fat, the beef is shrouded to prevent moisture loss during aging the beef for nine to 10 days. Brubaker said that it costs $300 for the USDA tests to certify that his beef is 90 percent lean. Now, he needs $5,000 to design a package and a certified label.

While Brubaker has had potential investors offer money that would enable his marketing of Lancaster Lite Beef to move at a faster pace, Brubaker declined. "I can think better when I'm poor," he said.

He wants to thoroughly examine every aspect of the breeding, raising, butchering, and marketing process.

"Those with more money can afford to make mistakes. I can't. If I do it myself, it forces me to mimize expenses, to think through each step before acting on it.

"Whenever I solve a problem, I love it," Brubaker said. "But the next step is always terrifying to me."

His goal is to market the beef under the Lancaster Lite label within a year.

MULTIPLY YOUR EFFICIENCY

Kubota's B-Series compact diesel tractors have so many uses they'll actually multiply your efficiency around the homestead or farm.

On the B-50 Series, choose from 14-20 PTO horsepower tractors, all with standard mid and rear PTO. Put a sturdy 2 wheel drive model to work, or select a 4 wheel drive model with Kubota's optional, revolutionary Bi-Speed turn. Hydrostatic transmission is also available to save you footwork and time.

From home use to commercial applications, the B7100 HST 16 HP tractor is just right for all kinds of jobs. This tractor comes with hydrostatic transmission – that means there is no gear shift. And, the B7100 4WD compact tractor is powered by a Kubota liquid-cooled diesel engine.

See your neighborhood Kubota dealer today, and let them show you how a Kubota B-Series tractor can multiply your efficiency.

Kubota Tractor Corporation markets a full line of tractors through a nationwide network of over 1,000 dealers.

N.E. DHIA Co-op Holds Info Meetings

ITHACA N.Y. — The management and staff of the Northeast Dairy Herd Improvement Association, based in Ithaca, N.Y., has recently completed its twice-yearly series of meetings designed to keep current on members' needs.

According to a news release made this week, "District advisories are meetings in which the DHIA management staff and board of directors have an opportunity to hear the thoughts, ideas and concerns of a representative group of the DHIA cooperative."

The representative group consisted of 145 delegates.

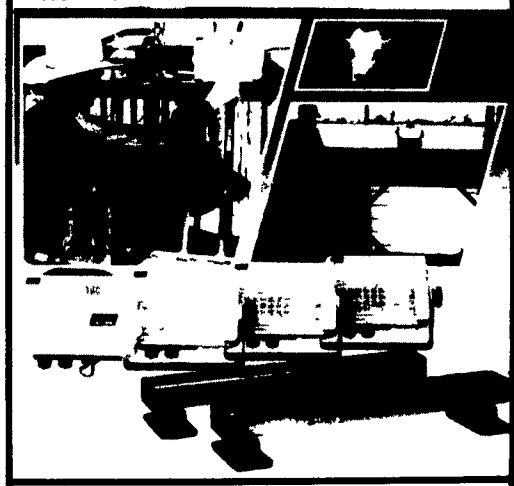
AGRICULTURAL WEIGHING SYSTEMS

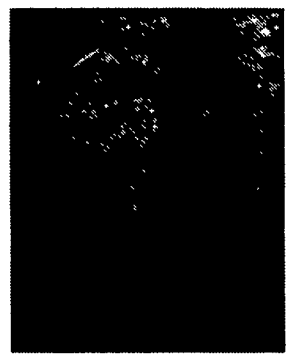


WayPig 500 ANIMAL SCALE

The bottom platform has non-skid surface with no gaps on the side through which feet can slip. The entire unit including sides and gates, serve as the weighing area. WayPig 500 & 505 scales can be ordered with wheels that can be quickly raised for level weighing.
WayPig 505 - 20"Wx60"Lx41-¼ "H

WayPig LITTER SCALE

All Four Wheels Swivel



An entire litter can be placed in the portable WayPig at one time, as the scale handles loads up to 200 lbs. The oversize scale quickly gives you clear, precise readout of the total litter weight in both pounds and kilograms. The compact design lets you easily glide through narrow aisles and around tight corners.

Job Fair: Companies Eager To Hire Ag Graduates

NEWARK, Del. — The large meeting room at the University of Delaware Perkins Student Center was bustling with activity.

Wall-to-wall booths staffed by representatives from 35 companies were drawing interested students. The room hummed with eager conversations about the future and jobs.

This is a scene not often played out these days in a job market that looks bleak for many college graduates. Yet the College of Agricultural Sciences career fair, held last month at the University of Delaware, is proof that agriculture has a lot to offer the well-prepared, career-minded graduate.

When other fields are downsizing, a degree in agriculture still means choices. In fact, the U.S. Department of Agriculture reports that 50,000 new graduates are sought each year to fill jobs in the ever-expanding field of agriculture.

Karen Roth, assistant to the dean of the college, began the career fair for agricultural sciences majors five years ago.

"People assume they know what agriculture is, but fewer than 10 percent of our graduates actually work on a family farm. There are so many opportunities beyond production agriculture," Roth said. "At the fair, students are exposed to the many different opportunities in agriculture.

"Though job interviews can and do come out of this event, students take part for other reasons — it's a good place to begin networking," Roth said. "It's also an opportunity to make contacts for summer internships with industries and laboratories."

This year's fair attracted nine new companies. Most of the businesses are from Delaware, where agricultural industries seem to be thriving, and Maryland, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania.

A poultry-processing company representative talks with a student about job opportunities during the University of Delaware College of Agricultural Sciences career fair last month.

Among the businesses that set up career booths to attract the latest crop of agricultural graduates are pharmaceutical manufacturers, poultry processors, stock breeders, environmental and recycling firms, government, agencies, pest control firms, commodity wholesalers, public gardens, environmental agencies, and chemical corporations.

A representative from a commodities wholesaler said about the career fair, "We come every year. Our business is continually expanding, and we're looking for people with business skills and a background in agriculture. In our business, you can't beat the combination."

NEW BLOOMFIELD (Perry Co.) — "Don't wait until the Dauphin Narrows are no longer narrow!"

With that statement, Dr. Herb Cole, professor in the College of Agricultural Sciences, challenged those attending the Perry County Extension annual Meeting to plan for the future and manage the development that will be coming to the county.

Cole used examples and slides from other Pennsylvania locations where agricultural and rural interests are currently in conflict with rapidly suburbanizing areas.

Cole stressed the importance of the agricultural land preservation program and agricultural security areas to avoid nuisance ordinances hindering agricultural work in a community.

"A township in southeastern Pennsylvania currently has proposed an ordinance to keep farm equipment off of all roads before 9 in the morning and after 4 p.m. in the evening. Additionally, this township wants to ban all farm equipment from working in the field after 8 in the evening," said Cole. He asked the farmers in the audience a rhetorical question, "Could you operate within these restrictions?"

More than 100 county residents were in attendance to hear Cole speak, and he challenged each of them. "Whether you are a farmer, resident, county commissioner, legislator, township official, or just plain citizen, it is up to you to determine where and how growth will occur in this county. Plan for growth. Plan also to keep your valuable agricultural economy."

In other business conducted during the meeting, chaired by Extension Board President Brenda Benner, Millerstown, the following new board members were elected: Michael Brennan, Newport; Peggy Raub, Duncannon; Oscar Campbell, New Port; Kelley Griswald, Millerstown; and Walter Martz, Duncannon.

Judi Mains, a 4-H member from the Duncannon area, presented her experience at the National 4-H Congress in Chicago last December. Mains not only mentioned the fun and excitement of the experience of meeting other 4-H members from around the nation, but stressed the role the 4-H program has had in her development and preparation for life.

Dave Swartz, county extension director, presented certificates to those individuals completing training in the Penn State Master Gardener Program. Receiving certificates were Kay Cramer, New Buffalo; Jolene Hoffman, Shermansdale; Joyce Boyer, Newport; Michael Brennan, Newport; and Virginia Dorwart and Ginger Stroup, both of McAlisterville.

Other recognitions extended during the evening were the Conservation Farm Cooperator of the Year awards presented by the Perry County Soil Conservation District. Those honored by Conservation District Board Chairman Robert Cauffman, Millerstown; included the James Shutt family, Newport; the Frank O'Toole family, Loysville; the Raymond Shutt family, Newport; and the Perry County Fair Board. All these individuals have installed stormwater control and run-off structures, such as grass waterways, rip-rap along drainage ditches, and tile drainage to control and prevent soil erosion.

Junior Hereford Expo To Be Held At Rocking Chair Ranch

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Junior Hereford members and their families will be "Rocking in Texas" July 20-23 at All-American Junior Hereford Expo to be held at Rocking Chair Ranch, Ft. McKavett, Texas.

The Rocking Chair Ranch's Lipan Spring Division, located approximately 25 miles southeast of San Angelo, will serve as the headquarters for all Expo activities.

As a veteran Expo host from 1985, Rocking Chair Ranch owner L.C. Whitehead, managers Harley Loso and Mark and Theresa McClintock, along with many Texas Hereford supporters, plan to show guests true "Texas-style hospitality."

Much attention will surround the show ring where junior exhibitors will compete for national recognition in the heifer, bred-and-owned bull, bred-and-owned heifer, steer and cow/calf divisions. Anticipated record totals of more than 300-head of cattle from 28 states are expected to be exhibited. Judge of the heifer and cow/calf divisions will be Kevin Jensen, Courtland, Kan., Chris Skaggs, College Station, Texas, will judge the bred-and-owned heifer and bull and steer divisions.

In addition to the cattle shows, the National Showmanship Contest will be held. In its 23rd year, the contest allows only one individual per state to compete.

Traditionally, the contestants have been evaluated on their fitting and show ring skills; however, for the second time in the history of the competition, contestants will be judged on their clipping, fitting and showing abilities.

Rocking Chair Ranch provided the opportunity at the 1985 Expo and, once again, will provide halter broke and unclipped heifers for the competition.

A new addition this year will be a junior and intermediate showmanship contest for junior members 14 years and younger. The competition is open to all junior members and the exhibitors will only be evaluated on their showing abilities.

Outside of the show ring, everyone will have an opportunity to cool off in the Ranch's natural spring pool and canal.

A state challenge of canoe races will be one of the highlights. Each state team consisting of two juniors will paddle down the canal in hopes of earning the best time. In addition, a celebrity canoe race will be held to entertain everyone.

Juniors will put their Hereford knowledge to the test during the Quiz Bowl Contest. The contest consists of a four-member state team answering questions pertaining to the Hereford breed and practices utilized in day-to-day cattle operations. Everyone will be able to test their cattle evaluation skills in the judging contest, and cooking abilities and creativity will surface during the All-American Hereford Cook-Off.

Through the support of an anonymous donor, twenty-five-$1,000 Scholarships of Scholastic Merit will be presented to junior members who have excelled academically and plan on attending college in the fall of 1994. In addition, the American Hereford Women will award two outstanding junior members with $500 John Wayne Memorial Scholarships based upon their scholastic, leadership, and agri-industry involvements.

For further information on the largest Hereford event of the year, contact the American Hereford Association, Youth Department, P.O. Box 014059, Kansas City, MO 64101, (816) 842-3757.

The Cumberland County Cooperative Extension Association recently held their annual meeting at the Penn Township Firehall, Huntsdale. Program highlights were presented by Nancy Hackett, Mechanicsburg, master gardener, center, describing her success with the 4-H Project "Meet the Plant" and Matthew Day, Shippensburg, right, who told of his 4-H dairy experiences this past year. Lamartine Hood, dean of the College of Agricultural Science, presented a "Penn State Update."

Cumberland Extension Holds Meeting

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — Donald Deckman, Mechanicsburg, received the AA Raudabaugh Memorial Award at the 77th annual Cumberland County Cooperative Extension Association meeting at the Penn Township Firehall recently.

The award recognizes leadership and service that Deckman has provided to the county in the past several years, according to the extension.

Program highlights were presented by Nancy Hackett, Mechanicsburg, a master gardener who described her success with the 4-H project "Meet the Plant." Matthew Day, Shippensburg, told of his 4-H dairy experiences the past year, which included judging dairy animals at 4-H State Days and participation in the All American Dairy Show and the National 4-H Dairy Judging Contest.

Lamartine Hood, dean of the Penn State College of Agriculture Science, presented a "Penn State Update" to those in attendance.

Choose Poultry Replacements Carefully

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — With spring rapidly approaching, the time to buy day-old chicks for your poultry flock has arrived.

Dr. Charles J. Wabeck, extension poultry and food science specialist at the University of Maryland's Lower Eastern Shore Research and Education Center in Princess Anne, offers some advice on buying and caring for your chicks.

Wabeck said that one of the most important factors in buying day-old chicks is that you purchase the stock from a reputable source. The source has a large influence on the health and reproductive capabilities of your flock. He warns growers to be wary of hatcheries that sell bargain day-old chicks at low prices. Often these are the source of weak, nonproductive poultry.

Wabeck stresses that buyers should make sure their hatchery source is part of the National Poultry Improvement Plan (NPIP), which regulates standards of cleanliness and sanitation to ensure a healthy flock. NPIP flocks also have been tested free of pullorum-typhoid, a disease that shows up in the infected parents' offspring as unthriftiness, slow growth, diarrhea, and mortality. Buying from clean hatcheries is an important management practice that improves flock health.

"It's important that proper management and health practices are followed once the stock reaches your premises," said Wabeck. If the following practices are put into use, you will have a greater chance of having healthy and profitable poultry:

- Always feed a commercial starter ration that has vital nutrients necessary for proper poultry development.
- Give baby chicks a medicated feed with a coccidiostat which prevents an internal parasite that decreases growth.
- Provide fresh water at least once a day.
- Practice good biosecurity to decrease spread of disease. Do not let persons with clothing worn in other chicken houses enter your premises and do not visit other people's chicken houses without clean, disinfected clothes. Also, keep your birds confined, so they can not roam and contract diseases from wild birds or animals.
- Keep wild birds and rodents off your premises. They eat feed that is costly and are carriers of diseases, as well.

The Cooperative Extension Service, University of Maryland at College Park, provides two valuable publications for the use of small flock owners. "Sources of Poultry and Supplies for Small Flock Owners" provides a partial list of commercial firms that supply eggs as well as day-old and grown birds. It can be obtained from the Department of Poultry Science, Room 3115, Animal Sciences Center, University of Maryland, College Park, MD 20742 or from the Lower Eastern Shore Research and Education Center, 11990 Strickland Drive, Princess Anne, MD 21853-1247.

A second publication, "Your Home Flock" (MEP 400), provides management and health maintenance information for small flock owners. For a copy, write to Information and Publications, University of Maryland, 6200 Sheridan St., Riverdale, MD 20737.

Your county cooperative extension service is a source of additional educational materials. Look for the telephone number under county government listings in the blue pages of your telephone directory.

Angus Test Results Released

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Angus Association announces the results of the Angus bulls on test at the Pennsylvania 21st Annual Performance testing program.

Twenty-seven outstanding Angus bulls completed the testing program February 15. Out of this group, the best 24 Angus bulls were selected to be included in the 21st Performance Tested Bull Sale on Friday, March 25. The sale is scheduled for noon in the Ag Arena on the campus of Penn State University.

These bulls have had to pass rigid exams, including structural correctness screening, the breeding soundness exam, and the collection of semen from each bull.

The Angus bull that attained top-indexing honors is a GDAR Gold Nugget 766 son consigned by Joe and Bobbi McMullen. This bull exhibits a very desirable combination of the lowest birth weight EPD, +0.6 pounds and the second fastest gain of the 75 bulls, of all breeds, on test. This bull gained 4.62 pounds per day on test and recorded the adjusted yearling weight of 1,354 pounds. This was the second highest among the Angus.

The Angus bull with the highest yearling weight is the second-highest indexing Angus. This R&J Maxima son was an embryo transfer calf and gained 4.42 pounds per day on test. This large, growthy bull had an adjusted 365-day weight of 1,328 pounds and was consigned by ErReR Hill Farms.

Paul and Bette Slayton consigned two GT Maximum sons, which will be lots 24 and 26. These two bulls gained very well on test and finished as the third and fifth highest indexing black bulls. The lot number 24 bull had the highest average daily gain of any of the 75 bulls of all breeds on test. This gain of 4.63 pounds per day on test ratioed 124.

The Association has a great selection of Angus bulls with calving ease, low birth weights, muscularity, and high growth rates to choose from. It also has individual feed efficiencies, pelvic measurements, and scrotal circumferences available on all of these bulls. Bulls that have this much information available on them, as well as the objectivity under which the information is gathered and calculated, are unavailable anywhere else in Pennsylvania.

To request a catalof or more information about the bulls, contact Glenn Eberly, Director, Meat Animal Evaluation Center, 651 Fox Hollow Rd., State College, PA 16803, (814) 238-2527 or (814) 865-5857.

Special Silage Round Baler From Ford

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The New Holland Model 640 Silage Special Roll-Belt™ round baler from Ford New Holland makes dense, uniform bales four feet wide and up to five feet high in dry or high-moisture crop.

"The 640 Silage Special is superior in two important characteristics," said product manager Jim Payton. "First, it's designed for positive crop flow from pickup to discharge in tough conditions. Then, equally important, it gives the operator superior control of the operation, especially in bale size and density — features that are more critical for silage bales than for dry crop.

"The baler has extra ruggedness for silage baling," said Payton. "It starts at the pickup where the extra width handles both large-volume dry crop and flat, rank silage. The wider pickup also helps operators fill bale ends with tightly packed crop to form 'square-shouldered' bales that are easier to wrap and stack."

The New Holland 640 Silage Special round baler from Ford New Holland handles both dry and high-moisture crop for silage. A heavy-duty "stuffer" feeder provides smooth crop flow to the variable bale chamber. A hardened, roll-belt scraper prevents buildup in wet or gummy silage crops.

A heavy duty "stuffer" feeder provides smooth crop flow from the pickup to the variable bale chamber. The feeder tines are equipped with steel-welded teeth for smooth feeding action in heavy crops. A variable hydraulic density system allows operator choice of bale size and density that best fits the operation.

Elliott Named To NALF Position

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — Doyce Elliott has been named communications specialist for the North American Limousin Foundation (NALF).

As communications specialist, Elliott will be responsible for much of the organization's member and industry news communication.

Elliott brings a wealth of experience to her position. She is an ag journalism graduate of Texas A&M University and worked as editor of Shorthorn Country Magazine.

Elliott was a member and national director of the North American Limousin Junior Association. While in school, she also served as NALF's first Limousin ambassador.

"We're excited to have Doyce as part of the team," said Wes Ishmael, NALF director of advertising and communications. "Between Doyce's past Limousin involvement and her professional credentials, we have a chance to enhance our communications efforts and provide more service to our membership."

Doyce Elliott

He points out that the breed's rapid expansion has placed increasing emphasis on the breed's ability to communicate quickly and effectively with the industry.

Based on annual registrations, Limousin is the second largest beef breed in the nation.

Farm Credit Hires Executive Director

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Jonas B. Kauffman III has been hired as executive director of Pennsylvania Farm Credit Financial Management Services (FMS).

The announcement was made by Philip Kimmel, on behalf of the Keystone, Northeastern, and York Farm Credit associations.

As executive director, Kauffman will be responsible for the daily operation of the FMS programs throughout the state.

Kauffman worked for Farm Credit of Western New York. Prior to joining Farm Credit, he worked for the extension service of Cornell University. As an extension associate with the New York State Dairy Profitability & Productivity Project ("PRODAIRY"), Kauffman provided leadership in developing and delivering a financial management curriculum to farm managers across New York state.

Kauffman also has direct experience in managing a farm business. He is a native of Lewistown and received his undergraduate degree from Penn State and a master's degree from Cornell.

Gleaner Introduces Combine Engine Options

ATLANTA, Ga. — With the introduction of its new Model 500 flexible (cutterbar) headers, Gleaner continues to deliver the performance, easy maintenance, and capacity that combine owners and operators have come to expect from the 71-year veteran in the industry.

Available in seven widths from 15 to 30 feet, the Model 500 headers are designed to match any farm size and cropping program. The expanded size range even includes two new sizes, according to Jerry Weaver, general marketing manager for Gleaner combines at AGCO Corporation.

"With the Model 500, we've introduced a new 30-foot flexible header and we've replaced the previous 24-foot size with a new 25-foot model," he said.

"The extra foot of width allows a producer to harvest a full 10 rows of soybeans at 30-inch spacing without the worry of squeezing out that tenth row," said Jerry Schmitt, manager of AGCO Sales Engineering. "The benefits to the operator include improved handling, lower pre-harvest loss and less fatigue."

Gleaner Introduces Combine Headers

ATLANTA, Ga. — Already the combine industry leader in power and engine choices, Gleaner stretches its lead even further in 1994 with the introduction of a liquid-cooled eingine on the Gleaner R72 model.

Boasting 300 engine horsepower, the 611-cubic-inch (10.1 liter) Cummins "L10" Advantage power plant features high torque and performance at a low 2,100 rpm rated engine speed.

Turbocharged and after cooled, the new engine also uses Cummins' new Centry™ electronic fuel system to control engine power and speed.

"This new system is unlike anything on the combine market," said Jerry Weaver, general marketing manager for Gleaner combines at AGCO Corporation. "Not only is it extremely accurate, but the Centry™ system provides 'all speed' engine governing without the need for mechanical linkage governors. Engine idle speed is also held constant despite load applications up to 75 percent of total engine horsepower."

Eby Names Factory Representative

BLUE BALL (Lancaster Co.) — M.H. Eby, Inc. has appointed Brad Plank to the position of factory sales representative at its main plant in Blue Ball.

Plank will be responsible for field sales of all Eby-manufactured products and Timpte grain hopper trailers in Pennsylvania and the Mid-Atlantic market.

Plank's background includes 13 years of experience in the truck trailer industry, with the last nine years in retail sales of bulk commodity and livestock equipment. He received a bachelor's degree from Bryan College, Dayton, Tenn.

Spreader Is Upgraded

MORGANTOWN (Berks Co.) — Stoltzfus Spreaders introduces the model 56i spreader, designed to spread a wide variety of agricultural materials with equal efficiency.

The 56i is built with enough structural strength and durability to spread damp stockpiled lime, and has features which allow farmers to make accuratge applications of fertilizer. An improved tandem wheel ground drive system ensures accurate fertilizer application at rates as low as 100 pounds/acre, and as high as three tons/acre for lime.

The 56i features walking beam suspension for smoother travel over uneven terrain. The UHMW plastic hopper floor cannot corrode or freeze.

For more information, contact Gary Lake, Stoltzfus Spreaders, P.O. Box 527, Morgantown, PA 19543, (800) 843-8731.

Alfa Laval Agri To Hold Training Sessions

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Alfa Laval Agri Delta Livestock Systems division will be conducting 11 training sessions throughout the country during the next two months to train and give dealer orientation on manure and livestock waste management.

The two-day intensive training session for area dealers will cover the subjects of needs assessment, system design and application, and installation of Alfa Laval Agri's new waste management products.

"We see this as an important area for our customers as local and state agencies enforce the regulations for proper handling of dairy and livestock waste," said Mark Juett, senior marketing manager, who is responsible for the waste management program.

There is limited space available at the training sessions. Any Alfa Laval Agri dealer interested may make reservations to attend or find out more information by calling (800) 365-1883.

Attendees of Alfa Laval Agri's Two-Day Waste Management Session watch a demonstration of Alfa Laval Agri's new Delta™ Separator System.

Dekalb Genetics Reports Second-Quarter Earnings

DEKALB, Ill. — Dekalb Genetics Corporation recently reported improved revenues for the second fiscal quarter, driven by higher sales of U.S. corn and soybean seed, as well as swine breeding stock. However, net earnings for the quarter were lower than the previous year primarily because of higher corn production costs affecting both U.S. and international seed margins.

For the quarter ended February 28, 1994, net earnings were $5.7 million, or $1.09 per share, compared with $7.1 million or $1.38 per share, in the same period last year. Revenues for the quarter rose 9 percent to $143.0 million from $131.4 million. Earnings for the quarter included an after-tax benefit of $1.0 million, or 20 cents per share, resulting from the company's decision to suspend the defined benefit portion of its retirement program.

"As we have previously indicated, higher production costs relating to last summer's crop have significantly lowered unit margins for U.S. seed corn," said Bruce P. Bickner, chairman and chief executive officer."These production costs have also affected international results, reducing volume and profitability of U.S.-sourced seed for export markets.

"Although higher corn costs have posed a challenge, we are otherwise very pleased with the performance of our North American seed business," he said. "We are seeing excellent demand for our seed corn this season, with several varieties having been sold out. In addition, the pace of soybean sales has been exceptional." Bickner noted that North American and European seed results are primarily realized in the second and third quarters. Thus, the combined total of the two quarters is the best indicator of seed results.

"Our swine business is also having a good year, with breeding stock sales running significantly ahead of last year," Bickner said. "Demand continues to be very strong for the product lines we introduced last summer."

For the first six months of the fiscal year, Dekalb reported net earnings of $6.6 million, or $1.27 per share, down from $7.9 million, or $1.53 per share, in the same period last year. Revenues were up 3 percent to $183.8 million from $179.3 million. Year-to-date earnings included an after-tax benefit of $1.6 million, or 32 cents per share, related to the pension changes. However, Dekalb also recorded an after-tax charge in the first quarter of $300,000, or 5 cents per share, resulting from the adoption of the new standard for accounting for income taxes. Excluding these non-recurring items, net earnings for the first six months were down $2.6 million, or 50 cents per share.

"The single largest factor affecting six-month results was lower earnings in Argentina," Bickner said."Argentine earnings declined 46 percent from last year's record levels because of lower planted acreage, lower sunflower prices, and higher crop costs. However, these should not be long-term situations. We have an exceptional product line, and we recently completed a major plant expansion, updating our corn drying and conditioning equipment to help support our clear leadership position in the Argentine market."

Second-quarter revenues for the seed business rose 8 percent to $125.2 million, compared with $116.1 million in the same period last year. However, segment earnings declined 30 percent to $9.6 million from $13.7 million last year.

"Our U.S. seed corn production volume in 1993 was only 50 percent of the previous year, which is the major contributor to lower unit margins," Bickner said. "In addition, our average seed corn price is down because of an unfavorable seed size mix and early cash remittances. These factors combined to cause 14 percent lower U.S. corn unit margins."

Six-month revenues of $148.4 million were about flat with the previous year's $147.9 million. Segment earnings were $12.4 million, down 28 percent from $17.2 million in the prior year.

"Clearly, U.S. farmers are planning to plant significantly more corn this spring, as indicated by the recent USDA planting intentions report," Bickner said. "At Dekalb, this is being reflected in increased dealer and sales activity, larger average order sizes and higher cash collections. There are also solid indications that we are continuing to make further progress with large operators — a key focus of our business. These factors lead us to be encouraged about 1994 corn sales. We expect, however, that our seed corn sales recorded in the first half of this fiscal year will represent a smaller portion of full-year sales than was the case in the prior year, when we had an abnormally high rate of returned goods in the last half of the fiscal year."

Revenues for Dekalb Swine Breeders rose 22 percent in the second quarter to $13.2 million from $10.8 million. Segment earnings increased to $900,000 from $600,000 in the same period last year. For the six months, Dekalb Swine recorded revenues of $26.2 million, up 23 percent from $21.3 million the prior year. Segment earnings rose to $2.7 million from $1.3 million.

"Breeding stock sales volume to date is 15 percent over the previous year, and bookings are strong for the months ahead," Bickner said. "However, our cost of sales is higher because of high feed costs and the fact that we are building inventory at new production facilities."

Second-quarter revenues for the company's poultry operation were $4.6 million, about even with last year. Dekalb Poultry posted a $500,000 operating loss for the quarter, compared with a $200,000 loss in the same period last year. Year to date, revenues declined 9 percent to $9.2 million from $10.1 million. Dekalb Poultry recorded an operating loss of $700,000, compared with a loss of $400,000 in the first six months of last year.

"The lower results are due primarily to reduced exports," Bickner said. "Two situations in particular are taking their toll: an embargo against poultry imports into Venezuela and a lack of U.S. dollars in Bulgaria. Unfortunately, it is difficult to determine when either of these situations might improve."

LEESON ELECTRIC MOTORS — FARM DUTY MOTORS

Heavy duty single-phase "Hi Torque" motors designed specifically for severe farm duty applications. These capacitor start/induction run motors provide high starting torque, while requiring only normal starting current.

They are ideally suited for tough applications such as pumps, conveyors, poultry equipment and other farm duty machinery.

Animal Care Part Of Response Plan

SCHAUMBURG, Ill. — For the first time, animal care has been incorporated into the federal government's domestic disaster plan.

With the signing of a Memorandum of Understanding between the American Veterinary Medical Association and the U.S. Public Health Service, veterinary services were incorporated into the National Disaster Medical System, part of the Federal Response Plan for disaster relief.

"Veterinary medical assistance teams," or VMATS, consisting of volunteer veterinarians, veterinary technicians, and support personnel, will be mobilized as needed after disasters. The organization and functions of these VMATs is described in the newly published "AVMA Emergency Preparedness And Response Guide."

This guide and the "AVMA's Emergency Response Force" were developed out of veterinarians' desires to assist communities when disaster strikes.

Incorporation of veterinary services as part of the Federal Response Plan will fill unmet needs evident after Hurricane Andrew and last summer's floods. A veterinarian's knowledge and skills in the areas of public health, animal health and welfare, and their understanding of the human-animal bond will facilitate relief efforts.

The VMATS will work cooperatively with state departments of health, agriculture, and wildlife, as well as with animal control agencies and humane organizations to provide for animals' needs after disasters.

Besides describing how veterinary services are incorporated into the Federal Response Plan, the 340-page emergency Guide contains practical information for private veterinary practitioners on business planning, record keeping, and insurance needs related to disaster preparedness. The three-ring binder and a mailing list of guide recipients will allow the notebook to be updated regularly.

"The guide answers the question of how we may best work together with federal emergency response plans to ease the suffering of our colleagues and their communities during a disaster," said AVMA President Dr. Leon Russell.

In addition, the "AVMA Emergency Preparedness and Response Guide" provides information for development of local/state animal care plans that integrate with the federal plan. Emergency fact sheets from the Federal Emergency Management Agency, a listing of disaster preparedness officials, and other key contacts also are included in the guide.

The initial printing and distribution of the guide was made possible, in part, through a grant from the American Animal Hospital Association Foundation. Copies of the guide may be obtained for $25 from the AVMA Foundation, Disaster Relief Fund, American Veterinary Medical Association, 1931 N. Meacham Road, Suite 100, Schaumburg, IL 60173-4360.

Santa Gertrudis Association To Meet

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Members of the Northeast Santa Gertrudis Association (NESGA) will gather for dinner, election of officers, and the planning of activities for the year on April 30 at 10 a.m. here at the Bonanza Restaurant.

The NESGA is an affiliate of Santa Gertrudis Breeders International, an organization interested in promoting this breed of beef cattle. Its territory includes all Northeastern states as far south as and including Virginia.

Interested persons may contact the president, James Quanbeck, 2328 Franklin Rd., Columbia, PA 17512, (717) 285-4639, or the secretary, Susan White, 1191 Ridge Road, Gettysburg, PA 17325, (717) 334-2044 for information or directions.

Topics for discussion include placing displays at state fairs, agricultural expositions and other places where promotional activities would be fruitful; planning a summer or fall field day; participation in late summer cattle shows and meeting with the SGBI field representative; and organizing a joint sale with the New York, Ohio, and Illinois associations.

People interested in learning more about the breed are urged to attend.

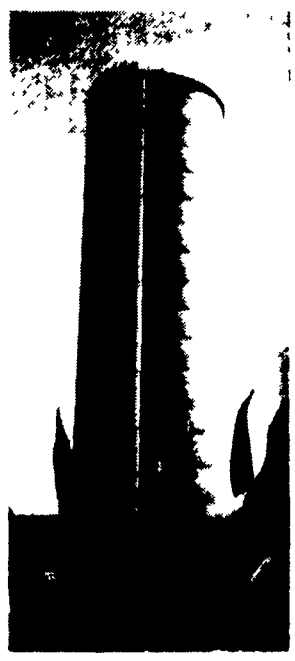
"IT IS TIME TO ONCE AGAIN GET SERIOUS ABOUT STORING YOUR VALUABLE FEEDS!!!"

The recent "innovations" and temporary methods of storing your grains and forages are just not protecting your feeds like they should, nor are they really efficient.

Research and practical experience has shown that "the tower silo has never been equalled in its ability to protect your forage quality." And remember..." on most dairy farms, forage quality is the single most important factor affecting profit."

Contact us soon to be sure you get on our schedule to have your poured concrete tower silo constructed in time!

No used silos!
No rebuilt silos!
No pre-owned silos!
All New For You!



"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

If Your Silo Needs New Life...
Try Our Poly Silo Liners

-THE ADVANTAGE OF A POLY LINER-
- Spoilage is reduced around doors.
- Feed is exposed to less oxygen - better fermentation.
- Allows storage of high moisture grains or dry grains in a conventional silo.
- Delays repair or replacement of corroded silos.
- Prevents corrosive acids from contacting silo wall - extends silo life.
- Quick installation.
- Effectively seals silos from air and weather.

The Liners Are Manufactured To Fit Most Standard Diameter Silos.

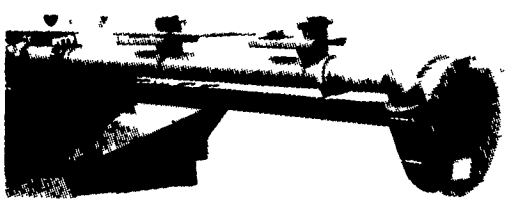
SHREDDER PUMPS



The Nesseth Two-point Shredder Pump has been designed to out pump them all! Nesseth pumps are designed to make quick work of your agitation, transfer and tank filling requirements and feature models in 8', 10' and 12' lengths.

The standard model has a 10 degree downward fixed 5" agitation port that has a rotation adjustment of 270 degrees.

A second upper agitation port can be added as an option at the time of purchase or any time by simiply bolting on the valve and controls. This 4" top agitation port with 60 degree vertical adjustment (30 degrees up and 30 degrees down) and 270 degree rotation adjustment is just what you need if it is necessary to "wash down" a top crust during agitation.

3 SILOS AND UNLOADERS

WARNING!

DON'T THROW AWAY UP TO 45% OF YOUR HAY.

Losses occur when crops are stored--regardless of the storage method. Those losses are real--colorless, odorless and invisible--you can't see them, but they're there.

The air trapped within stored feed begins the fermentation process--and fermentation continues until all the air is consumed. The less air within the stored feed, the less loss.

Because bunker silos are not easily packed, losses in bunker silos can be up to 45%. If the feed is valued at $30 per ton, every 1000 tons stored in a bunker could suffer losses up to $13,500. Tower silo losses could be as much as 8%, or up to $2400 for every 1000 tons.

Those losses occur for every 1000 tons--every time feed is stored, year after year. Before investing in any storage method, consider the total costs--including fermentation loss.

Compare the various methods of feed storage. Contact the Crop Storage Institute for your free copy of " Methods of Crop Storage" and "Know the Facts."

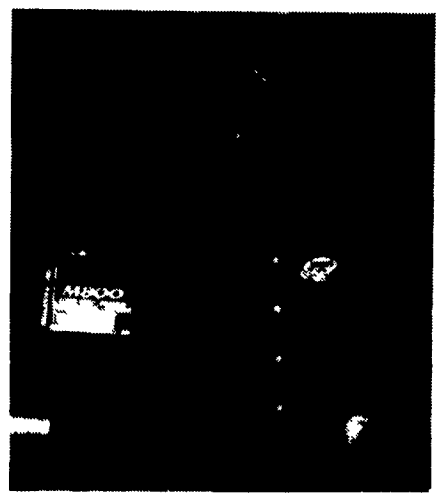
PERMANENT FENCE SYSTEM

"I have never had anything keep my heifers and bulls in like the Gallagher Engerizer"

John Dollar
Bedford, PA



Compared to woven and barbed wire, Gallagher Permanent Power Fence Systems are:

- Safe and more effective in controlling any livestock.
- Less material and labor required.
- Substantially lower cost to install and maintain.

For more information on the Gallagher Permanent Power Fence System contact your nearest Gallagher dealer listed or call 1-800-531-5908.

TURBOCHARGER SYSTEM

Ford 7.3L/6.9L Diesel Pickup & Navistar S Series Trucks

Hypermax ENGINEERING, INC.

The HYPERMAX PULSE TURBOCHARGER SYSTEM utilizes the high pressure exhaust pulses to achieve faster "off idle" engine acceleration and vastly improves throttle response. This response feature is accomplished without the use of a wastegate, which detracts from performance anywhere but at low engine speeds, due to its inherent high exhaust back pressure.

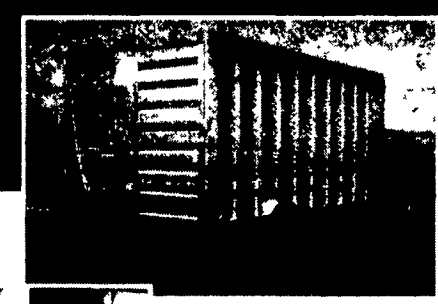
Agriculture Moves on EBY Bodies



M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- LIVESTOCK BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of heights and widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24'; landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer custom options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business- building bodies to haul it is ours.

Let EBY custom build one for you.

Farmer Receives Sustainable Grazing Award

HONEY GROVE (Juniata Co.) — Edgar Rits was recently presented the Keystone Chapter, Soil and Water Conservation Society's Sustainable Grazing Systems Award for his work in converting his farm from cropland to intensive grazing.

Lee B. Bentz made the official presentation for the Chapter to Rits at the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts quarterly meeting.

How did Ed and his wife Loraine get interested in intensive grazing?

Ed said, "As we got older, with no kids at home and local labor hard to come by, we were looking for a way to reduce the labor requirement around the farm, while still maintaining profitability. Intensive grazing was our answer! We experimented with various tillage methods, cover crops, alternative crops, and enterprises, and eventually arrived at grass based beef as the most environmentally and financially sound method on this farm."

Today the Ritses raise calves from 30 cows and sell grass fed freezer beef each fall. By the end of 1994 they plan to have 90 to 100 head on the farm, depending on the status of the grazing available.

Rits promotes intensive grazing by conducting tours and field days on his farm to demonstrate the technology to other farmers. He also does consulting work with interested farmers to help them get started in this time-saving labor-saving, profitable method of feeding grazing animals.

In addition to his farming and consulting work, Rits serves as secretary of the local crop management associaton (CMA) and as a director of the state crop management association.

Rits advises farmers wishing to establish intensive grazing systems on their farm to "start with what you have available around the farm until you determine if the system will work for you and then improve from there."

Keystone Farm Credit Elects Directors

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Keystone Farm Credit held its 1994 stockholders' meeting in three localized sectional meetings on April 5, 6, and 7. They were held in Allentown, Reading and Lancaster, respectively.

Four people were elected to serve on Keystone's board of directors. Harold Knechel from Montgomery County, Paul Kreider from Lebanon County, Kenneth Meck from Lancaster County, and Kenneth Schlegel from Berks County were elected to three-year terms.

During the meeting, the following members were elected to serve on the 1995 Nominating Committee: David Mast, Kenneth Hershey, Leon Kurtz, and William Beam from Chester County and Glenn Moyer from Montgomery County; Robert Smith and Kenneth Sellers from Lebanon County; and Larry Weaver, Bruce Kreider, and Harold Musser from Lancaster County. From Lehigh County, Leon Turner and David Fink were elected. From Northampton County, Donald Miller, and from Berks County, Norman Kurtz and Larry Kehl were elected.

The Calving Toolbox
John W. Comerford
Penn State Assoc. Prof.
Dairy & Animal Science

Many beef producers are, or soon will be, into their calving season. This remains one of the most important efforts of the year for the enterprise.

Economic returns to the beef business start with the birth of a live calf. Now is the time to check your toolbox to see if you have everything ready.

The first item that toolbox should contain is a record book. The path to success and cost reduction in the beef business is paved with records. Birth information should include not only dates and weights for the calf, but some cow information as well. What kind of a birth was it? Does the cow appear to be milking well? Did she claim the calf right away? Did she clean the placenta in less than 12 hours? What kind of body condition was she in?

The next item would be some frozen colostrum or a good colostrum substitute. Recent research at Penn State has indicated previously unknown benefits of feeding colostrum to the newborn calf, including a positive influence on male fertility. Get some frozen colostrum from a neighboring dairy farmer, but ask for colostrum from an older, poor producing cow, since the "goodies" in colostrum can be diluted in high-producing dairy cows. Feed a gallon in two feedings, 12 hours apart as soon after birth as possible, using an esophageal tube if necessary to get it into the calf. Waiting, even as little as 12 hours after birth, will have far fewer positive results than feeding right away.

Include ear tags, an implant gun, and a castration device in your toolbox. You will never be able to catch and hold a calf as easily as you can near birth. Identification is essential to good records. The implant can be used for animals destined for non-breeding purposes, and you will likely get about an 8 to 1 return for your investment (Two implants are currently cleared for use in newborn calves: Ralgro and Synovex-C.). Finally, for male calves that will be steers at some time, make that time now. Remove the testicles by cutting off the bottom third of the scrotum, pulling them completely out, cutting the string of tissue that is left, and spraying the area with a good antiseptic. This is the most effective castration method, and is by far easier on the calf and more effective than rubber bands, clamping, or surgical castration at a later time.

Also include a set of obstetrical chains and a lubricant such as Ivory Soap. When cows are in labor for more than an hour, there is usually something wrong. When this occurs, managers should check for full dilation of the cervix, for a calf in the wrong position (such as a head or leg turned back), a calf locked at the shoulders (pull the legs through one at a time with the chains), or a hip lock. The latter can usually be corrected by good pressure downward between the cow's hind legs and rotation of the calf to allow the hips to pass through the widest portion of the pelvic opening, which is roughly a line from the pinbone to the opposite hock. The chains should be kept clean.

Iodine dips and selenium injections will be called for in most cases for new calves. The navel should be fully bathed in the iodine for a few seconds immediately after birth. In many areas of Pennsylvania, soils are deficient in selenium, and too little selenium can cause white muscle disease in young calves. A 2cc-injection of selenium at birth can usually prevent this.

Calves can quickly lose body heat after birth, and this chilling is dangerous. Put a thermometer in your toolbox to check body temperature, which should be between 98° and 102° at birth. Body temperatures above or below these levels indicate a problem. Dry towels are probably the best help for a chilled calf right after birth, so have a few handy.

Do not underfeed cows during the last part of pregnancy to reduce birth weight of the calf. Although birth weight can be lowered slightly, extensive research has shown no reduction in calving difficulty, increased postpartum interval, and reduced rebreeding rates and cow productivity.

Since the largest percentage of calving difficulty will be in young cows, focus your time and effort at calving on this group. Breed these young cows ahead of mature cows so calving labor can be concentrated on them.

Feed cows at night to increase daytime calvings. The easiest way is to have the hay or other forage located in such a way as a gate can be opened after 9 p.m. and shut again at 7 a.m. Using this method, you can realistically expect 80 percent of your calves to be born after 7 a.m. and before 6 p.m.

USDA Releases Beef Microbiology Data — Results Show Very Low Level Of Bacteria
William R. Henning
Penn State Assoc. Prof.
Animal Sciences

Results of the Nationwide Beef Microbiological Baseline Data Collection Program for Steers and Heifers released this week by USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS) showed extremely low levels of bacteria on beef carcasses.

Of nearly 2,100 samples taken from raw beef carcass surfaces, only four (0.2 percent) tested positive for E. coli 0157:H7, one percent for Salmonella, 2.6 percent for Cloistridium perfringens, 4 percent for Campylobacter, 4.1 percent for Listeria monocytogenes, and 4.2 percent for Staphylococcus aureus.

The samples were taken between October 1992 and September 1993 at federally inspected establishments responsible for approximately 99 percent of domestic steer and heifer slaughter.

USDA noted that the fact that bacterial levels are still present (although low) underscores what the National Academy of Sciences said in its 1985 report on meat safety: "Even the best production and processing practices do not eliminate these organisms from raw meat."

In the executive summary of its new report, USDA said, "The use of cooking procedures, together with sanitary handling, proper refrigeration or freezing, and strict separation of cooked products form raw products from the time of cooking until the product is packaged for sale provided a high degree of confidence that the product is safe."

Pork Residues Low
William R. Henning
Penn State Assoc. Prof.
Animal Sciences

Results of a study supported by the National Live Stock and Meat Board have bolstered earlier evidence that U.S. pork is safe from chemical residues. Researchers sampled ham and pork sausage collected from supermarkets in three geographical regions, and subcutaneous adipose tissue from pork carcasses in slaughter plants representing 16 states. Samples were tested for 29 different chlorinated hydrocarbons, organophosphate pesticides and their metabolites.

Adipose tissue samples from pork carcasses, tested over a six-month period to ensure absence of seasonal variations, showed no pesticide residue greater than the 0.05 ppm detection threshold. None of the ham contained detectable levels of organophosphates (greater than 0.003 ppm) or chlorinated hydrocarbons (greater than 0.02 ppm). Six of the 27 sausage samples contained trace amounts of organophosphates, but these levels of chemical residue were well below tolerances set by the FDA. No samples contained tranquilizer or drug residues at the 1 part per billion detection threshold.

These results agree with test results of the National Residue Program by the Food Safety Inspection Service (FSIS) of the USDA, which found zero violative levels of either chlorinated hydrocarbons or organophosphates in the 740 market hogs sampled.

Recommended Beef Grading Changes
William R. Henning
Penn State Assoc. Prof.
Animal Sciences

TWO MAJOR REVISIONS ARE REQUESTED:

1. Reduce all "B" maturity carcasses with "Slight" and "Small" degrees of marbling to the "Standard" grade.
2. Implement yield-grade changes to separate the Y2 and Y3 grades into two grades each, and combine the Y4 and Y5 grades.

The National Cattlemen's Association (NCA) recently passed a resolution to request changes in USDA beef grading standards, as reflected in the table to the left. Changing the quality grading standards will require a rule change by the USDA, including publication of the change in the Federal Register followed by a comment period. The proposed changes could be more through a specification rather than a grade change. This would allow the proposal to be adopted faster and without a hearing and review process.

The maturity grade "B" is the physiological designation for carcasses of cattle from 30 to 42 months of chronological age. Variability in tenderness is the primary problem with inconsistency in all quality grades of beef, and the current grading system does not adequately measure this variability. Research data demonstrate that carcasses of "B" maturity, which are currently eligible for the "Choice" and "Select" grades, are more variable in tenderness than are "A" maturity carcasses of the same grade.

This change will not affect a large number of carcasses in the current supply, but will discourage the industry from marketing older maturity cattle as "Choice" or "Select." Most of the cattle currently in this category are the "heiferettes," or first-calf heifers, which are weaned early and placed on feed, or cattle which have been backgrounded on forage.

Packers have begun to question the relevance of the maturity scores to the actual age of the cattle. Some have complained that loads of young cattle are sometimes grading as "C" maturity (over 42 months of age) when it is known they are less than 20 months. One such experience occurred when a purebred heifer that was slaughtered was "C" maturity, yet less than 24 months of age. This raises the question, that there may be nutritional or physiological factors which dramatically accelerate the ossification process.

While such observations may be aberrations, they point out the subjective nature of quality grading. In my travels through beef plants across the country, the most subjective and variable designation is the estimation of maturity. Graders tend to be tougher on maturity in plants here in the East, especially those with a significant cow slaughter. The graders are expecting cows and tend to be less lenient than on similar carcasses at an all-steer plant. I guess we have to accept that as the human factor.

Does that grading change affect one area or type of cattle more than another? I don't think anyone knows the answer to that yet.

The NCA Task Force found yield grading to be an accurate and adequate method of identifying differences in cutability. However, as the industry moves toward closely trimmed boxed beef, and cutability receives greater emphasis for cattle, the current yield grades are viewed as too broad to allow for effective evaluation.

The proposal calls for Y2 to be split into two grades; 2A, from 2.0 to 2.49, and 2B from 2.50 to 2.99. Yield Grade 3 would be similarly split; 3A from 3.0 to 3.49, and 3B from 3.50 to 3.99. Yield Grade 5 would be dropped, and Yield Grade 4 would be open-ended. The current and proposed yield grade distributions are shown in the table to the left.

The NCA Task Force also recommends that very high industry priority be given to the development and application of an instrument grading procedure that rapidly measures tenderness at typical chain speeds in modern packing plants.

Call For Irradiation
William R. Henning
Penn State Assoc. Prof.
Animal Science

U.S. Senator Slade Gorton (R-WA) sent a letter to Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy calling on USDA to expedite a petition to the Food and Drug Administration for approval of irradiation for beef.

"I believe that irradiation, if approved for beef, will provide an important tool in the reform of our nation's food safety system," Gorton told Espy.

Gorton's letter followed the death last month of a three-year-old boy who contracted hemolytic uremic syndrome after he consumed E. coli O157:H7, presumably from a hamburger he had eaten.

FUEL USED IN STANDARD UNIT: WOOD & COAL & WOOD BY-PRODUCTS (SAWDUST, PAPER, ETC.) FUEL USED IN MULTI-FUEL MODEL: SAME AS ABOVE INCLUDING OIL, PROPANE, NATURAL GAS

efficiency Rating 83% to 85% - Cut Emissions by 90%
3-Year Warranty Except Electrical Components (1 Year)

PROUDLY BUILT IN CLEARFIELD COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA
100,000 - 500,000 BTU 24" - 60"

★ The only outdoor furnace made with a Catalytic Combuster ★
Mahoning Catalytic Combuster Will Help In The Following Ways:

1. Burn one cord of wood which equals 166 gallons of oil
2. Your fuel source becomes enormous inexhaustible and poses few risks to public safety
3. Over all efficiency of 85% which means the heat no longer goes up the chimney!
4. You get more heat from a log compared to the non-cat furnace
5. More burn time - less reloading time!
6. Zap 90% of pollutants, made from fire source
7. Saves you a lot of money!
8. User friendly, emits no smoke!

Producers Can Re-File Wool Sales Documents

Clair C. Engle
Penn State Assoc. Prof.
Animal Science

Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Services (ASCS) will soon announce that all producers will be given the opportunity to obtain substitute replacement sales documents which reflect marketing and non-marketing charges not previously shown on sales documents.

The earlier version of wool-incentive filing changes did not allow producers to re-file receipts with updated information. These new regulations will allow re-submission of updated receipts. ASCS states that affected producers must request their original receipts from their county office and re-submit corrected documents by March 1, or the incentive will be paid on the original document.

ASCS offices will review corrected documents to ensure that the commission charges are eligible consignment sales (sales on behalf of the producer to market the wool). Strict cash sales, where the title immediately passes to the first buyer (typically includes shearer buyers, mill buyers and order buyers), are ineligible.

In line with a directive issued by its Board of Directors, the American Sheep Industry Association has worked on the issue with ASCS daily in recent weeks to secure this opportunity for interested producers to re-file regardless of the original filing date. It is urgent to get the word out to all producers, This is a very short window of time, so phone calls and radio spots may be appropriate to inform wool growers in your area of this change. Please call your local ASCS office for more information.

New Feeder-Lamb Grading System Being Reported

Clair C. Engle
Penn State Assoc. Prof.
Animal Science

Frame score Category	Body weight (lbs)	Back fat (inches)
Small	< 100	0.25
Medium	100-125	0.25
Large	> 120	0.25

Preliminary feeder-lamb grading standards are now in use, according to USDA Market News Service representatives.

"In a few months, we expect to have an official set of grade standards published in the Federal Register," said Pleas Childress, chair for the American Sheep Industry Association's Production Education and Research Council. "The intent is that both buyers and producers will be able to more accurately assess the yield-grade potential of feeder lambs at a given slaughter weight."

USDA's Market News Service began using the preliminary set of standards in January to report its feeder lambs. The above three frame scores, combined with three conformation scores, are used to create nine feeder grades with corresponding body weight and back fat thickness.

A carcass conformation score of Number 1 is equal to what is now considered prime or thick conformation, while the Number 2 conformation will refer to choice or moderately thick. The Number 3 conformation will refer to less-than-choice, or thin conformation. A large-frame conformation score Number 1 is expected to be optimally finished at 120 pounds or more with prime or thick conformation.

The project is sponsored through a grant from the USDA Agricultural Marketing Service, ASI, and Colorado State and Oregon State Universities cooperating. A final set of feeder lamb standards for public comment likely will be published by mid-year.

A Lamb Feeding Facility For The Pennsylvania Producer

Clair C. Engle
Penn State Assoc. Prof.
Animal Science

Any successful lamb feeder will tell you that short cuts in management, nutrition, and health can spell disaster. Another area often overlooked is adequate lamb-feeding facilities. Without proper facilities, two major and costly health problems plague the best of feeders — chronic pneumonia and an insidious internal parasite/coccididosis infestation.

Midwest feeder pig and sheep producers came up with an ingenious and practical idea for feeding facilities some twenty years ago. Lamb feeders at the Dixon Springs Research Center in Illinois started performance-testing rams on an elevated and slotted floor structure in the early 1970s. The facility was nothing more then a modified farm utility wagon bed, equipped with a pen structure, roof, a slotted floor, a self-feeder, and an all-weather spigot pig waterer.

In central Pennsylvania, commercial structures are being built for the small to medium commercial feeder pig producer. These facilities also will work well for the lamb feeder, but you can most likely save money and have a facility customized to your specific needs by constructing your own. If you are serious, start looking for an abandoned house trailer frame.

Construction details are very important, especially the floor materials and proper supporting structures necessary for a sturdy, elevated feeding platform. More information can be found in the new revised Midwest Plan Booklet No. MWPS-3, 4th edition, 1994. Check with your county extension office about purchasing a copy of this publication, or contact the Publications Department in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences (814) 865-5486.

Next time you get serious about feeding small groups of lambs (60 to 100 hd), take another look at your existing lamb feeding facility. If labor, manure handling, a ventilation, sanitation, health, and lamb performance need improvement, may be time to re-evaluate your existing facility and invest some planning time and money into a modest, portable, elevated/slotted-floor lamb feeding facility. An old bank barn or shed with a dirt or concrete floor is just not good enough.

Lamb Council Offers Educational Materials

Clair C. Engle
Penn State Assoc. Prof.
Animal Science

A retail merchandising guide and a meat-cutting demonstration video recently released by the American Sheep Industry Association's Lamb Council are drawing equal interest from the target audience of retail meat directors and sheep producers.

Both items, which debuted at the American Sheep Industry Convention in late January, were produced with a straightforward objective — to sell more American lamb. The manual includes photographs, marketing ideas, product illustrations, and procedures to help retailers sell more cuts of lamb. The video is a step-by-step demonstration on how to get different and better cuts of lamb from a carcass. It was developed for producers who direct-market their lambs, or for those who use such services.

The manual sells for $24.95 and the video for $10, including shipping and handling. To place an order, contact ASI's distribution department at (303) 771-3500.

Farrowing Performance In Alternative Housing Systems

Kenneth B. Kephart
Penn State Assoc. Prof.
Animal Science

Comparison of farrowing performance under various housing systems

	Confinement	Open	Huts/no buildings
Herds surveyed	734	90	28
Born alive, pigs/litter	9.8	9.7	9.8
Weaned, pig/litter	8.1	7.4*	7.9
Preweaning mortality, %	15.8	25.4*	18.9
Losses from crushing, %	6.7	9.7	13.0
Losses from starvation, %	3.1	6.9	1.5
Losses from scours, %	1.9	3.7	1.0

Nearly 90 percent of U.S. hog producers with sows have confinement farrowing facilities. These systems have evolved through a need for year-round climate control and ease of animal management. Although these issues are also important in Europe, the hog industry there is showing a clear trend toward outdoor rearing facilities. Impending animal welfare regulations against housing gestating sows in crates or tethers are probably their major reason for the shift away from confinement.

As U.S. producers consider farrowing facility options, one important issue is the expected survival rate of the baby pig under various housing systems. Controlled comparisons of these systems are few. However, data recently collected by USDA: APHIS: VS through the National Animal Health Monitoring System (NAHMS) provide some insights.

More than 1,600 randomly selected producers from 18 states participated in the NAHMS survey. Data were collected and grouped into three housing categories:

Confinement — enclosed building, with flooring other than dirt.

Open building — open on one or more sides year-round. Pigs may have access to outside lots and pastures.

Huts/no buildings — portable hut or shed situated in a pasture or dirt lot.

Data on farrowing performance, preweaning mortality, and suspected causes of baby pig deaths were collected over a three-month period.

Conclusions

(The authors caution readers against drawing strong conclusions based on causes of death, and therefore, the statistical analyses are not presented. However, the data listing number born, weaned, etc. should be considere valid.)

Number of pigs born alive is almost identical across the three housing systems.

Death losses appear to be higher in open facilities, leading to a significant drop in number weaned per litter in that housing system.

Although the number of farms farrowing in huts or no buildings was small, it appears that producers under those conditions can wean nearly as many pigs as those in confinement.

NEW FARMING PRESS VIDEOS

NEW! JOHN DEERE VIDEOS
TWO-CYLINDER TRACTORS VOL 1&2

Volume 1 starts with the Froslitch replica and the Waterloo Boy and takes the story up to 1938 when styled tractors made their appearance. Filming was done in Iowa, Illinois, Ontario and England Many tractors shown are rarities and outstanding examples of restoration. The owners describe the features of their tractors and give fascinating insights into John Deere history. High Professional quality Videos are in full color, 55-minutes. $34.95

NEW! John Deere on Video Two Cylinder Tractors Vol. 2

In Volume Two we look at the last of the older series tractors identified by a letter and follow with the first of the numbered models from the 1950s. It was also the time when diesel power was beginning to take over Some stationary engines are also covered Finally this video finishes with a look at the latest new models from the Waterloo Factory. These comprehensive videos will prove to be of indispensable value to both the collector and restorer of John Deere Tractors VHS in full color 50 minutes $34.95.

NEW! JOHN DEERE TWO-CYLINDER TRACTORS

This excellent detailed book includes more than 130 full color photos, with detailed shots, which illustrate the design changes which took place over more than four decades. Has serial numbers and Nebraska tractor test results. Great reference guide, by Michael Williams, who is internationally recognized authority on tractors. 128 pgs. Hardcover $29 95

THE CONSERVATIONIST.

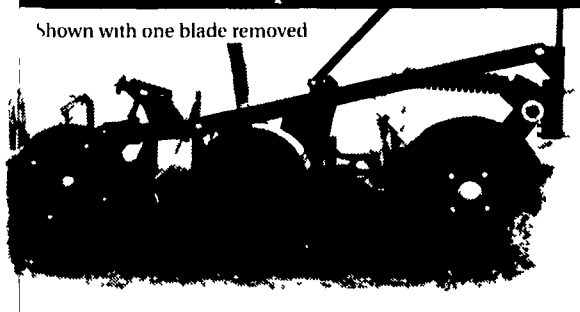
Shown with one blade removed



- Utilizes proven coulter/opener no-till system.
- Compact, well-balanced design transports easily.
- Heavy-duty coulters cut through tough ground and heavy residue.
- Dry fertilizer, small seeds, and fluffy seed box options.
- Lock-out hubs disengage drives for transport.
- Large 9.00 x 24 tires provide a smooth ride and consistent seed metering drive.
- 7' & 10' sizes available.

Great Plains

We lead because we listen.

The proven Great Plains no-till system utilizes a coulter to prepare a mini-conventional seedbed for the openers to place the seed . . . at the precise depth selected.

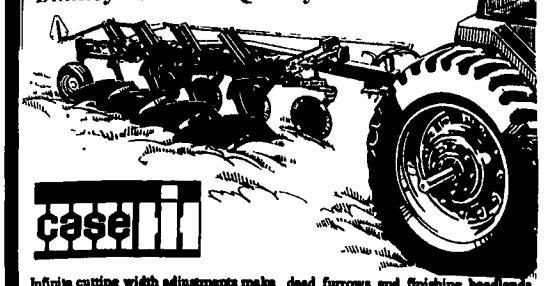
Come To Binkley & Hurst Bros. For The Best Plow Available Today With 2 Sizes In Stock, 4 and 5 Bottom Variable Width Model 7500 Up To 22" Width Of Cut,

Custom Cut

Moldboard Plow In Stock At Binkley & Hurst Quality Case IH



Infinite cutting width adjustments make the new Case International 7500 semi-mounted moldboard plow your perfect choice for heavy duty plowing of rolling or contoured land. Or for adjusting to varying soils.

You can vary furrow cuts from 14 to 22 inches (356 to 559 mm), so if you turn over cornstalks at 18" (457 mm) or sod with a 14" (356 mm) cut, one plow is all you need. Also simplifies closing dead furrows and finishing headlands. Manual or hydraulic for 4 to 7 bottom plowing.

The 7500 plows also feature exclusive Earth Metal® moldboards— the kind that withstand up to 50% more deflection than conventional moldboards without breaking.

Check out the difference a custom cut can make in your fields. Stop in today.

184 MIN-TILL CULTIVATORS

Designed tough. Equipped for easy, precise cultivating.

Durability and dependability are built into each component on the gang permitting precise cultivating for optimum yields.

Wide parallel linkages permit each row unit to follow ground contours vertically, yet maintain precise tracking side-to-side. The upper links feature regreasable pivots, and the lower links have four sealed bearings for long life.

Heavy-gauge, formed-steel side panels keep gauge wheel, coulter and shank all in proper alignment, even under the most server conditions.

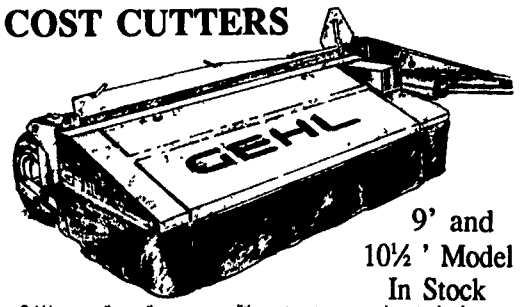
COST CUTTERS



9' and 10½ ' Model In Stock

Gehl has two all-new disc mower conditioners to cut your crop down to size, fast and easy. The DC2340 has 7 discs and a 9 foot cutting width, the DC2360 has 8 discs and a 10-1/2 foot cutting width.

- High speed discs – Each disc has two knives to slice through the toughest crops and conditions; the disc gear drive operates in an oil bath for long life.
- Sturdy frame – Cradles the cutterbar for extra protection and durability
- 540 or 1,000 rpm driveline with equal-angle hitch for smooth power transfer.
- Standard hydraulic tongue — Makes it easy to position the unit without leaving the tractor seat.

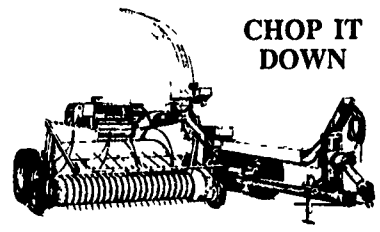
If You Chop Haylage and Want Top Performance For A Good Start This Spring, Get A Gehl 1065 Super Chopper From Binkley & Hurst Now!

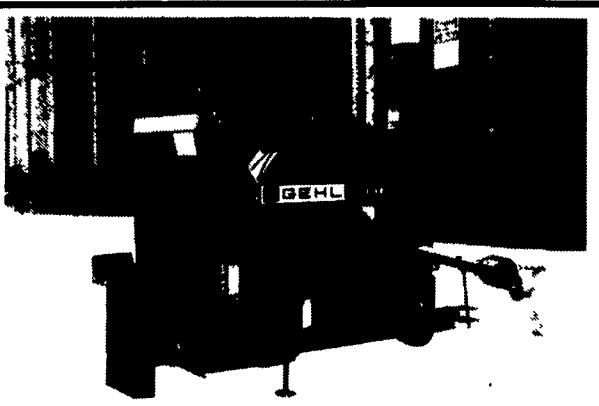
CHOP IT DOWN



Gehl forage harvesters get the job done faster with these performance features

- Exclusive Auto-Max Load-Sensing System – Increase capacity by up to 20% Lets you operate at top capacity without the fear of downtime due to overloading
- Metal-Stop Metal Detector – Prevents machine damage and hardware disease.
- In-head Hydraulic Knife Sharpener – Lets you sharpen knives in the field
- Patented One-Sided Cutterbar Adjustment – Makes adjusting the cutterbar quick and easy
- Three Models To Choose From – Including the largest capacity pull-type forage harvester on the market.

Model 1065 In Stock w/Tandem Axle For Smoother Chopping With All The Finest Features Shown Here!



Choose the Gehl blower that's right for you.

With three models it's easy to match a high-capacity Gehl blower to your operation. In side by side tests at a 100' silo, Gehl blowers outperformed the best the competition had to offer, with the Model 1580 cleaning out an 18' self-unloading box full of haylage 18% faster than the closest competitive blower and 25% faster than one of the so called "leaders".

Gehl's secret is the twin spinner delivery system and the twin-sided fan. Two 24-inch spinners rifle your crop into the blower fan at nearly 35 mph. There, the twin-sided fan, with paddles on each side, blows the material up the pipe with ease...it's almost like getting the performance of two blowers in one.

Gehl blowers are also loaded with convenience features you're sure to appreciate.

The three main factors that contribute to a forage blower's capacity are tip speed, hopper capabilities and available horsepower. Generally speaking, for optimum capacity, the blower requires at least one horsepower for each foot the material must be blown.

For instance, a blower on a 20-foot-diameter by 60-foot center fill silo would require 70-plus horsepower. On a 25-foot diameter by 90-foot center fill silo you should have 100-plus horsepower.

As a guideline, we recommend the following:

Silo size	HP required	Gehl Model
20'Wx60'-70' high	70 hp	FB1540
20'Wx80' high	90 hp	FB1580 (540 rpm) in stock
25'Wx90' and higher	100+ hp	FB1580 (1000 rpm) in stock

Horsepower requirements can be reduced with smoother unloading forage boxes and a wider gooseneck at the top of the silo.

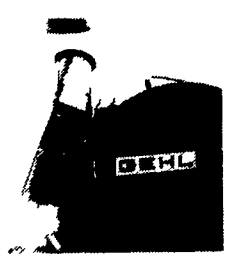
Setting up at the silo is faster and easier. The adjustable left axle lets you line up the blower without loosening and adjusting the rim sheet. Simply adjust the tire up or down until you get the matching angle to your pipe



Swing away blower outlet. They're more than tremendous blowing capacity designed into these blowers. Gehl swing away outlet makes it easier than ever to check fan paddle and rim sheet clearances and for rim sheet liner replacement. (Note: this outlet should never be opened until the pto is disconnected from the tractor and the blower disc has stopped turning.)

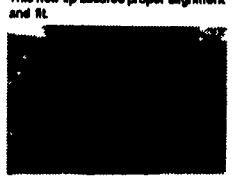
These blowers feature split rim sheets with a special inner, replaceable liner. This extra hard liner is twice the thickness of ordinary rim sheet steel. In addition, when it finally does wear out, you only replace the liner that fits in the extreme wear area of the blower, right below the outlet. You don't have to replace the entire rim sheet! The result: reduced costs over the life of your Gehl blower

Easier, faster fit to silo pipe. Once you have the right angle between your blower outlet and your pipe, it's easy to slide the telescope pipe into position. This new lip assures proper alignment and fit.



Tire Guard. This tire guard protects the right blower tire when you're cleaning up around the blower with a silage fork. It is standard equipment on the 1580 and 1560, optional on the 1540

Believe It Or Not, Gehl Blowers Have Less Moving Than Most Competitive Models. Binkley & Hurst Bros. Has A Quality Gehl Blower In Stock For Less Cost - Pickup A Blower Soon and $ave $

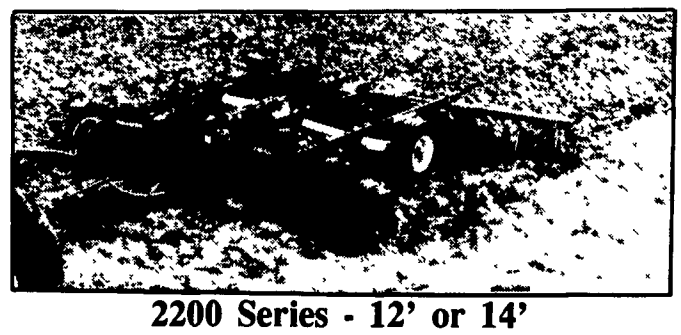
Krause disc harrows save you money

...WHEN YOU BUY ONE
...WHEN YOU USE ONE
...WHEN YOU TRADE ONE

BEFORE YOU BUY A NEW DISC HARROW THIS SPRING CHECK THREE THINGS:

1) PRICE per POUND

Krause Rockflex discs cost less per pound than most discs available today. Whether you are looking for a 12' or a 30' disc, compare price per pound.



2200 Series - 12' or 14'
Medium Duty Disc Harrow

2) PARTS AVAILABILITY & PRICE...

Krause Rockflex disc parts are in stock at HOOBER'S when you need them. With over 100 units being sold per year, you know that when you buy a new disc from us, we will have your parts when you need them. AND AT PRICES LESS THAN THE COMPETITION.

4900 Series 18' to 33'
Medium Duty Disc Harrow

3) TRADE VALUE IS THE HIGHEST...

When you go to sales this Summer to watch a KRAUSE disc sell, you'll find out that there is no machine that maintains its value better than a KRAUSE ROCKFLEX DISC. They always bring top dollar.

2400 Series - 21' to 34'
Heavy Duty Disc Harrow

Why Are Krause Rockflex discs such a great value? It's simple!!!
They WORK, AND WORK, AND WORK, AND WORK, AND WORK...

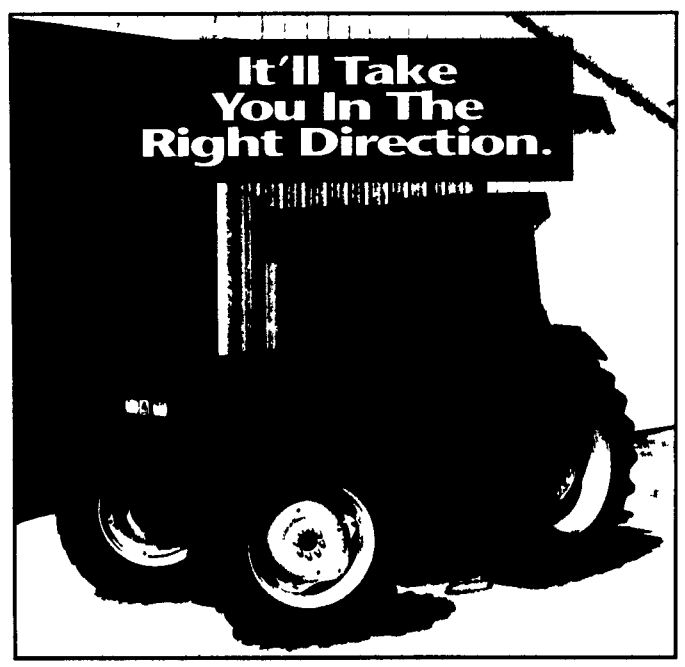
For The Way You Farm Today



Model 6690 w/cab (In Stock)
Turbocharged 81 PTO HP 2WD

The synchronized reverser transmission in the AGCO Allis 6600 Series makes it easy to change direction. And that's just one of the state-of-the-art features your AGCO Allis dealer wants to show you. At 63 to 80 PTO hp, they come with dependable two-wheel drive, all-wheel drive, a roomy high-tech cab and an advanced air-cooled diesel engine for less downtime and hassle-free maintenance. Plus, the 6600's are backed by a strong AGCO warranty – four years or 4,000 hours as standard. See your local AGCO Allis dealer, and ask about flexible AGCO financing.

Efficiency Is Our Newest Resource

IXL Technology Is New, Different & Better

Modern lubricants are about as good as they are going to get. So IXL solves the problem of friction and wear by treating the metal itself.

Treated metal parts are smoother, tougher, heat and wear resistant. More importantly, the friction characteristic of the metal itself has been reduced by more than 70%! This allows lubricants to do their jobs better and last longer. Which means your equipment runs better and lasts longer—much longer; as much as two or three times the manufacturer's expected "normal" life!

HOW DOES IXL ANTI-FRICTION METAL TREATMENT ACTUALLY WORK?

Simply stated, IXL is a pressure treatment for steel. Picture iron or steel as a sponge soaking up IXL when heat and pressure are applied for a period of time. IXL is actually attracted to the heat and pressure found in your engine, transmission, differential, wheel bearings and other working parts of your vehicle. The more heat and pressure developed by these parts, the faster and deeper the treatment soaks into them.

Used as directed, the IXL treatment is longlasting and there's no resin coating or bonded film which can peel or rub off; just bare metal with IXL soaked into it. There's no buildup on the metal surfaces and no change of tolerances. The treatment even remains effective if the metal is heated red hot—way beyond the point where your lubricants have failed.

Friction created by the working parts of your vehicle is always wearing away at the metal surfaces. After treatment with IXL the friction of these surfaces is reduced by 70% or more providing "bare metal" protection and allowing your lubricants to do their jobs much more efficiently. Since friction and wear are a continuous process, we recommend (based on actual use) that you always use a little more IXL when adding or changing oil. As a result, friction and wear are always kept at a minimum. And the metal parts continue to be treated while they do their work.

CLAAS® Rollant round balers give you what you want

—one quality round bale after another.

Discover Quality...Discover Value...

The Rollant 66 makes fast work of 4'x5' bales. Its unique two-stage pick-up and close tines produce a clean, efficient harvest in less time. Rollatex netting wraps a bale in 10 seconds or less, and double-twine wraps it up in just 20.

The Rollant 46 introduced CLAAS's innovative fixed bale chamber to the marketplace. This versatile baler handles all farm operations from dry hay to silage. Nobody produces a better 4'x4' bale.

The Rollant 42 was designed for family livestock operations. This economical investment produces weather-tight 4'x4' bales for the highest nutrient content possible.

CLAAS bales mean nutrient-filled edible hay, low spoilage, and high crude protein retention.

Each Rollant offers the innovative chamber, low-profile pick-up, and world class dependability. And they all share CLAAS's international reputation for low maintenance, durability and long-life.

Call now to see how you can improve the round figures on your bottom line.

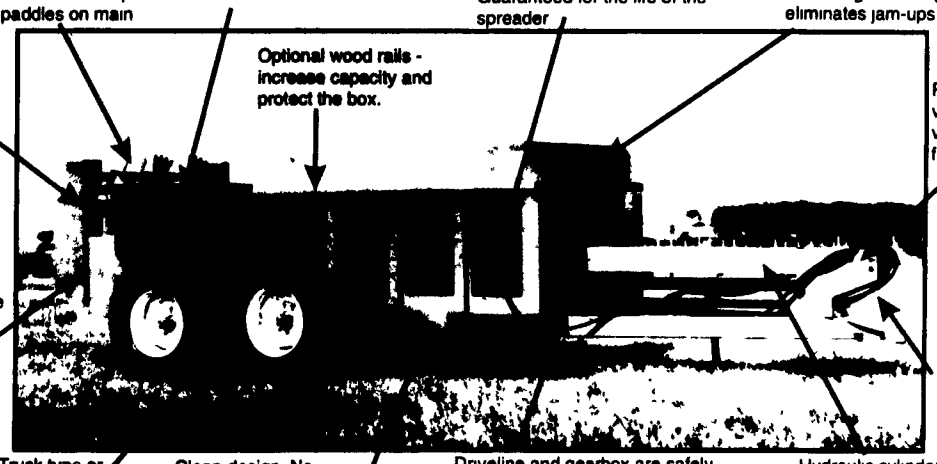
Dynashift™ delivers the features you asked for.

What farmers like you told us you want in a powershift transmission.
"Smooth shifts"	The transmission has to shift as smoothly as you can manually shift, without the jerks that can damage implements
"Fuel efficiency"	Deliver more engine power to the wheels and PTO
"Reverse shuttle shifting"	Make synchronized shifts from forward to reverse
"Better speed selection"	The next powershift gear should never be more than 17% faster or slower
"Low cost"	Make the benefits of powershifting more affordable to buy and maintain

HYDRA-SPREAD
HYDRAULIC PUSH-OFF MANURE SPREADER



Single or two beater designs. Aggressive, high-speed beaters - with up to 15 paddles per beater - deliver a fine uniform spread Replaceable bolted paddles on main beater
Snug-fitting end-gate controls sloppy or granular manure
Polyethylene sides and bottom containing 90% re-cycled material Guaranteed for the life of the spreader
Simple and reliable single-stage push gate for dependable, trouble-free unloading Centre-guided design eliminates jam-ups
Optional wood rails - increase capacity and protect the box.
Optional slurry pan prevents spills Controls sloppy or fine materials for even finer more uniform spreading.
Precision metering valve for infinitely variable unloading from 0 - 8 fpm
Simple, dependable power train Every shaft (even the upper beater) is splined for efficient power transmission and long life
Fully shielded PTO with overload protection
Truck type or flotation tires to suit your needs.
Clean design. No obstructions to hold manure.
Driveline and gearbox are safely contained within the frame - under the floor Easily serviced and repaired
Hydraulic cylinders are installed above the floor Always accessible - always easy to clean and service

Fast. Efficient. Powerful

IN STOCK

The all-new John Deere model 2018 Rotary Cutter. It is a full 20-foot, heavy duty, flex-wing rotary cutter, a big brother to the successful 1518 Flex-Wing 15-Foot Cutter.

Stalks, set-aside acres, pastures, roadsides and large grassed areas present just a few of the chopping and maintenance chores to tame with the new 2018.

450 END WHEEL DRILLS: GOOD MADE BETTER

- 35 Percent greater penetrating forde than John Deere 8000 Series Drills
- Depth gauging Press Wheels accurately gauge furrow depth while providing good seed to soil contact

IN STOCK
- 450 8 ft. w/Grass Seed Att.

SAVE HORSEPOWER, TIME, AND MONEY

- Only John Deere forage harvesters feature the Dura-Drum™ cutterhead, with economical segmented knives. Less plugging.
- Knife sharpening is a breeze. Adjustments, a cinch.
- When damaged, replace only a short knife for a fraction of the cost of one full-width knife.

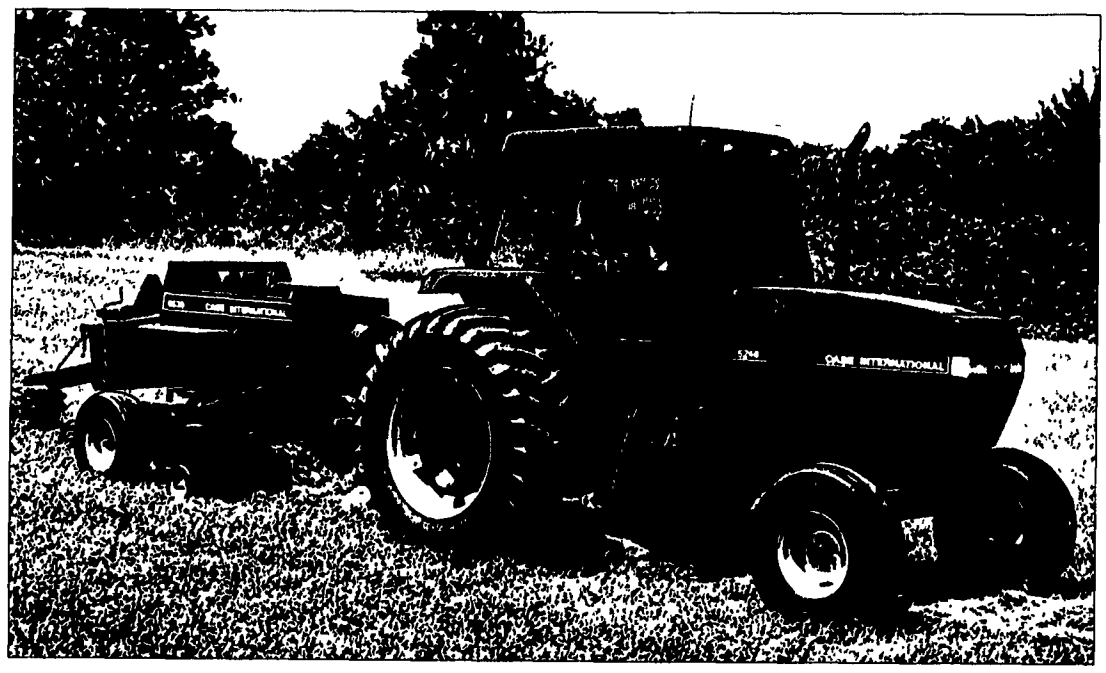
MAXXUM



Three years ago, Case International MAXXUM® set new standards for mid-size tractors. With the introduction of the 5200 Series, those standards have been raised even higher.

You wanted more visibility; we added exclusive all-glass doors. You asked for easier implement attachment; we responded with ground-level hitch control. You wanted more muscle; and we increased horsepower and durability.

Leadership never stands still, and the MAXXUM 5200 Series is still the best in the business.

5240 MAXXUM

- 100 PTO Horsepower
- Multi-disc Wet Clutch
- 16F/12R Fully Synchronized Transmission with Forward/Reverse Shuttle Shift
- Optional 16F/12R Powershift
- 7,700 Pound Hitch Capacity
- PFC Hydraulics
- 8F/8R Creeper Option

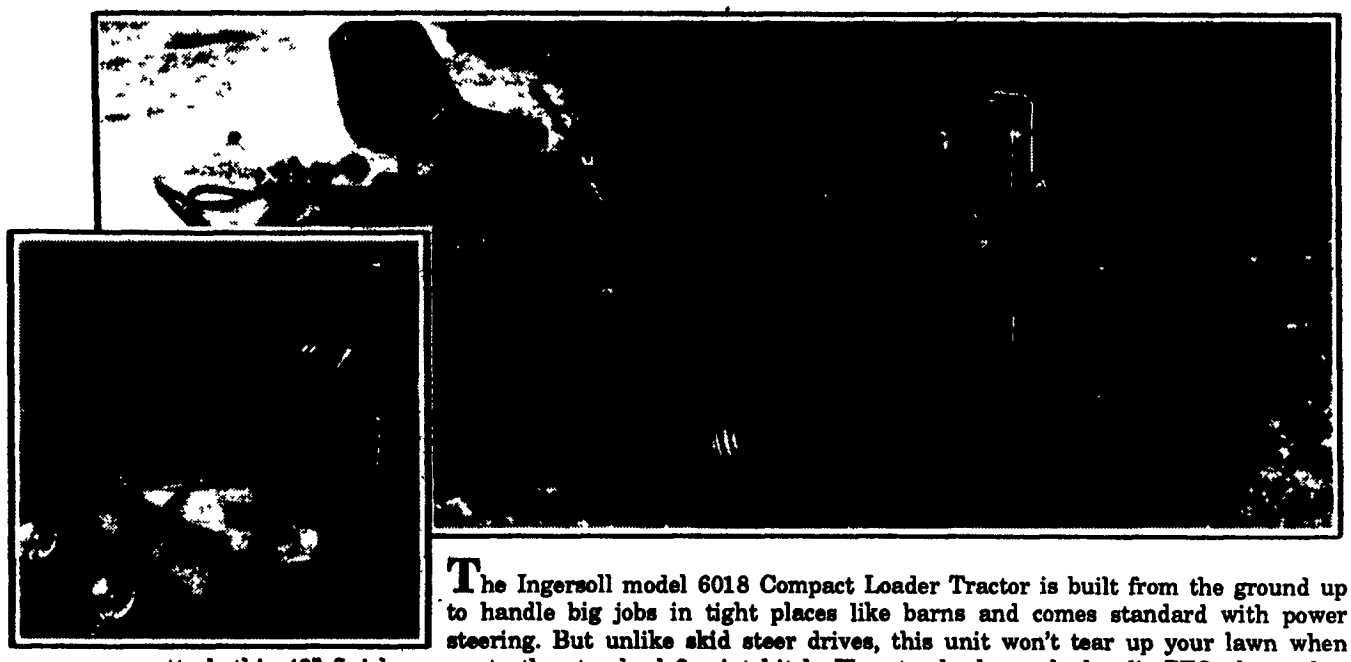
FOR THE AMERICAN SMALL FARMER



The Ingersoll model 6018 Compact Loader Tractor is built from the ground up to handle big jobs in tight places like barns and comes standard with power steering. But unlike skid steer drives, this unit won't tear up your lawn when you attach this 48" finish mower to the standard 3-point hitch. The standard rear hydraulic PTO also makes using our full line of hydraulic attachments a snap.

THE ONLY LIFETIME WARRANTY IN THE INDUSTRY

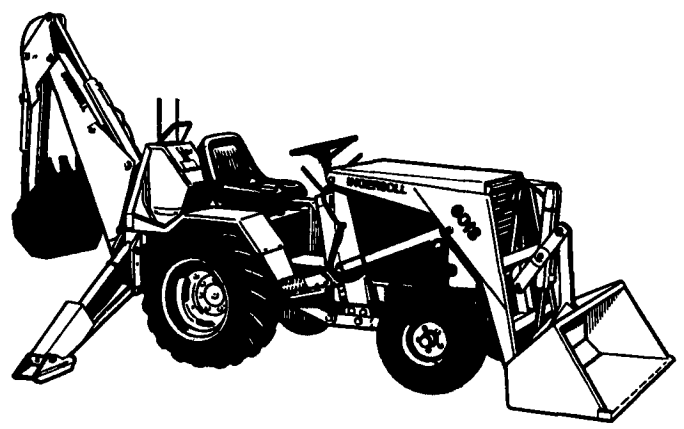
3016 WITH TILLER



All Ingersoll 3000 and 4000 series Garden Tractors feature HYDRIV™, a hydraulic drive system patented in 1965 and manufactured by J.I. Case until 1983 when Ingersoll acquired the product line and further enhanced it with state-of-the-art technology. Almost 30 years of reliable performance gives us the confidence to offer the TOP™ total Owner Protection Lifetime Warranty. Consult the dealer for specific TOP™ details.

Ingersoll offers the most complete line of time saving hydraulic attachments to tackle the tough chores on your small farm or ranch. Shown here is a Tiller and Chipper Shredder, but we also have Snowblowers, Brushcutters, Vacuums, Log Splitters and Mowers.

Contact your local dealer now and see why we say....Ingersoll is the tractor for a lifetime.

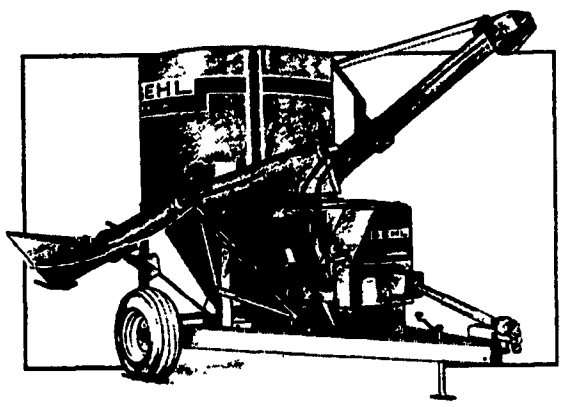
GEHL

THE #1 NAME IN FEEDMAKING



Gehl Mix-All® portable grinder-mixers have been leading the industry for over 30 years. Now the new Gehl Roller Mixer combines proven Mix-All features with a commercial-grade roller mill to produce the best possible feed for your livestock.

- Total hydraulic control – Self-contained hydraulic system allows infinite speeds to power the discharge conveyor, unloading auger and in-feed attachments.
- Remote controls – Operate the unloading conveyor from the tractor seat or from the rear of the machine.
- Electronic scales – For precise ration weighing.
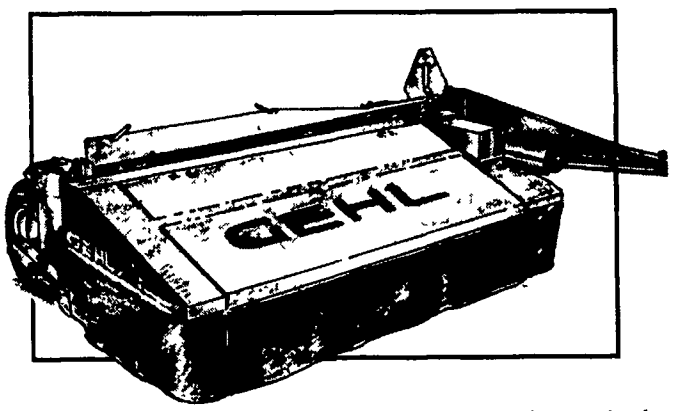
- Customize your machine – With a wide variety of options and attachments.

CUT HAY THE DISC WAY!



Gehl has two all-new disc mower conditioners to cut your crop down to size, fast and easy. The DC2340 has 7 discs and a 9 foot cutting width; the DC2360 has 8 discs and a 10-1/2 foot cutting width.

- High speed discs – Each disc has two knives to slice through the toughest crops and conditions; the disc gear drive operates in an oil bath for long life.
- Sturdy frame – Cradles the cutterbar for extra protection and durability.
- 540 or 1,000 rpm driveline with equal-angle hitch for smooth power transfer.
- Standard hydraulic tongue – Makes it easy to position the unit without leaving the tractor seat.
